NATION UNITES TODAY IN FIGHT TO LOWER COSTS

Chicago Conference to Warn Wasters.

This demonstration, which will be carried on under its official designation, the National Conference for the Reduction of Federal, State, and Local Expenditures, will open at 10 o'clock this morning in the grand ballroom of the Hotel La Salle with representatives in attendance from at least twenty-one states. It will close tomorrow afternoon.

The purpose of the meeting, which was called by the Chicago Association of Commerce, is to reduce the heavy burden being carried by the nation's taxpayers. Many business leaders assert that the length and intensity of the present depression is due largely to the tax demands of federal, state, and local governments.

Rising Cost of Government.

It has been stated that the cost of government in this country—federal, state, and local—has risen from two billion dollars in 1913 to twelve billion dollars in 1931. In 1913 the national income was 33 billion dollars and in 1931 it was placed at 54 billion dollars.

In 1913 the percentage of governmental expenditures to national income was 6.1 and in 1931 it was 22.2. In the meantime the national income has declined still further, while governmental expenditures threaten to equal or exceed those of last year.

One of the chief reasons for holding the conference in Chicago at this time, said George W. Rossetter, president of the Association of Commerce, is to impress on delegates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions, soon to be held here, that the people now demand reduction of governmental costs so that taxes will be lowered. In the face of the diminishing national income it is pointed out that the taxpayers are no longer able to meet the demands made on them by their public servants.

Rossetter to Open Conference.

Mr. Rossetter will open this morning's meeting with a short statement, following which the assembly will appoint a resolutions committee. Those attending will consist of officials from chambers of commerce, representatives of agricultural associations, and business and industrial enterprises, and leaders generally in the campaign being waged to curtail governmental expenditures.

Among the speakers who will address the conference today are D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair, chairman of the advisory committee on public expenditures of Chicago; Dr. Charles M. Thompson, dean of the college of commerce and business administration, University of Illinois; Mark Graves, director of the budget of New York state; Morris Edwards of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Washington, D. C., and Col. Robert R. McCormick.

Speakers for Tomorrow.

Those who will speak at tomorrow's session include Silas Strawn, past president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Thomas R. Cain of Jacksonville, Ill., president of the National Farmers' Grain Dealers' association; Felix McWhirter, president of the People's State bank of Indianapolis, and Willard I. Hamilton, vice president of the Prudential Life Insurance company, Newark, N. J.

James Simpson, chairman of the board of Marshall Field & Co., will be among those attending the conference. Mr. Simpson yesterday completed a record breaking trip of fourteen days from India to be present at the sessions. He was in Bhopal, India, on May 18. He flew over Asia and Europe to Cherbourg, where he boarded the liner Majestic on May 25.

"Stop Tax Spending Now!"

Opinions expressed yesterday by A. J. Lauer, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Auburn, N. Y., were representative of the feeling existing among the delegates.

"My people at home demand that the national, state and municipal governments stop spending money immediately," Mr. Lauer said. "They demand that the national budget be balanced and they want this done by reduced expenditures. They want relief from the tax burden.

"As for myself, I can't see how the present situation can be relieved through absurd proposals to spend

Two bombs were planted last night at the homes of Bryan Hartnett, Democratic alderman of the 12th ward, and his father, Michael, a retired police sergeant, who lives next door.

One bombing was frustrated by the heroic action of the alderman's 7 year old son and another boy, who doused the burning fuse with water. The second bomb exploded and caused $200 damage to the home of the elder Hartnett.

ALD. HARTNETT.

The bombing occurred shortly before 11 o'clock while the alderman and his wife were out. Ald. Hartnett resides at 3516 South Washtenaw avenue. His father lives at 3518 South Washtenaw avenue.

Boy Tells Story of Bomb.

Ald. Hartnett's son, Bryan Jr., had been left at home by his parents in the care of Miss Bernice Perry, Mrs. Hartnett's sister. With them was Miss Perry's brother, Robert, 11.

"We were looking out of the front window," said Bryan Jr., "and saw a small automobile draw up in front. One man stepped out and came to the porch. He stooped down, lit a match, then ran to his auto.

"Bobby and I ran outside. We saw a package smoking. Then we each got a glass of water and poured it on the smoking package."

What the boys actually did, police examination showed, was to extinguish a short burning fuse. Had they been a few seconds later, police said, the fuse would have ignited five sticks of dynamite and they undoubtedly would have been killed.

Second Bomb Explodes.

Miss Perry summoned the family of Michael Hartnett. Among them were Policeman Joseph Hartnett, a son; Miss Margaret Hartnett and Mrs. George Love, daughters, and Policeman George Love, a son-in-law. The two policemen went to notify the alderman. Meanwhile Policemen Joseph Walsh and Daniel Shallow of the Brighton Park station arrived.

As they stood outside they were shaken by an explosion at the rear of the Michael Hartnett home. Policemen Walsh and Shallow and the elder Hartnett were within 50 feet of the blast. No one was hurt.

Investigation by Sergt. Michael Toohey, bomb expert, showed that both bombs were dynamite. Both, he believed, were intended for Ald. Hartnett. None of the Hartnetts could offer a clew to the bombers.

BANDIT HUNTERS FIND POLICEMEN HARD TO CATCH

Because the Piccadilly theater, Hyde Park boulevard and Harper avenue, has been robbed three times, Ralph Schoenstadt, 25 years old, of 5107 Blackstone avenue, the manager, became suspicious last night when he saw four men in a black automobile parked near by.

"Get a gun and follow me," he ordered Jack Branch Negro doorman. "Those men look like robbers. If they are we'll get the jump on them."

As Schoenstadt approached the automobile a man leaped out and the two men struggled on the ground until Schoenstadt was disarmed. Branch came up waving his gun, but he, too, was overpowered and disarmed.

Then the four men marched them to the Hyde Park station, less than a block away. The four were detectives and the man who had disarmed Schoenstadt was Policeman John Dalton.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker ordered the two bandit hunters held on open charges. Efforts of Henry Schoenstadt, owner of the theater and Ralph's uncle, to free them were unsuccessful.

OLD WATERLOO BRIDGE SURVIVES COMMONS BATTLE

[Copyright, 1932, By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 1.—Waterloo bridge, whose graceful arches have spanned the Thames for a century, was saved from destruction tonight after a dramatic nonparty debate in commons. By a vote of 223 to 154 the house rejected the London county council's plan to demolish the old bridge and replace it with a structure wide enough for lanes of traffic. The government favored demolition but speaker after speaker urged its retention as one of the architectural glories of London.

STRAYER FINDS HUGE WASTE IN CITY SCHOOLS

Urges Cutting 1,077 Off Pay Roll.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The report of the $100,000 survey of the Chicago school system, made by the Teachers' college of Columbia university, was presented to the board of education yesterday at a special meeting in the board's new quarters at 228 North La Salle street.

DR. STRAYER.

In offering the report Dr. George D. Strayer, director of the survey, spoke in glowing terms of the city's school teachers. "The people of Chicago," he said, "owe a debt to the teachers that they can never repay. I know of no more heroic sacrifice that has ever been made by any group in public service."

Recommend Dismissal of 1,077.

So far as relieving the pressing financial distress of the school system went, however, the report added little to the reduction of $15,603,565 in the 1932 budget which was recommended in a preliminary statement given to the board on May 9 by Dr. Strayer.

Of this proposed cut, $11,357,000 would be saved by deferring construction of school buildings and other permanent improvements. About $2 918,000 more would be saved, on an annual basis, by the elimination of 81 architects and draftsmen, 374 teachers, 120 business employés, 502 janitors and engineers, and reductions of the salaries of about 1,800 janitors and engineers by amounts ranging from 3 to 34 per cent of their present pay. No reduction in teachers' pay is recommended.

$1,050,000 Maintenance Saving.

Another $1,050,000 would be saved, if the report is followed, on maintenance of buildings, $149,684 on coal bills, and $128,000 on playgrounds.

If still more economy is necessary after those savings have been made, the Strayer group recommends the closing of the schools. Then it advises the board to get an income tax system and $15,000,000 more a year from the state of Illinois for the Chicago schools.

These conclusions are based on an inquiry begun last Nov. 1 by 27 experts—nearly all educators—and 71 assistants. The report covers eleven volumes containing approximately 508,000 words and a summary of findings and recommendations in 30,000 more words.

Find 33% Building Waste.

The largest waste of school cash charged in the report is in the construction of new buildings, on which $87,676,000 has been spent in the last year. The waste was estimated at a third, or $29,225,000. The experts said there are 95 obsolete school buildings in the city.

The cost of buildings in Chicago per cubic foot is 3 cents lower than that in New York. Last week Mayor Cermak charged that the "excess profit" on the construction of two Chicago junior high schools was 35 per cent. He arrived at this figure by comparing the cost of the Chicago schools with that of two similar suburban schools.

High Chicago Cost Shown.

Dr. Strayer's report gives the elementary school cost per pupil in Chicago as $462. In New York, it says, this cost is $281, a difference of 21 per cent. The report gives the junior high school cost in Chicago as $713 per pupil and in New York as $398—a difference of 79 per cent. The Chicago senior high school cost per pupil is given as $855. In New York it is $620.

"For all buildings as a group," reads the report, "Chicago spends $633 per pupil, whereas New York spends $504. Chicago is therefore spending a third more per pupil for new buildings than New York is spending."

The salary reductions recommended in the report are: School custodians, 21 per cent; assistant custodians, 34 per cent; firemen, 21 per cent; janitors, 6 per cent; janitresses, 21 per cent; watchmen, 3 per cent, and scrubwomen, 14 per cent. It is estimated that with these reductions and the elimination of the 502 janitors and engineers $1,626,157 would be saved.

The sum of $561,000 would be saved, according to the report, by putting to

Extortionists Captured in Evanston Plot

Two confessed extortionists were under arrest at the Evanston police station last night following their unsuccessful attempt to collect $5,000 from Charles F. Grey of 2906 Lincoln street, Evanston, wealthy real estate dealer with offices at 185 West Madison street, Chicago, on threats of kidnaping his two children.

One extortionist was seized as he called for a decoy package in the Linden avenue "L" station in Wilmette. He is Charles Kimball, 29 years old, a salesman, of 5316 Winthrop avenue. The other was captured last night in Kimball's home, while awaiting his accomplice's return. He is William F. Brand, 21, of 1438 Farwell avenue, a commercial artist and former Northwestern student.

Children Are Threatened.

The attempt to extort $5,000 from Mr. Grey started on May 10 when he received a letter demanding $5,000 on the threat of kidnaping his children. He was warned not to notify police and advised to insert a personal notice in a newspaper as follows: "All is fair, Jack." The missive was signed "V. M. C."

Mr. Grey notified the police, and sent his two children, Carol Josephine, 6 years old, and Charles F. Jr., 4, to Iowa with his wife.

Gets Second Letter.

On May 28 Mr. Grey received a second letter telling him that "this was his last chance," and pointing out that he might not like a "bombing" or "poisoning." It also warned him to insert a newspaper personal to this effect: "All is Clear, Charles."

Mr. Grey followed instructions this time by inserting the personal notice as directed. Yesterday he received a third letter advising him to place $5,000 in $5, $10, and $20 bills in a package and to place the package, marked "Mr. Harrison," with the ticket agent in the Wilmette "L" station.

Boy Carries Decoy Package.

Late yesterday afternon a boy messenger carried a decoy package to the ticket agent. Near by hovered Lieut. Carl Ekman and Detectives Tony Schultz, William Calderwood, and Ben Hanke of the Evanston force. Shortly after 4 o'clock Kimball called at the station and asked for a package for "Mr. Harrison." The decoy package was handed to him. He was immediately seized.

Kimball confessed, but said he merely had called for a package as directed by another man. Police went to his home. There they found Brand waiting. Brand admitted that he wrote the blackmail letters. He said that he did so at the request of a man whom he knew as "Scotty."

Secret Deal with German Junkers Bared

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 1.—President von Hindenburg today approved a "feudal" cabinet submitted to him by Maj. Franz von Papen, to whom the president yesterday entrusted the task of forming a new government to replace the resigned ministry of Heinrich Bruening. The new cabinet members are the same men who figured in a secret list which friends of Von Papen, former high officers, showed the former kaiser at a meeting at Doorn a few weeks ago. Only minor changes were made in the list since it received the exiled ruler's approval.

Minister of war—Gen. Kurt von Schleicher.

Finance Post Still Unfilled.

The finance ministry and the ministries of justice and labor are still unfilled "pending the arrival in Berlin of the chief candidates."

The German Democratic party today sent a letter to von Hindenburg asking him not to call the new cabinet one of "national concentration," since 19,000,000 Germans who voted for him in the recent presidential elections are not represented in it.

"Furthermore," they declared, "it would be better not to divide the German nation in the same way as during the war into patriotic and unpatriotic circles."

Von Papen spent all of today at the reichstag negotiating with the political leaders. Much of his time was given to a conference with Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, who favors the immediate proclamation of a moratorium on foreign payments.

Hitler Stands Aloof.

Von Papen's chief minister, Gen. von Schleicher, negotiated all day with leaders of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist [Fascist] party, trying to induce them to coöperate actively in the new cabinet. Von Schleicher's friends complain that they supported the movement to oust former Chancellor Bruening on the strength of Hitler's promises that once Bruening was unseated, he would take part in an "ideal cabinet."

Now Hitler refuses to share responsibility with the new cabinet. He is reported to be insisting on new reichstag elections, feeling certain that they would give him an absolute majority.

Nevertheless, the Hitlerite leaders speak protectively of the new cabinet, "which," they say, "is purely a transition cabinet for the purpose of liquidating the Bruening era. New reichstag elections will ring in a new era in Germany."

Reveal "Social War."

Members of the Von Papen cabinet are all well known in aristocratic circles. Von Schleicher is a friend of the Hitlerites and was one of the main plotters against Bruening. To a great extent he is said to have been pushed

SENATE ARGUES ECONOMY BILL'S PAY CUT CLAUSE

Tax Measure Is Sent to Conference.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—With the billion dollar tax increase bill scheduled to become a law next week, the senate today began consideration of the economy bill providing for savings in the cost of government next year aggregating $233,605,606.

REP. HENRY T. RAINEY.

The economy bill proved a disappointment to those who have been demanding the abolition of paternalistic, subventionary, and regulatory activities of the central government, which were originally conceived to be the exclusive functions of the states, and the radical elimination of extravagances in legitimate federal functions. A thoroughgoing budget reform of that character, it is estimated, would lop approximately one billion dollars from the more than four billion dollar annual cost of the federal government.

Pay Cut Raises Protest.

Although the bill represents only a cautious approach to retrenchment and proposes only a temporary reduction of government costs, confined mainly to the next fiscal year, great opposition developed in the senate to the first item considered—a 10 per cent reduction in the pay of government officials and employés for the year beginning July 1, next.

After wrangling nearly two hours over this item involving 121 of the 233 millions of savings proposed by the bill, the senate adjourned to allow senators to study and sleep over the proposition. The federal bureaucracy is already moving through its organization to defeat the senate committee's pay cut proposal and restore the house provision which would effect only a 9 million dollar saving by an 11 per cent cut of salaries above $2,500.

Tax Bill Goes to Conference.

The house sent the tax bill to the conference committee by a unanimous vote. Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], the Democratic leader, predicted that it would take the committee not more than three days to reconcile the senate and house provisions. The principal differences are the lumber and copper tariffs injected into the bill by the senate, the tax on bank checks and on stock and bond transfers.

Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] introduced a resolution for a special rule to allow the amendment of the bill with a sales tax provision.

"My amendment," he said, contemplates the incorporation in the bill of the sales tax amendment as considered in the house. It would apply a 2.25 per cent tax to all manufactured articles except necessities of life and would yield 400 millions, making unnecessary the increased income taxes and the nuisance taxes now in the bill."

Disputs Over Tax Yield.

There is much dispute over the total expected yield of the tax bill, estimates varying all the way from 1 billion 115 millions to 1 billion 230 millions, and over the amount required to balance the budget. Advocates of the sales tax are predicting that by the time of the December session of congress it will be found necessary to resort to that source of revenue unless there should be a phenomenal recovery of business.

These predictions are based on the deepening of the depression in the last few months and the consequent shrinking of 1932 incomes, as a result of which treasury estimates of the income tax yield under this bill are not likely to be realized. Thousands of business concerns that once contributed largely to corporation taxes are either bankrupt or on the verge of bankruptcy, while dividends generally have declined 30 per cent in the last eight months.

Income Taxes Shrink.

In February the treasury estimated that 867 millions would be derived from taxes on 1932 incomes. Now it begins to look as if the yield would not exceed 750 millions.

Speculation on the possibility of the United States being forced off the gold standard has been halted by the passage of the tax bill. Treasury officials insist today that the suspension of gold payments by this government is now an extremely remote possibility.

There was a flare-up of partisan debate in the senate over the President's appearance before the senate yesterday to goad that body into speedy disposition of the tax bill. Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] took umbrage at newspaper statements that Mr. Hoover had brought about the passage of the bill last night.

Denies Hoover Hastened Action.

"The coming of the President to the senate did not hasten the passage of the bill in the slightest degree," said Senator Harrison. "Of course, if he wanted to come here and get his name on the front page of the papers that was his right, but the bill would have been passed yesterday in any event."

The senator said that the bill would have been passed Monday night had it not been that the treasury found it had underestimated the revenue required and it became necessary to add taxes to yield 285 millions more.

"The President has the right to come," replied Majority Leader James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], "and he chose the proper time to come. He was distressed by the condition of the country and the world and believed it his duty to come. I don't know whom he consulted but I do know that he is not subject to criticism for coming. I think everybody here should be willing to credit the President with a patriotic motive in coming."

Then Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the finance committee, mollified the Democrats by praising their nonpartisan coöperation the like of which he never had witnessed in his long experience.

Approve Legislative Cuts.

The senate made quick work of approving the appropriations committee's reductions of $1,705,464 in the $20,214,869 appropriations for the legislative establishment as passed by the house. One one item the senate went the committee one better, reducing the Supreme court's allowance for new law books from $40,000 to $25,000.

Senator George W. Norris [radical Rep., Neb.] began scrutinizing all the items in the legislative appropriation bill to which the economy bill is attached. He thought that if government clerks were to be compelled to sacrifice 10 per cent of their pay, others ought to sacrifice something and suggested that the Supreme court might get along very well if it did not have any new law books for a year or two. The senate agreed with him.

Then Mr. Norris demanded explanations on the continued expenditures on the printing and binding in full morocco of the papers of George Washington in 302 volumes, the journals of the Continental congress, and the records of the Virginia company in connection with the Washington Bicentenary.

All that Chairman Jones of the appropriations committee could tell him was that $1,500,000 had been voted for the celebration. The Nebraska senator did not challenge the item further.

Johnson Opens Salary Fight.

Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] opened the fight on the pay cut provision by demanding figures showing what proportion of the 121 millions in savings would fall on employés with smaller salaries. Learning that cuts in the smaller salaries would provide a major portion of the saving, he declared:

"To reduce these small salaries means reducing happiness and the chance of prosperity. You might as well seek to restore the health of an individual by letting out all his blood."

"But look at it another way," suggested Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], member of the special economy committee. "Salaries make up approximately one-third of the four billions of federal expenditures. Would you vote to cut the billion that goes to the veterans? And you can't cut the service of the public debt. And we have cut other expenditures as far as we could.

"Salaries offer the only means of getting a saving of 100 millions or more."

"There is something so repugnant to me in the idea of taking the necessary money from the poor charwomen who work at night in this capitol," Senator Johnson replied, "that I'll go to almost any length in cutting other expenditures in order to effect the economies desired."

The senate galleries were well crowded with federal employés, just as the house galleries were when the bill was before that body. And from them came applause for Senator Johnson's words.

HOUSE AND SENATE ECONOMY BILLS COMPARED

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—In reporting the economy bill to the senate the appropriations committee submitted the following itemized list of proposed savings in the cost of the federal government for the fiscal year 1933, aggregating $238,605,606:

Description of Item—	Bill as passed by house.	Bill as reported to senate.
Eleven per cent reduction in salaries in excess of $2,500	$ 9,000,000	.....
Ten per cent reduction in all salaries (except active enlisted personnel of the army, navy, and marine corps)	.....	$121,850,000

HOOVER DIRECTS FIGHT ON LAVISH RELIEF PROJECTS

Wagner, Garner Bills Under Fire.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—Administration spokesmen will appear before senate and house committees tomorrow in opposition to those sections of the huge Democratic relief bills which provide hundreds of millions of dollars for the construction of federal public works projects.

Plans for the administration drive against the relief measures were completed in a two and a half hour White House conference late today attended by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ferry K. Heath.

Appear Before Committees.

Following this conference it was stated that Mr. Mills would appear before the senate banking committee, which will begin hearings on the Wagner 2 billion 100 million dollar bill tomorrow. Secretary Hurley is to appear before the house ways and means committee, which is considering the Garner two billion 300 million dollar measure.

While the conference was in progress at the White House, Representative Willis Hawley [Rep., Ore.] introduced two bills calling for a broadening of the lending power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to permit federal loans for nonfederal construction projects such as toll bridges, water works, etc. The Hawley measure represented the views of the Hoover administration. His bills differed from the Garner and Wagner bills principally in that they included no funds for government public works projects of the type President Hoover referred to as "pork."

Adds to Finance Corporation.

The principal Hawley measure would add one billion 500 million dollars to the borrowing power of the finance corporation. This additional money would be available for loans to states, municipalities and private enterprises for the construction of "economically sound and useful projects" which would provide employment. The second measure would authorize the corporation to make loans to states for direct relief in emergency cases. The total loan authorization under the bill would be 300 millions.

PROVISIONS IN SENATE TAX BILL REGARDING SPECULATION LOSSES

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—Following are provisions of senate income tax bill on the matter of deduction of losses from stock speculation:

"1. Losses from sales or exchanges of stocks and bonds which are not capital assets shall be allowed only to the extent of the gains from such sales or exchanges.

"2. Losses disallowed as a deduction by paragraph 1, computed without regard to any losses sustained during the preceding taxable year, shall, to an amount not in excess of the taxpayer's net income for the taxable year, be considered for the purposes of this title as losses sustained in the succeeding taxable year from sales or exchanges of stock or bonds which are not capital assets.

"3. This subsection shall not apply to a dealer in securities in respect of transactions in the ordinary course of his business with his customers, nor to a bank or trust company incorporated under the laws of the United States or of any state or territory.

"In the case of any taxpayer, other than a corporation, who for any taxable year sustains a capital net loss [as hereinafter defined in this section], there shall be levied, collected, and paid, in lieu of all other taxes imposed by this title, a tax determined as follows: A partial tax shall first be computed upon the basis of the ordinary net income at the rates and in the manner as if this section had not been enacted, and the total tax shall be this amount minus 12½ per centum of the capital net loss; but in no case shall the tax of a taxpayer who has sustained a capital net loss be less than the tax computed without regard to the provisions of this section."

Four Boy Scouts Awarded Carnegie Heroism Medals

New York, June 1.—(AP)—John A. Dewey, 14, of Mandan, N. D., was among four Boy Scouts awarded Carnegie medals for acts of heroism during 1931, it was announced today. John, a tenderfoot scout, received a bronze medal and $500 for educational purposes because he rescued Forrest Marvin, 9, from drowning on a cold February day. The others were Trafton T. Buchanan of Renovo, Pa., Charles F. Mort of Winchester, Va., and Philip D. Simon of Niles, Mich.

SPECIAL RULE CLEARS WAY FOR AQUEDUCT LOAN

Bill Gives California Federal Lands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—The house committee on rules today reported out a special rule for the consideration of the Swing bill giving the metropolitan water district of southern California complete right of way over all government lands for the Los Angeles-Boulder dam aqueduct.

The purpose of the Swing bill is to pave the way for the granting of a huge federal loan to the water district in the event the Reconstruction Finance corporation is authorized to make loans to states for financing so-called self-liquidating construction projects. No loan could be granted unless the district has a clear right of way.

Cost Is 220 Millions.

The cost of the Los Angeles-Boulder dam aqueduct will run about 220 millions. The plan was to finance the construction through the sale of bonds, but if a federal loan is granted the bonds of the water district probably would be put up as security.

The rule has not been acted upon in the house, but probably will be brought up tomorrow. Its passage will be virtually tantamount to passage of the bill.

Takes All Land Needed.

The Swing measure provides that all government owned lands in Los Angeles, Riverside, and San Bernardino counties, California, needed for the right of way be turned over to the water district.

If the water district needs more than the two hundred and fifty foot right of way, under the bill, it must pay the government $1.25 an acre for any federal land it takes over. The right of way privilege is to be gratis.

Urbana, Ill., June 1.—[Special.]—Miss Esther Uhl, Logansport, Ind., a junior in the University of Illinois, today filed suit in the Champaign County Circuit court against Ralph H. McCormick, 5545 University avenue, Chicago, a graduate student and instructor. She claims $25,000 damages for injuries received last October in an automobile accident.

TAX CRISIS BARED BY HOOVER LAID TO RECENT SLUMP

Estimates of Yield from Levies Cut Down.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—Details of the economic and financial emergency which caused President Hoover to appear yesterday before the senate in person became known today.

It was this emergency—described by the President as having "developed in the last few days"—which sent Secretary of the Treasury Mills before the senate finance committee to tell the members that because of the continued decline an additional 285 millions of revenue must be raised if the budget was to be balanced by the end of the fiscal year 1933.

Production Index Falls.

It was this emergency, plus the insistence of President Hoover and the revelations made by Secretary Mills which caused the senate to add 275 millions of new taxes to the revenue bill and rush the measure to passage late last night.

The last minute treasury estimates which startled the senate finance committee and forced it to recommend the 1922 income tax rates, the gasoline tax, and the tax on private electric power companies, were based, it was learned today, on the fact that the federal reserve board's index of production had dropped from approximately 73, when Secretary Mills came before the committee early in April, to 64.

Illustrative of the decline in the bill's expected yield were the treasury's amended estimates on the income to be looked for from some of the various tax items (each figure represented in millions):

Tax on—	Previous estimate.	Yesterday's estimate.
Lubricating oils	36	33
Radios and phonographs	11	9
Automobiles, trucks, accessories	55	42
Cosmetics	12	10
Jewelry	12	9
Sporting goods and cameras	6.5	5
Firearms	2.5	2
Mechanical refrigerators	6	5
Matches	5	4
Candy	5	4
Soft drinks	7.5	7
Bank checks	95	78
Real estate conveyances	10	8
Totals	262.5	216

Or a decline in these items of 46½ millions.

The decline in these items, however, was but a small part of the fiscal picture which Mr. Mills held up before the finance committee.

He showed that conditions had caused previously estimated revenues for 1933 to be revised downward by nearly 10 per cent. Earlier estimates of the revenues to be brought in by the new bill had been cut 123 millions, or nearly 13 per cent below the previously estimated total of 963 millions.

The previously estimated expenditures for 1933 totaling 3,615 million dollars will be cut, it is hoped, 350 millions during the present session, leaving an estimated actual expenditure for the year of 3,265 millions.

Revenue Off 285 Millions.

The previously estimated revenue for 1933 under the present tax laws was expected to be 2,375 million dollars, but because of the continued economic decline this revenue total had to be cut by 235 millions, leaving a probable revenue for next year under the present law of 2,140 millions.

In the same way the continued decline forced 123½ millions to be struck from the estimates for the new revenue bill, making the total 840 millions instead of 963 millions.

In order to make up the deficit, Secretary Mills informed the committee the new bill must carry 1,125 millions of additional revenue. As passed by the senate last night with the 275 millions from the three new taxes added, as shown in the table, to the 840 millions already provided, the bill carried approximately 1,115 millions.

Bandit Robs House and Escapes in Police Car

A robber used an Aurora police squad car in escaping early yesterday after he had entered the home of Mrs. Mary Worst in North Lake street, Aurora, and taken 25 cents from her and $30 from two roomers. While he was in the home some one summoned the police. The squad members surrounded the house, leaving their motor running. The bandit sneaked through them, jumped into the police car and drove down the street to his own automobile in which he escaped.

SENATE GROUP AGAIN VOTES 3-2 TO APPROVE JUDGE WILKERSON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—The senate judiciary subcommittee headed by Senator William E. Borah [Rad. Rep., Ida.] today voted a second approval of the promotion of District Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The vote was 2 to 2, a repetition of the previous vote in which Chairman Borah and Senators Walsh [Dem., Mont.] and Robinson [Rep., Ind.] had favored the elevation of the judge who sentenced Al Capone to the penitentiary; and Senators Dill [Dem., Wash.] and Blaine [Rad. Rep., Wis.] had opposed the promotion on the ground that Judge Wilkerson's record showed him prejudiced against organized labor.

Beyond a brief notice of the action taken, Senator Borah probably will submit no further report to the full judiciary committee.

There is a possibility now that the nomination may be taken up by the full committee next Monday, and that senate approval may be had before adjournment.

BILL IN CONGRESS TO PREVENT BAN ON ENSIGN BRIDES

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—As the congressional champion of young love, Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.] today introduced in the house of representatives a bill designed to prevent the "big guns of the navy department" from silencing the darts of Dan Cupid.

The department intends to reinstate an old restriction prohibiting young ensigns from marrying within two years after their graduation from the Naval academy. The department was represented as holding that young officers were "too busy to be bothered by brides and babies."

Representative Cochran thinks differently, however.

"I do not think it is in the interest of either the morale or the morals of young officers for departmental officials to meddle in their private lives," he said today. "It is my intention to prevent happily married cabinet officers, admirals, and generals from establishing regulations which require our future admirals and generals to put in two years before marching to the altar."

CONGRESS FACES NO ADJOURNMENT FOR CONVENTION

Washington, D. C., June 1.—(AP)—Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, believes there is not a chance for congress to adjourn before the Republican national convention in Chicago on June 14.

Discussing the legislative situation in congress with newspaper men, he said:

"We might be able to adjourn by the time the Democratic convention meets on June 27.

"Besides the tax bill, which now goes to conference, we have nine supply bills, the Garner relief program, and the economy measure to complete. It will be impossible to finish before the Republican convention."

KIN OF WALKER SPLIT FEES OF N. Y. EMPLOYES

Mayor's Doctor Brother Inquiry Witness.

New York, June 1.—[Special.]—Dr. William H. Walker, a brother of Mayor James J. Walker, admitted today before the Hofstadter committee that he had split fees with physicians authorized by the corporation counsel's office to treat injured city employés.

SAMUEL SEABURY.

Although it was shown that his bank deposits in the last four years amounted to $431,258, Dr. Walker thrust aside a suggestion of graft by Attorney Samuel Seabury, who earlier in the session declared grounds existed for the mayor's removal from office.

Thus, after a month of stormy hearings, the climax of fourteen months of investigation, the inquiry into the mayor's office ended with the expectation that Gov. Roosevelt soon will be asked to decide whether he considers Mr. Walker fit to continue in office.

Charter Provision Cited.

The chief counsel called the attention of the committee to section 1533 of the city charter which prohibits an officer of the municipal government from "knowingly acquiring an interest in companies doing business with the city."

Just before reading the charter provision into the record Mr. Seabury introduced testimony of Harry J. Rosenbloom, treasurer of the Reliance Bronze and Steel company, ten of whose bonds had been given to Mr. Walker by J. A. Sisto, a taxicab financier. This company it was shown had received $43,556 from the city for supplying 109 bronze traffic standards for 5th avenue in 1931.

Mayor Walker had admitted receiving the bonds, which were convertible into stock, but he said he had given them to Mrs. Walker. Mr. Seabury pointed out that the record shows that the coupons from the bonds were deposited in the mayor's personal bank account.

Share in Fees Bared.

This technically important point, however, was almost overshadowed by the revelation of Dr. Walker's share in the fees paid to four of the six physicians designated for remuneration from the city treasury for services in workmen's compensation cases.

The four who worked with Dr. Walker were Drs. Thomas J. O'Mara, Alfred B. Cassasa, Harris Feinberg and Edward L. Brennan. They were designated by Morris L. Strauss, an assistant corporation counsel who was at a loss to explain certain incongruities in the bills which they rendered and he approved.

A workman with a "bruised third finger" might require twelve treatments at $2 a visit, another who had cut his finger might require an abdominal belt which cost the city $25. There was one case where a workman with an injured left thumb had to have his foot strapped while another whose foot was hurt had to have four X-rays made of his hand, according to the bill the doctor rendered to the city.

Discuss Small Injuries.

This line of testimony set the minority members of the committee off on dissertations on the importance of small injuries. Assemblyman Irwin Steingut recalled that he had a bad "big toe on my left foot," and that he had been trying to for four years to find a specialist who could cure it.

"I hope you will consult Dr. Walker, assemblyman," said Mr. Seabury just before he called the mayor's brother, a stout, phlegmatic individual, to the witness stand. Dr. Walker, who receives a salary of $6,500 a year as a medical examiner for the board of education and another $500 or so from the board of retirement, not to speak of numerous fees from fight clubs at "$50 a performance," admitted readily that he had split fees with Dr. O'Mara.

"But not on city compensation cases," he added quickly.

Seabury Produces Checks.

Mr. Seabury produced two sheafs of checks—one a set of those paid to Dr. O'Mara by the city and one a set of those which Dr. O'Mara paid to Dr. Walker. The split was always fifty-fifty, except where odd cents prevented an even split, in which case Dr. Walker always got the benefit of the extra cent.

For example, when Dr. O'Mara received checks totaling $1,502.20 from the city on March 3 and 4, 1931, he sent Dr. Walker a check for $751.10 on March 5. But on June 27, 1931, when Dr. O'Mara was paid $436.45 by the city he sent Dr. Walker a check for $218.23 a few days later. Dr. Walker admitted that in 1931 he had received from Dr. O'Mara between $10,000 and $12,000, although he thought Mr. Seabury's estimate of $50,000 for four years a trifle high.

Admits Receiving Money.

Dr. Walker admitted receiving the money, but insisted it was not part of the fees paid to Dr. O'Mara for work in city compensation cases. The fact that the amounts he received were always 50 per cent of the total paid by the city to Dr. O'Mara, he said, were just "coincidences."

"Wouldn't it have been a plain instance of graft," inquired Mr. Seabury, "if in this hypothetical case you had split all of Dr. O'Mara's fees in city compensation cases? Don't you think that would have been a clear case of graft?"

"No," replied Dr. Walker; "not if I had rendered services to him."

"What service did you render?"

"Any service he required."

"Medical or political?"

"Medical" said the mayor's brother, playing nervously with his glasses, which finally broke under the strain.

Joint Bank Account.

Dr. Walker had different arrangements with the three other doctors. With Dr. Brennan he had a joint bank account into which went deposits amounting to $226,815, although he explained that much of these funds came from work the did together in compensation cases for a stevedoring company.

The mayor's brother also admitted that he was joint owner of a safe deposit box with Dr. Brennan. He explained, however, that he never had put anything into the box and never had taken anything out.

With Dr. Feinberg, Dr. Walker also had a joint bank account into which went deposits totaling $89,219.

Senator John J. Dunnigan, minority committee member, objected to this line of evidence. He declared it would be as fitting to inquire into the fees "some lawyers have received," aiming at Mr. Seabury's, who received $800,000 for helping to settle the complicated Gould estate.

"And some architects' fees," retorted Mr. Seabury staring at the irate senator, who in private life is an architect who occasionally appeared before the board of standards and appeals.

"Never collected $800,000 from one case as you did from a widow and three children," shouted Senator Dunnigan.

"Maybe you weren't worth it," snapped Mr. Seabury.

Mayor Accuses Seabury.

Detroit, Mich., June 1.—[Special.]—Charging Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter legislative committee, with malice and unfairness, Mayor Walker today replied to Mr. Seabury's charge that the mayor's ownership of bonds in the Reliance Bronze and Steel company, doing business with the city, constituted grounds for his removal.

"The startling charge is now made," the mayor said, "that I profited to the extent of $600 out of a $41,000 contract. Mr. Seabury knows if he knows anything straight, that this is not true."

The mayor declared that no coupons from the bonds had been cashed since the police department in 1931 let a contract to the Reliance for the signal standards on 5th avenue. That contract, he said, was let to the lowest bidder. He said he had nothing whatever to do with the contract.

Few Licenses Sought

When Chief Clerk Sidney Summerfield arrived at his post in the marriage license bureau at the county building yesterday at 8 o'clock of a bright June morning, he found several couples waiting for him just as if there were no depression.

The first couple, T. R. Whitney, 24 years old, of 959 North Homan avenue, and Miss Rose Borth, 21 years old, of 2617 North Oak Park avenue, had been waiting since 7:15. They wished to be the first June licensees, they explained, although they won't be married until Saturday.

The second couple to obtain a license were Charles J. Sporak, 25 years old, 1034 West 18th street, and Alice Anthony Germack, 18 years old, 1134 West 18th street. They are employes of the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

There was no real rush at the bureau windows yesterday. Indeed, Chief Clerk Summerfield said the day was the slowest June 1 in his memory. Only 145 licenses were issued, only six more than were issued on Tuesday. For the first five months of this year the marriage licenses have slumped 14 per cent over the same period in 1931.

At the marriage court, Circuit Judge Charles B. Adams arrived to find Miss Charlotte Englis, 6615 Barry street, and James W. McIntyre, a fireman on the Santa Fe railroad, who speedily became Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre and departed for a California honeymoon.

AGAIN SENTENCE 17 YR. OLD SLAYER TO DIE IN CHAIR

Rockford, Ill., June 1.—[Special.]—Russell McWilliams, 17, again was sentenced today to die in the electric chair for the murder of William S. ["Cap"] Sayles, 64 year old motorman, who was shot to death in a street car holdup here last Aug. 29. The sentence was imposed by Circuit Judge Arthur E. Fisher, who fixed June 24 as the date for the execution.

McWilliams was sentenced to death by Judge Fisher the first time last Oct. 28. An appeal was made to the Supreme court by defense attorneys, headed by Clarence Darrow, and the high court remanded the case back to Judge Fisher for further hearing on the ground that the court had not gone sufficiently into the past life, training, and environment of the defendant.

Former Career Shown.

The sentencing of McWilliams today concluded a two day taking of testimony in which the defense sought to show that McWilliams had had little training and practically no religious training. He testified he had left school while he was in the seventh grade. The defense also alleged McWilliams was intoxicated when he shot the street car man.

State's Attorney William D. Knight, however, on cross-examination brought out that McWilliams had had a career of crime preceding the murder during which, he confessed, he had held up and robbed two oil stations and another street car motorman.

A number of witnesses testified that McWilliams was not drunk when captured after the murder.

B. J. Knight, chief defense attorney announced that immediate appeal would be taken again to the Supreme court, which is now in session at Springfield.

Statement of Judge.

Judge Fisher, before he pronounced a sentence, said: "Should this court now modify the sentence heretofore pronounced he would be saying to all the young men in Rockford, in Winnebago county, and in Illinois, 'You may go out and commit murder under the most aggravated circumstances if you are less than 18 years of age.' This court cannot see it, in his duty, to lay down that rule."

CHARGE SOVIETS TRY TO SMUGGLE ARMS TO SOUTHERN IRELAND

LONDON, June 2 [Thursday].—(AP)—The London Express said today that a Russian attempt to land arms in southern Ireland had been prevented by unusual activity of British warships over the last week-end.

The arms were intended as equipment for the Irish republican army in event of a conflict between the Irish Free State and northern Ireland, the newspaper said. It reported that tramp steamers, carrying the weapons, were warned by radio of the British naval activity and returned to foreign ports where they had been chartered.

Dispatches from Belfast said it was reported there that two British destroyers from the Portsmouth naval base sailed on short notice, while vessels at Cobh, near Cork, were held in readiness.

A strange vessel, painted a light gray, appeared off Cork Saturday night, the dispatch said. It did not attempt to enter the port and it was believed at Cork the ship was an additional British naval vessel sent for protection.

JAIL FRANK RIO, CAPONE'S GUARD, FOR QUIZ BY U. S.

Frankie Rio, one time bodyguard to Al Capone, who served a year in a Philadelphia prison with his chief for carrying concealed weapons, has become a possible subject for deportation, it was discovered last night. Rio is a public enemy.

Police revealed there has been a "stop order" from the immigration department against Rio since last December. No explanation was attached to the request, but at the time it was made Murray W. Garsson, special assistant to the secretary of labor was here making a drive on criminal aliens. Police said the government "stop order" was undoubtedly in that connection.

However, Rio had been able to avoid the police until yesterday, when he was arrested by State Highway Policemen McAllister and Achuff in Roosevelt road and taken to the Bellwood jail. With him was "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, Capone lieutenant. Mangano was released on $35 bail.

HURLEY NAMES HOSTESSES FOR PARTY MEETINGS

Many Women Delegates to Attend Conventions.

E. N. HURLEY.

Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the Chicago committee in charge of arrangements for the Republican and Democratic national conventions, completed yesterday the list of large committees whose job it will be to see that the two armies of visitors are well cared for during their stay here.

He announced the names of 102 women, Republicans and Democrats, who will act as a reception committee and as hostesses for both conventions. The list was headed by the names of two co-chairmen, Mrs. Janet Ayer Fairbank, former Democratic national committeewoman, and Mrs. Fred W. Upham, widow of the former Republican national treasurer.

The two vice chairmen named were Mrs. Bertha Baur, Republican, and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, Democrat, each the present Illinois woman member of her party's national committee.

Women on Committee.

Other women appointed on the committee were:

In addition to these women the following were appointed: Dr. Irene Behnke and the Misses Ella M. Cullen, Gladys M. Easter, and Agnes Nestor.

Chairman Hurley said that the number of women delegates and alternates in the conventions this year will be larger than ever before. In addition, he said, the armies of visitors will have a larger percentage of women than the convention crowds of the past.

Opens Garner Headquarters.

Another bit of pre-convention activity yesterday was the opening of Garner presidential candidacy headquarters in the Hotel Sherman by Silliman Evans of Fort Worth, Tex., the home town of the speaker-candidate.

Illinois' delegates to the Democratic national convention are trekking from all over the state today to a sort of reassurance meeting at Springfield. Leaders say efforts have been made to stir up feeling between the downstaters and Chicago with stories that Mayor Cermak intends to try to oust National Committeeman Igoe and to "boss" the delegation. The meeting has been called to put an end to such reports.

Judge Henry Horner, nominee for governor, and a number of other leaders left for the capital last night, but Mayor Cermak will not depart for there until this morning. The conference is for delegates and state candidates. The big event is a dinner which will be followed by a meeting open for general discussion.

Boys Put Out Bomb at Alderman's Home; Second Explodes

Picture shows damage caused last night by explosion of dynamite placed at rear of residence of Michael Hartnett, father of Ald. Bryan Hartnett of the 12th ward, at 3518 South Artesian avenue. The blast occurred shortly after Ald. Hartnett's 7 year old son and another boy had extinguished the fuse of a bomb thrown at the front of the alderman's home next door.

CAPITAL VISIT BRINGS CHEER TO ROOSEVELT MEN

See Favorite Son Alliance Slipping.

New York, June 1.—[Special.]—Collapse of the favorite son alliance opposed to the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt for President is imminent and the movement will go to pieces before the national convention next month, James A. Farley, state chairman, predicted today following a series of conferences in Washington.

JAMES A. FARLEY.

One and possibly two of the states now tied up by instructions for favorite sons for political reasons are reported to be making overtures to the Roosevelt managers and desertion of the anti-Roosevelt coalition by even one such state in all probability would bring about a nomination on the first ballot.

As evidence of their confidence in the outcome the Roosevelt managers are going ahead making definite plans for organizing the convention, naming committees, and running the whole show, whereas the opposition, clinging to a bare veto power, still fail to perfect any definite working agreement.

"My conversations with leaders and officials in Washington, supplemented by reports from leaders in the states, convinces me that the movement to prevent Gov. Roosevelt's nomination is about to collapse," Mr. Farley said.

BOARD OF TRADE CLERK DIES.

Julius Dannenberg, 45 years old, 8224 Ellis avenue, a clerk at the Chicago Board of Trade, died yesterday in the Jackson Park hospital of a hemorrhage.

PRESIDENT HEARS G. O. P. DEMAND FOR WET PLANK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—A demand for the insertion of a wet plank in the Republican party campaign platform was laid before President Hoover today by the membership of the Young Republican club of New York state, the largest organization of young Republicans in the country.

Officials of the organization urged the President during a 30 minute call at the White House to work for the insertion of a plank in the party platform which will provide for a referendum on the question of repeal of the 18th amendment. Specifically, the club urged adoption of the Missouri Republican plan, which provides for submission of the 18th amendment repeal issue "to the conventions of the people in the several states, under the provisions of Article 5 of the federal constitution."

The Young Republican demand for a change in the prohibition situation reached the White House as President Hoover was engaged in an attempt to make up his mind definitely on the referendum question. With the dry groups urging the President to stand pat on his 1928 law enforcement platform and his three and half year record and the more liberal members of his party demanding a moist plank, President Hoover was represented today as still unable to make up his mind on the issue.

The New York young Republicans told the President bluntly that prohibition had failed and that recent years had disclosed the dry laws could not be enforced.

"We believe," the Republican club said, in a formal statement of their position, which was left at the White House, "in rigid control of the liquor traffic.

"Our generation has come into manhood when no one, now under thirty-seven years of age, has ever had the opportunity to vote effectively on this issue. While we remember little or nothing of the saloon, we have seen the temperance movement submerged in an orgy of liquor, lawlessness and corruption, and we have had forced upon us on all sides the lawless speakeasy, which has invaded and degraded and debased residential districts, rich and poor alike, in practically all our great cities.

"We see our communities terrorized by gangster control and tainted with the larval greed of the racketeer. Our boys and girls in high school and college have, in alarming numbers, become drinkers of hard liquor.

DEARTH OF JOBS TO KEEP MANY GRADS IN COLLEGE

Outgoing Students Face a Stiff Battle.

Commencement orators this year will deliver messages of inspiration to groups of young men and women about to step into a more cheerless world than any of their predecessors in the cap and gown since the turn of the century.

Surveys yesterday at the University of Chicago and Northwestern university disclosed that many of the seniors will return to school for graduate work. The decision to seek additional knowledge is largely due, they said, to the fact that they have no hope of finding jobs.

The situation for less gifted students is even more critical, said William H. Spencer, dean of the school of commerce at the University of Chicago. He said the proportion of students in the upper half of the classes who have been promised jobs is far greater than that of those crowding the foot of scholastic lists.

Some to Continue Studies.

Of five students in the college of liberal arts at Northwestern who have won Phi Beta Kappa keys four will continue in college and one is to teach. In the Northwestern school of commerce, of five students who are members of the Beta Gamma Sigma honorary fraternity two will continue in school, two are undecided, and one has the promise of work.

In liberal arts Caroline Sachs of Omaha, voted the most active girl on the Evanston campus, is going to Radcliffe and does not know what she will do when she gets her master's degree. William O. Farber of Geneseo, Ill., and Albert W. Adcock of Chicago have won fellowships and will continue at Northwestern. J. Richard Peterson, 4948 North Keystone avenue, will begin a three year law course and hopes to practice corporation lawyer at the end of that time. J. Marshall Kruse of Chicago will hitch hike to New Mexico to teach Spanish in the state college.

In the Northwestern School of Commerce Hunter P. Davis of Kansas City, Mo., hasn't made up his mind, "but would like to go into banking or finance."

Jobs Await U. of C. Men.

In the School of Commerce at the University of Chicago Carl M. Skonberg of Paxton, Ill., and Norman Rieger of Grand Rapids will take graduate work. Ralph E. Darby of Arkansas City, Arthur Alic, 2243 South St. Louis avenue, and Frank Murray of Mitchell, S. D., have jobs awaiting them.

In the college of liberal arts at the Midway institution the proportion of workers is much smaller. Gilbert F. White, 5607 Dorchester avenue, president of the Dramatic club and business manager of the Cap and Gown, the school annual, will study for a doctor's degree. Lawrence Ridenour, editor in chief of the daily, who lives in Evanston, will go to the California Institute of Technology to work under Prof. Robert A. Millikan.

Co-ed to Work in Store.

Barbara Cooke, 5656 Dorchester avenue, has obtained employment with a loop store. June Raff, 5303 Gladys avenue, will not return to school and would be "happy to find any kind of work." Elizabeth Merriam, daughter of Prof. Charles E. Merriam, will take post-graduate courses in history.

John C. Kennan, director of the university bureau of vocational guidance bureau, which works to place graduates in jobs, said that 40 per cent of the class have already filed their names with the bureau. Of the number registered less than 30 per cent have secured work. But 25 per cent of the women have filed their names and the percentage of job finders among them is far less than among the men. Mr. Kennan said the students of liberal arts have been hit much harder than those who have specialized.

9 SENTENCED IN CAMPAIGN ON PICKPOCKETS

Judge Seeks to Make City Safe for Conventions.

A drive to clear Chicago of pickpockets before the coming political conventions was launched yesterday by police, in cooperation with Judge Thomas A. Green in the South State street court. Nine pickpockets were arraigned yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct and given fines of from $25 to $200. All were taken to the Bridewell in default of payment.

JUDGE THOMAS A. GREEN.

"I may be wrong under the law," Judge Green said in passing sentence, "but pickpockets must be driven from Chicago. Visitors will be welcome for the conventions, and they may feel sure their money will be safe."

The nine fined were picked up by the pickpocket detail on Monday. They were found mingling with crowds watching the Memorial day parade and in other public gatherings. Charges of disorderly conduct were placed against them and Judge Green passed sentence after police testimony that they were known pickpockets. All of the defendants had police records which were read in court.

Ryan first was fined $100, but the fine was doubled when he objected to being taken to the Bridewell with the rest of the defendants.

Encouraged by the action of Judge Green, Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker yesterday ordered the pickpocket detail to redouble its efforts and to bring in every professional pickpocket in the city.

COUNCIL LIFTS POLICE BAN ON NIGHT PARKING

Aldermen Are 35 to 11 Against Enforcement.

The city council adopted a resolution yesterday directing Commissioner of Police Allman to suspend enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting all-night parking. At the same session the council referred to its traffic committee a repealer of the ordinance. A private poll of the aldermen indicated that they are overwhelmingly against enforcement of the parking ban during present economic conditions.

In the poll 35 of the 46 aldermen present stated emphatically that they are opposed to enforcement of the ordinance now. Nine aldermen are reserving judgment until after the hearing today before the traffic committee on the repealer. One said he is in favor of enforcement, and one confided that all-night parking is not a problem in his ward.

Club Demands Repeal.

The ordinance, which prohibits parking for more than one hour between 2 a. m. and 6 a. m., should be excised from the code and not merely allowed to lie dormant, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, and author of the repealer.

"Public opinion," declared Mr. Hayes, "has decreed that the ordinance is objectionable and that repeal is the only alternative."

Ward.	Ward.
1. Courblin	27. Leahy
2. Anderson	28. Kells
4. Cronson	29. Terrell
5. Schreiber	30. Clark
6. Healy	33. Rostenkowski
7. Hodes	34. Keane
8. Sutton	35. Porten
10. Rowan	36. Robinson
11. Wilson	37. Mills
12. Hartnett	38. Landmesser
14. O'Grady	39. O'Hkoelli
15. Kovarik	41. Moreland
16. Moran	42. Crowe
18. Morris	45. Feigenbutz
21. Lagodny	46. Nelson
24. Arvey	47. Hoellen
25. Bowler	50. Quinn
26. Sloan

The nine aldermen, six of whom are members of the traffic committee, that are reserving decision until after the hearing are: Jackson [3d], Corr [17th], Northrup [19th], Pacelli [20th], Ross [40th], Waller [43d], Loescher [44th], Massen [48th], and Williston [49].

Ald. John Toman [23d], stated that he is in favor of enforcement "if that is the wish of the fire department," and Ald. Frank E. Konkowski [31st] said there is little all-night parking in his ward.

"We don't want the streets clogged with parked automobiles," said Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] in submitting a resolution directing Commissioner Allman to cease enforcement, "but the people cannot pay garage rents now and it is absolutely wrong to fine them for that reason."

Ald. Thomas J. Terrell [29th] declared that the streets belong to the people, and Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st], announced his willingness to vote for repeal immediately. Later, Ald. Coughlin introduced a repealer of the loop no parking ordinance which also was referred to the traffic committee.

FINE NATHAN B. SWIFT AND TWO OTHER YALE MEN FOR FIST FIGHT

New Haven, Conn., June 1.—(AP)—Three Yale sophomores were fined in city court today for participating in a fight with two men at the stage door of a theater. Charges against two other students were dismissed.

Nathan B. Swift of Chicago, member of the meat packing family, was fined $25 and costs. The other two were each fined $10 and costs.

They were charged with breach of the peace.

The students were arrested last night after a fight in which a saxophone player was injured. The saxophone player told police the fight started when he resented remarks made by the students about women members of the cast.

Learn Name of Man Lost in Lake Sailing Tragedy

It was learned yesterday that the drowning victim for whose body coast guardsmen have been hunting since Monday was Charles Lundberg, 33 years old, 7928 Burnham avenue, a steel worker. The search started when A. Pierce, keeper of the South Chicago light, saw a catboat capsize. Godfrey Peterson reported to Capt. A. F. Brown of the coast guard yesterday that Lundberg borrowed the boat from him on Monday and failed to return.

BAINS MAY ASK TRIAL OUTSIDE OF COOK COUNTY

Judges Disagree Over Assignment.

Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court and State's Attorney Swanson yesterday conferred over the situation following the failure, thus far at least, to have Judge John M. O'Connor of the Appellate court, assigned back to the Criminal court to hear the Bain bank cases. Judge O'Connor had been agreed on by the defense attorneys and the prosecutors to act as trial judge without a jury.

Attorney Francis X. Busch, representing John Bain, his two sons, Robert and John H. Bain, and W. Merle Fisher, Bain's son-in-law, started preparations yesterday to make a showing for a change of venue from Cook county in behalf of his clients in case O'Connor cannot act.

$100,000 Costs Involved.

Prosecutor Swanson is concerned because he estimates that if the trial is held in another county it will cost the local taxpayers at least $100,000 more than if Judge O'Connor should try the case. The defense has agreed to try the case before Judge O'Connor on a jury waiver.

The judges take the attitude that Judge O'Connor must be reassigned from the Appellate court by the Supreme court, which made his original assignment. It is reported that one Supreme court judge has notified certain authorities that the matter rests with the Circuit and Superior court executive committees. The Supreme court will not be in session until June 6, at which time the attitude of the court is expected to be made public.

Opposes "Picking Judges."

Judge Denis E. Sullivan, chief of the executive committee of the Superior court, said he was opposed to reassignment of Judge O'Connor because it would set a bad precedent.

"Any judge should be able to try any case," he said. "The attorneys should not be allowed to shop around and pick out some particular judge. If that is allowed in the Bain case I seen no reason why the same thing would not occur in all the other pending bank cases."

MRS. BALDWIN TO WIN DECREE BY AGREEMENT

An agreement to settle the divorce suit of Mrs. Mary A. Baldwin, president of the Frances Willard hospital, against James L. Baldwin, was reached yesterday in the chambers of Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court.

Under the agreement, it was reported, Mrs. Baldwin will get a decree on grounds of desertion. She and her attorney, Robert E. Cantwell Jr., agreed to drop the charges of adultery against Baldwin which attracted a courtroom full of spectators last week as Mrs. Baldwin described her husband's alleged advances to nurses in the Frances Willard hospital, while he was a patient there last year.

In lieu of alimony, it was reported, Mrs. Baldwin is to receive the family home at 414 South Scoville avenue, Oak Park, $1,000 and $500 solicitor's fees. Baldwin, head of express company, left their home June 7, 1931.

NATION UNITES TODAY IN FIGHT TO LOWER TAXES

Chicago Conference Will Demand Economy.

more of the taxpayers' money. I think that the Garner bill proposing the expenditure of some half billion dollars on postoffices and other buildings at random throughout the country is one of the most insane movements I have ever heard of."

Mr. Lauer's home town is largely supported by manufacturing interests.

Farmers' Point of View.

Explaining the agricultural point of view, Mr. Cain in a recent statement "Government interference in business and the ever increasing tax drain upon the wealth of the country indicate a trend toward communism that is not pleasing to the sons of the soil. Day by day government extravagances and political waste are driving our people further down the treacherous pathway of socialism to the abyss from which only the cry of the victims is heard. We have toiled on with all the fortitude in the world and with a patience that has about reached the breaking point."

Kiwanis Jumps Into Fight.

The Kiwanis International enlisted in the general movement against high governmental costs yesterday when a letter was sent to all local presidents signed by Guy Guernsey, chairman of the committee on public affairs for the United States.

"With the approval of President Harris," the letters said, "the committee suggests that your club at its first meeting pass a resolution appealing to your member of the house of representatives and your senator to balance the government budget and to pass an equitable tax bill as promptly as circumstances will permit in order that the industrial and commercial interests of the nation may have something definite upon which to build their plans for the immediate future. Send copies of your club's resolution direct to your representatives."

MAYORS TOLD TO SAVE

Mayor Cermak yesterday advised sixty Illinois mayors to reduce governmental expenses, in an address before the Illinois Municipal league at the Hotel Sherman.

"The only solution of credit difficulties besetting municipalities is curtailment of expenses," he said. "We must bring the cost of government back to where it was ten years ago. We are doing it in Chicago. Sooner or later you are going to be faced with the financial troubles we are now facing and must meet the problem in the same way. The only thing to do is to cut now."

Warns of Tax Limit.

Mayor Cermak pointed to refusal of taxpayers to pay their bills as evidence that added taxes would not solve finances of cities. He held that too rigid enforcement of personal property taxation would paralyze banking, real estate and other business, and would not bring in the revenue which advocates of the system claim.

"The people are not paying taxes because they cannot. Further taxes will not increase tax payments," said the mayor. "Economy, although it is not popular, is the only way out. Here in Chicago we dismissed 3,000 employés and contemplate further reductions as we go along.

"We also reduced salaries by paying on a basis of a 24 day month rather than a 30 day month. In 1927 people here paid $200,000,000 in taxes. In 1931 they were to pay $297,000,000. The increase of almost one-third could not be met. Any move to increase the tax burden is only a move to prolong our difficulties.

Must Live Within Means.

"All governments must live within their means. Issuance of bonds can't help us when we can't sell the bonds already authorized. When bankers see that we are living within our means, by reduction of expenses, we will have regained their confidence and that of the people so that we can then sell tax anticipation warrants.

Frank G. Dickinson, professor of economics at the University of Illinois, said the previous depressions have lasted as long as 25 years, but held that the present depression, because of the rapidity of the drop in prices, will end more rapidly.

The mayors endorsed the project of a five billion dollar federal loan for unemployment relief.

COOK COUNTY LEGION COUNCIL UNANIMOUS AGAINST U. S. LOANS

The Cook County council of the American Legion went on record last night as being "unalterably opposed" to "prosperity" loans. Their action was directed against the agitation for huge government expenditures ranging from two to five billion dollars.

Frank W. Kee, past chef de gare of the Forty and Eight, and Dawson McCully, of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. post, made speeches against such loans. Kee called the billion dollar schemes "foolhardy" and said they would cripple the nation. McCully asserted such loans would be "appalling," and "communistic."

Council Commander Paul Armstrong asked a vote on a resolution, favoring such loans, and the 200 members, representing 36,000 legionnaires, voted unanimously against the resolution.

Michael Boyle, chairman of the Poppy day committee, reported last week's sales netted "not more than $49,000. This," he said, "would be $12,000 less than taken in in 1931."

MAYORS ASKING LIBERAL LOANS, AID FOR JOBLESS

Urge Five Billion Dollar Public Works Program.

Detroit, Mich., June 1.—(AP)—Seeking relief from municipal financial distress, mayors and chief executives from 32 cities attending a national conference here today drafted a three-fold program in which the federal government is asked to lend immediate assistance.

Resolutions adopted by the executives, who met on invitation of Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit, demanded an amendment to the Reconstruction Finance corporation act authorizing the advancing of credits to cities, legislation providing appropriations by the federal government for direct unemployment relief, and a five billion dollar loan for a national public works program.

The resolutions were presented by a committee headed by Mayor James M. Curley of Boston and a committee will be chosen later to present the demands to congress and to President Hoover.

Mayors Will Organize.

Federal aid was the theme of the meeting. It was voiced first by Mayor James J. Walker of New York, who said "the time has come when the federal government must assume the responsibilities that belong to it." It was voiced in different terms by every one of the thirty-two mayors except one—George D. Begole of Denver—who asserted that "no matter how much the cities borrow from the government the citizens will have to pay it back."

The resolution for credit advancement to cities was adopted unanimously, while the resolution calling for the public works program drew spirited debate. Mayor Walker said he favored the idea, "as far as it went," but said he wondered if such a program would reach all of the unemployed.

Urges "White Collar" Aid.

"Such a program of public works," he said, "undoubtedly would benefit a large number of skilled and unskilled mechanics, but I want to know how it will reach the white collar workers who are just as much out of a job as any one else and just as hungry."

When the resolution came before the group there was, however, one dissenting vote, from Mayor J. Fulmer Bright of Richmond, Va., who declared "we have not reached the point where cities must throw themselves on the charity of the nation."

Mayor R. B. Marvin of Syracuse, N. Y., cast a vote against the resolution calling for direct relief, saying it would be a "dangerous practice to ask the government to help finance cities."

"We want no money from the government to carry on the business of New York, nor to balance its budget," said Mayor Walker in reply. "All we want them to do is feed the people we've no money to feed.

LIGHTNING HITS POWER HOUSE AND CUTS OFF LIGHTS

Lightning struck the Public Service company power house in La Grange during a violent thunderstorm which raged throughout the western suburbs and the northwest side of Chicago yesterday afternoon. More than $3,000 damage was caused to the power house and many homes in La Grange were without lights for hours.

The home of Edwin H. Blatter, mayor of Elmhurst, also was struck by lightning, causing some damage to the roof and starting a small fire which was extinguished by the Elmhurst fire department. Splinters were ripped from the roof of a house at 3300 North Kedzie avenue, but no fire resulted.

Rain fell heavily for half an hour during the storm and showers fell in the north suburbs and in Chicago later in the day. Showers are probable today and tomorrow, according to the forecast.

JAILED ON GUN CHARGE.

Stephen Poshatko, 26 years old, 2218 Greenview avenue, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction yesterday by Judge Howard Hayes in the Felony court for carrying a concealed weapon. He was arrested Sunday.

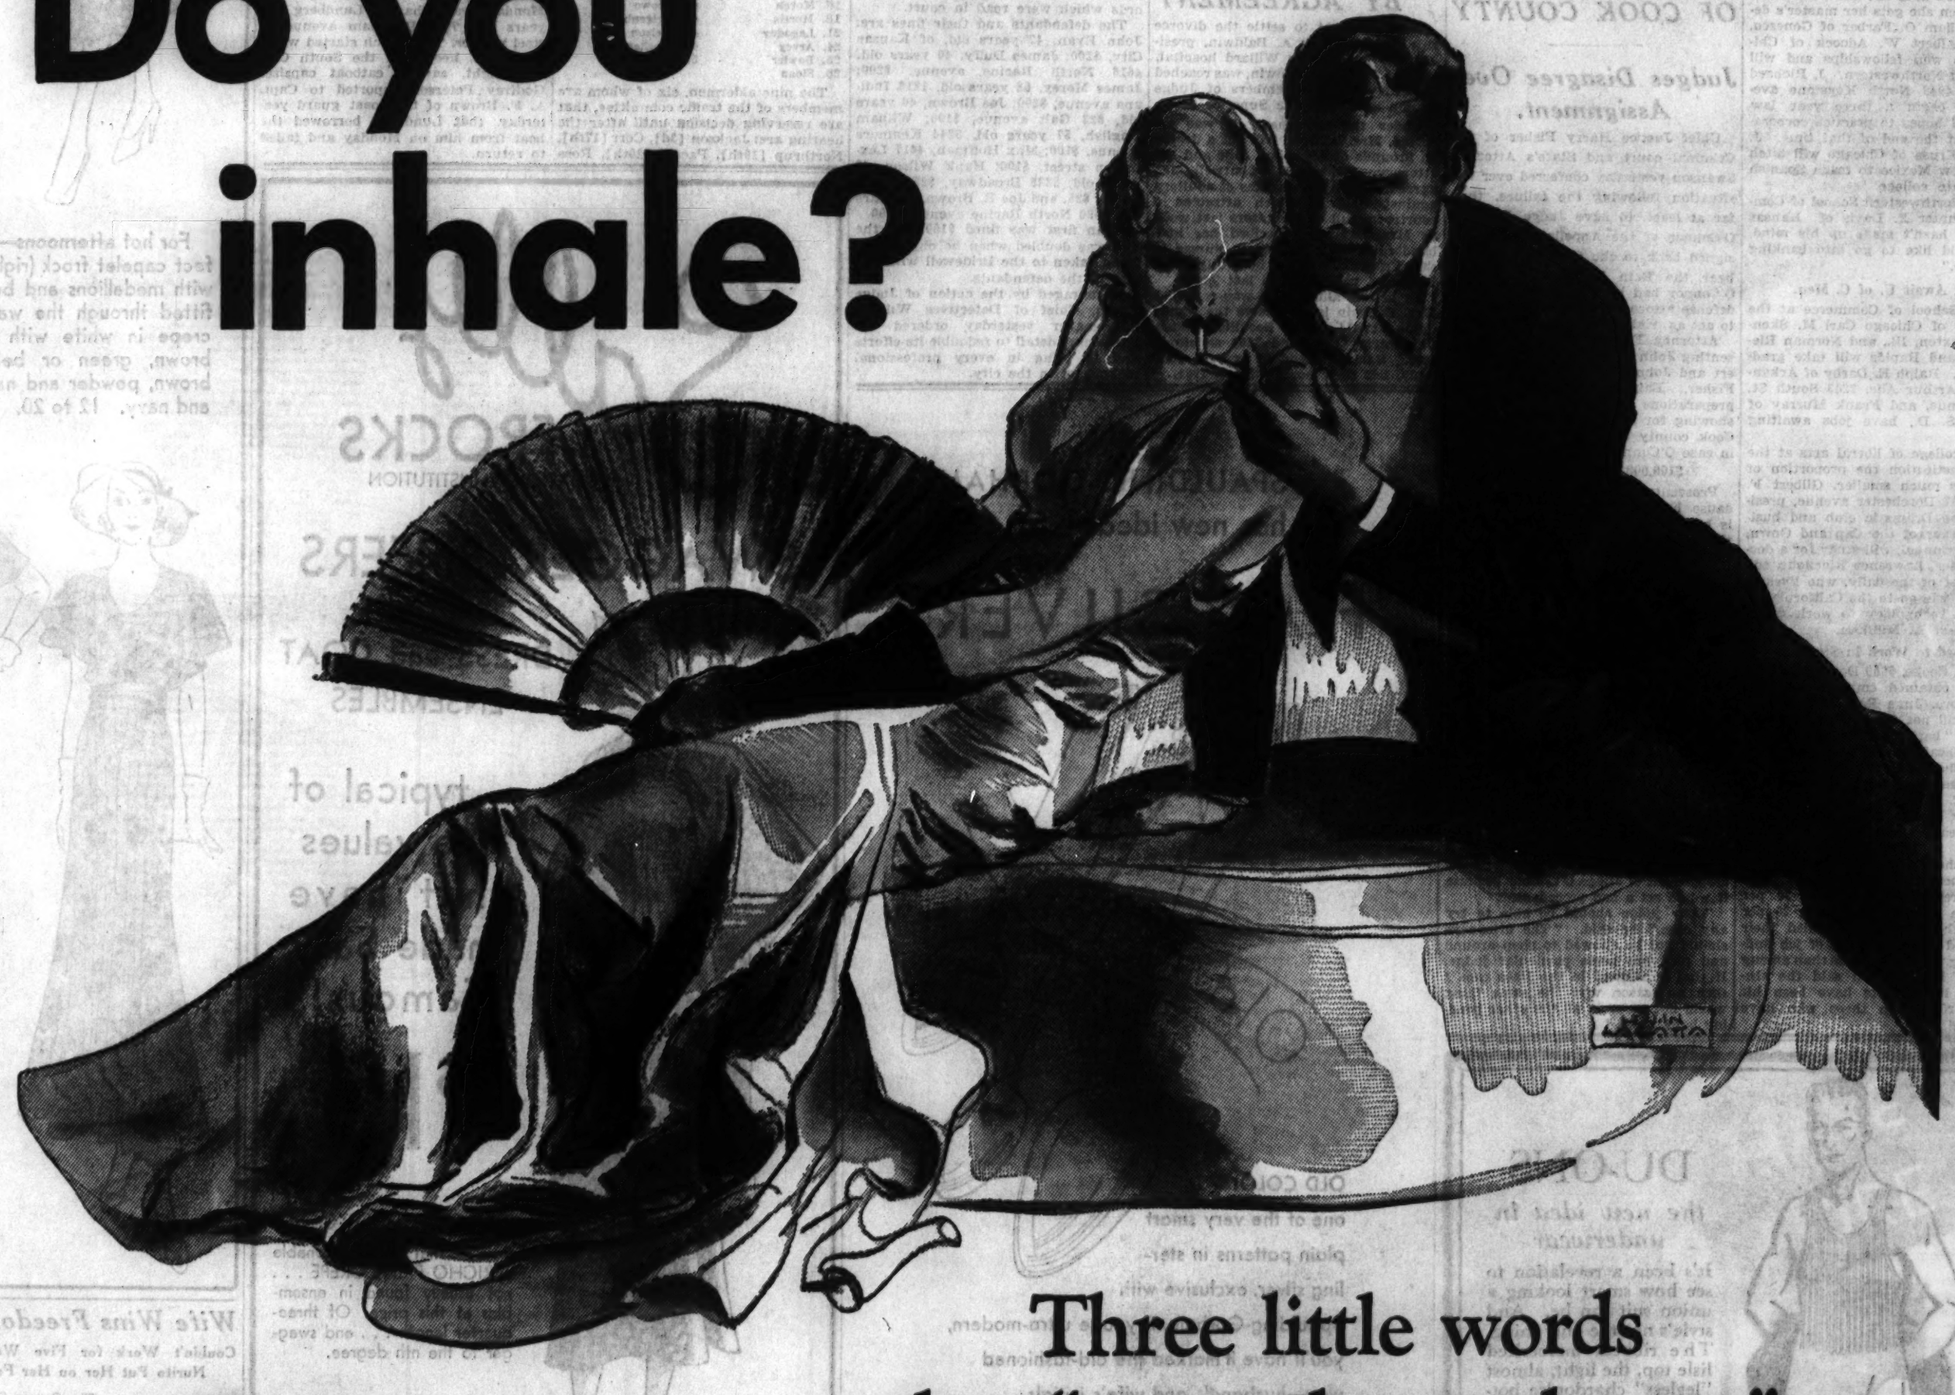
Do you inhale?



Three little words that "upset the apple cart" in the cigarette trade

DO you inhale? Can any question be simpler? And yet—what a furore it has created! The cigarette trade feels that the public has been let in on a sacrosanct secret! "You've upset the apple cart," they say.

Why such anxiety? Certainly the public doesn't fear the question—for everybody inhales—knowingly or unknowingly . . . every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question . . . because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes!

PENALTY BEGINS ON 1930 TAXES; ONLY 45.5% PAID

Collections, However, Are Larger than Year Ago.

The period for paying 1930 taxes without delinquency penalties expired last night. When the penalty date fell, taxpayers had been able and willing to pay only 45.5 per cent of the taxes levied against them.

The levy, which was the largest ever placed on the tax books in Cook county, totaled $290,284,505. Collections up to last night totaled $132,230,264. Beginning today, a penalty of 1 per cent a month will accrue on all unpaid 1930 real estate taxes. The personal property delinquency date fell on May 1, and for the first time in history, 1 per cent a month penalties have been charged against delinquent personalty taxes.

No Last Minute Rush.

There was no last minute rush of payments by large taxpayers yesterday, principally because the big taxpayers made early payments this year to aid the financially distressed governments. Collections yesterday were $3,742,956. On May 15, the penalty date last year on the 1929 levy, they were $22,583,087. Big taxpayers have in the past withheld their payments until the last minute, to save interest.

Otto Woerters, chief clerk in the office of County Treasurer McDonough, estimated that perhaps an additional $2,000,000 in tax payments may be in the mail this morning. If the mail payments run this high, the percentage of the levy paid before the penalty date will mount to 46.2.

This percentage, however, is a better showing than was made on the 1929 levy, when organized tax strikes were at their height. At the penalty date last year approximately $100,000,000 had been paid. This was 36.2 per cent of the total levy of $276,161,268. Thus, this year's collections are 25 per cent higher than last year's for the same period.

Greater Confidence.

Since economic conditions are worse than they were a year ago, two causes were assigned last night for the increase. One is the increased confidence which governmental heads sought to instill in taxpayers by reforming the assessment system under the Kelly bill and by application of governmental economy. The other is the virtual collapse of the organized tax strikes following the Supreme court action in dismissing the Bistor and Cisar suits, in which taxpayers' organizations attacked the validity of the levies.

Mayor Cermak, however, expressed disappointment last night that the measures taken to increase taxpayers' confidence and the drive to urge payment of taxes had not boosted the collections to a higher total.

Increases Delinquent Totals.

The passing of $158,054,241 of unpaid 1930 taxes into the delinquency classification increased the total of delinquent taxes in Cook county to $230,936,084. The totals still delinquent on previous years' levies follow:

Year.	Delinquent taxes.
1927	$ 1,626,747
1928	19,337,972
1929	51,719,124

Collection of the 1929 taxes to the amount of $125,000,000 have been made since the delinquency date fell on that levy last year. Of this approximately $50,000,000 has been collected since the Supreme court gave its rulings.

MASKED GUNMEN ROB WEST SIDE BANK OF $5,000

Four masked gunmen yesterday invaded the Main State bank, 2654 West North avenue, three minutes after the armed guard had gone to lunch, and escaped with $4,000. The robbers worked so rapidly that a burglar alarm, flashed to the West North avenue police station and the Reliance Electric Protective company, 1313 Norman street, failed to bring squads in time to halt their flight.

The bandits, two of whom carried shotguns, forced William B. Thomas, cashier; John Hackel, bookkeeper; two other employés, and six customers to lie on the floor. While two of the men stood guard, the others looted the tellers' cages.

Hackel managed to press the alarm button without being seen by the bandits. After gathering the money, the robbers fled to an automobile at the curb and drove south in Washtenaw avenue.

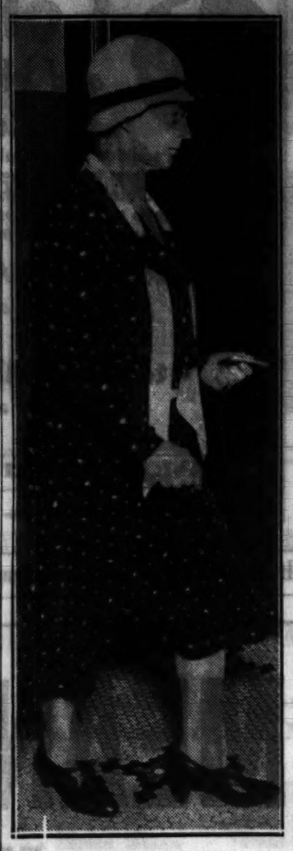
HELD FOR DEATH



DR. LOU DAVIS.

Dr. Lou E. Davis, a woman physician with offices at 3147 Logan square, was held by Shakespeare avenue police last night on a charge of murder by abortion.

She was named in an alleged deathbed statement by Miss Irene Kirschner, 24 years old, of 904 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, who died several weeks ago in the West Suburban hospital. Police were aided in the case by Dr. R. C. Oldfield of the hospital.

Dr. Davis surrendered to the police yesterday and was taken to the county morgue for the inquest. On her request the inquest was continued to June 8 to allow her time to obtain counsel. Her bonds were set at $3,500. She will be arraigned in Felony court today. Earl Currie, 24, of 2109 North Mozart street, charged with accessory before the fact, will be arraigned June 7.

ASKS ALDERMEN, MAYOR TO WORK FOR $1 A YEAR

Moreland Urges Plan as Economy Measure.

Ald. James C. Moreland [41st] introduced a resolution yesterday in the city council suggesting that the aldermen and Mayor Cermak serve as dollar-a-year men until the city's present financial stress is ended.

ALD. J. C. MORELAND.

The resolution pointed out that the 21 per cent pay reduction applied to all city employés since the first of the year has borne heavily on many of the lower salaried workers, and suggested that the mayor and aldermen set an example of economy and self-sacrifice. The proposal was referred to the finance committee.

The council passed and referred to the unemployment committee for further investigation a resolution by Ald. John Toman [23d] for a registration of all unemployed as a means of keeping "Chicago jobs for Chicago people." The resolution provided that an unemployment census be conducted in connection with the general registration of voters by the election board in October, and that the unemployed who register at that time be given credentials showing that they are bona fide residents of Chicago, to be presented when they seek work.

O. K. Hughes Appointment.

The appointment of Edward J. Hughes, former member of the board of review, as deputy commissioner of public works was approved by the council. The job, vacant since Mayor Cermak took office, pays $7,500 a year.

Two proposals to increase the city's fee revenue were presented to the council. An ordinance introduced by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], raising the fees charged peddlers, was referred to the judiciary committee. Ald. Rowan estimated it would increase the revenue by $174,000.

The council adopted an order introduced by Ald. James B. Bowler [35th] instructing the corporation counsel to prepare an ordinance revising the method of issuing permits for driveways, signs, etc. Instead of requiring permittees to post bonds guaranteeing the city against loss from damage suits, the city would assume such liability and charge permittees a fee of $10 a year. Ald. Bowler estimated that the measure would produce $500,000 a year.

The Federated Charities were given permission to hold their annual tag day Sept. 12, and the council provided that membership in the organization shall be restricted to 50 individual charities. There are now about 27 members.

The petition of the Sheridan Center association to change the names of portions of Clark street, Wentworth avenue and Vincennes avenue to Broadway, making the latter thoroughfare a continuous street through the city, was referred to the committee on streets and alleys, which will hold a public hearing on the proposal.

1,500 Witness Dedication of World Fair Science Hall

The huge U shaped hall of science for Chicago's 1933 World's Fair was dedicated with elaborate ceremonies yesterday, just one year before the light of the star Arcturus will officially open the exposition. The program at the exposition site climaxed observance of World's Fair day throughout the city.

Factory whistles and bells were sounded at noon, to be supplanted in the afternoon by the first demonstration of the 25 chime carillon on the tower of the hall of science. Elsewhere special programs and discussions were held in the public schools and in meetings of civic groups.

More than 1,500 persons attended the dedicatory exercises, which were held on the south end of the terrace overlooking the court of the hall of science, which is formed by the two wings of the building stretching to the east. This court will accommodate 80,000 persons.

A fireworks display was staged at twilight. It lasted for forty-five minutes and was watched by 5,000 persons.

Dawes Tells Fair's Theme.

The central theme of the exposition will be the progress of civilization during the 100 years of Chicago's existence, Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Century of Progress, declared at the dedication.

"This is especially appropriate," said Mr. Dawes, "because this period represents also the great period of development of the physical sciences and their application to the services of man."

Mr. Dawes introduced the principal speaker, Dr. Frank B. Jewett, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company and chairman of the science advisory committee of the National Research council. The committee consists of 400 scientists working on exhibits for the exposition.

Dr. Jewett said that science, more than any other single factor, has influenced human affairs during the last century, but "we have lagged egregiously in the development of our understanding and exercise of the social factors which these new things have introduced into human living." He said that in some quarters a senseless fear of science had arisen.

Explains Exhibit's Aims.

The mission of the hall of science, according to Dr. Jewett, will be to afford a better understanding of the scientific factor in life.

"No amount of such understanding can even remotely touch the elements of human greed, avarice and misuse of public trust," said Dr. Jewett, "but real understanding of the underlying forces will greatly simplify the solution of many problems."

The invocation at the dedicatory ceremonies was delivered by the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, Catholic auxiliary bishop of Chicago. Selections were given by the Roosevelt High school symphonic choir.

Fair officials explained that the star Arcturus was selected to supply the energy which will strike a photo-electric cell through a telescope and throw a switch to start the exposition. It takes 40 years for the star's light to reach the earth, they pointed out, and 1933 will be the 40th anniversary of Chicago's last World's Fair.

Fire Routs Four Families from Apartment Building

Fire early this morning routed members of four families from the three story apartment building at 1507 South Harding avenue. The two dozen occupants of the building, many of them children, were warned of the fire by the cries of Louis Fein, a tenant.

Five candidates for the aldermanic vacancy in the 22d ward had withdrawn last night, the deadline for withdrawals, leaving nineteen in the race. Objections have been filed to the petition of eighteen still in the race. The petition of Henry Sonnenschein, secretary to Mayor Cermak, is the only one which has not been attacked. The election will be held June 21.

In answer to published reports that he will have three public salaried positions if elected alderman, Mr. Sonnenschein yesterday said:

"Under the civil service law I am secretary to the president of the county board, a position which pays a salary greater than my combined salaries as a member of the legislature and as secretary to the mayor. I took a leave of absence without pay to aid Mayor Cermak and while I was absent in Springfield I received no city salary.

"If elected alderman I will draw only an alderman's salary.

WOMAN KILLED CROSSING STREET WITH UMBRELLA

With an umbrella held close to protect her from the rain yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Mary Atkinson, 60 years old, 1119 North Lockwood avenue, failed to see an automobile speeding eastward in Division street beside a street car. She stepped from the car tracks and was killed by the automobile. The driver, Glen Martin, 1315 North Mansfield avenue, was not held.

This death and one other increased the Cook county automobile toll for 1930 to 464. The victim:

Mary Lou White, 4 years old, 1838 South 22d avenue, Maywood. Fatally injured by a delivery truck early last night while playing in a pool of rain water near Harrison street and South 20th avenue. The driver, James Pringle, 22, of 3459 West Herrison street, was held.

Edward Fenel, 3 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fenel of Town Line road, north of Gurnee, in Lake county, died last evening from a skull fracture suffered Tuesday when struck by an automobile.

N. Y. C. Road to Restore Exposition Flyer Train

The Exposition Flyer of the New York Central railroad, which carried eastern passengers to the World's Fair of 1893 in Chicago, will reappear on June 26 for regular service between Chicago and New York. The revived name will be applied to the train now operated as the North Shore Limited. In 1893 the Exposition Flyer consisted of a locomotive weighing 100 tons and four wooden Wagner palace cars of 40 tons each. The new World's Fair train will have a Hudson type engine of 313 tons and steel cars weighing 160 tons each.

TOSS STENCH BOMB AT CLEANERS.

A stench bomb was thrown into the doorway of the Peacock Cleaning and Dyeing company shop at 6208 Winthrop avenue last night by one of two men who escaped in a car.

work the regular teachers who heretofore have been idle part of the school day while special teachers were instructing their pupils.

Abolishment of the architect's department at a saving of $400,000 is also recommended. The Strayer group advocates the designing of school buildings by private architects, claiming that the board will thereby get better designs and lower construction costs.

The proposed saving of $1,050,000 in maintenance costs is the difference between what has been appropriated this year and what was spent last year. The report asserts that wages for maintenance are too high.

The practicable reduction in administration expense is placed at $331,639. That would be accomplished by placing the school business administration under the superintendent of schools and the consequent elimination of jobs.

Supremacy for Superintendent.

From the viewpoint of Dr. Strayer this proposed reorganization of the school administrative offices is probably the most important recommendation in the report. Under this plan the superintendent of schools would be made the chief executive officer of the system.

The office of business manager, now paying $12,000 a year, would be abolished. All of the business manager's bureaus would be placed under the superintendent of schools, in charge of an "assistant superintendent" as manager of business affairs.

The superintendent would have complete direction not only of education, but of the operation and maintenance of school buildings, buying of coal, supplies, purchase of sites, construction of buildings and all other business of the board of education.

Reduction for Attorney.

The cost and personnel of the school attorney's office would be reduced and he would be "without coördinate authority with that of the superintendent of schools." The school secretary would be relieved of pay rolls, which would be transferred to the superintendent of schools together with all auditing and financial record keeping of the schools.

Making the superintendent of schools the dominating officer in the system has been advocated by the National Educational association for at least two years, and it is reported as having been adopted in Cleveland.

It would require changes in Illinois law, but the survey report says "there is no other way by which the board can reasonably hope to secure the most efficient service from its executive staff." The board itself is advised to abolish its committees as another step toward efficiency. Furthermore, the report says, the board should not be controlled by the mayor.

Room for Improvement.

Dr. Strayer said that Chicago has good public schools, but that they can be improved considerably.

"The basic criterion of the entire school system is the growth of the learner," says the report. The survey indicates that the "learners" do not grow as they should. The kindergarten facilities are referred to as "inadequate." Seventeen to twenty per cent of the first grade pupils fail of promotion, and the report says that the nonpromotion throughout the elementary grades "is higher than is commonly found."

The report says that the reason given by the teachers is that the "curriculum is largely static." The experts refer to the curriculum as "somewhat flexible and traditional" and add that there is "no clear cut policy on promotions in the elementary schools."

Lack of Supervision Charged.

It is charged by the report that there is a "lack of effective supervision in the elementary schools," and that they "lack complete and satisfactory school records."

In the high schools there is "a marked deviation from desirable standards" and the failures among high school pupils are too many, according to the report. In the Normal college, the report says, the equipment is not modern and the courses should be revised, and it adds that there is "need for a critical study of the work done by Crane college."

Of more immediate concern are the recommendations of the Strayer survey for immediate benefits to the school children.

One immediate improvement recommended is more seats. The school trustees and school officials have been complaining for two years because they say that 67,000 pupils are attending half day sessions or are attending classes in rented buildings, basements, or portables.

As a means of eliminating the shortage of seats the report recommends bond issues for new buildings.

Dr. Strayer finds that the overcrowding in the high schools is so serious as to interfere with the proper functioning of the educational program. In those schools he reports the seat shortage as 39,771. There are about 30,000 freshmen—ninth grade pupils—in the senior high schools. Dr. Strayer would move 10,000 to 12,000 of these to junior high schools, which are not crowded. In fact, they have about as many seats as pupils.

Dr. Strayer recommends that the board transfer the same number of seventh grade pupils from the junior high schools back to the "surplus rooms available in the neighboring elementary schools."

The Idle School Rooms.

In the elementary schools Dr. Strayer reports a gross shortage of 601 classrooms, but he also reports that there is a "gross surplus of 200 rooms." The principals reported to Business Manager Howard Savage last week that there are 380 vacant rooms, instead of 200, as reported by Dr. Strayer. If there are 380 vacant rooms Dr. Strayer's plan would permit 16,400 pupils to be shifted around, instead of 10,000 or 12,000.

In order to get enough rooms to transfer the surplus seventh grade pupils from the junior high schools to the elementary schools, the survey report recommends that "all manual training classes, cooking classes, and sewing and printing classes in the elementary schools below the seventh grade be closed, except for one or two rooms for project and activity work."

This is the first admission of Dr. Strayer's group that anything in the public schools could be eliminated. In his preliminary report he urged that the schools be closed rather than eliminate anything. He said then that he did not want the school system "wrecked."

Strayer Thanked for Report.

After the full report had been presented to the board yesterday, President Lewis E. Myers and Trustee Joseph P. Savage both thanked Dr. Strayer and said they thought he had done a good job.

Mayor Cermak, informed that the report of the survey had cited the law governing the independence of the board from political interference and control by the mayor, said:

"The mayor is held responsible for the board of education in the public mind, although he has nothing to do or say except to appoint the trustees. Dr. Strayer was appointed by the 'solid six' trustees who are hooked up with the old Republican city hall regime and Len Small. I am satisfied that Dr. Strayer is only a political appointee."

Economies effected in the operation of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium since Mayor Cermak took office last year will make it possible to reduce the 1931 tax levy for the institution by 21.8 per cent, the mayor announced yesterday. He also stated that the 1932 budget for the sanitarium is 29.4 per cent below the 1931 appropriations of $2,831,276.

The reduction in the 1931 tax rate was made possible by the $800,000 which Mayor Cermak saved in the last six months of the year. He discharged 77 employes at the sanitarium when he took office.

Service to patients has not been impaired by the reduction in staff and expenditures, Mayor Cermak said. The staff, numbering 910 when he took office, will be reduced to 788 by July 1. In addition the sanitarium has taken over the care of 100 "open cases" of tuberculosis patients who are quartered in the old Chicago and Cook county school for boys. This new activity added $77,000 to the 1932 budget.

8 FOUND GUILTY IN PEORIA KIDNAP TRIAL; 3 GO FREE

Jury Is Out All Night to Reach Verdict.

Peoria, Ill., June 1. — [Special.] — Within twelve hours after they were given the case a jury of twelve men returned verdicts finding eight of the eleven defendants guilty of the kidnaping of Dr. James W. Parker. Three were found not guilty.

Sentences of twenty-five years each were specified for James W. Betson, Claude "Red" Evans, Arlo Stoops, and Cecil Menninger, alleged leaders of the kidnaping ring; Joseph H. Pursifull, lawyer and politician who acted as the "go-between" was given a five year sentence; Raymond Stoops, 15 years; Homer Massey, five years; Dwight Bartlett, seven years.

Massey and Bartlett were guards over Dr. Parker while the latter was held captive in Stoops' home near Banner, Ill., for 18 days.

Bessie Stoops, 34, and her son, Dean, 17, together with Edward Woodford, 27, farm hand, were exonerated.

The jury retired at 9:17 p. m. Tuesday and completed their task at 4:25 a. m., after which they retired and reported in court at 9:10 a. m. today.

Practically all of the defendants served notice of appeal from the conviction.

Dr. Parker was kidnaped from his home on March 14, and released on April 1. Kidnapers first demanded $50,000 for his release. This sum was later reduced to $5,000.

Agents of Chicago's Secret Six were called into the case after Pursifull approached the Parker family on March 28, and they aided in rounding up the group.

Confessions were obtained from all but Betson, Pursifull and Evans.

TAX MORATORIUM FOR CITY EMPLOYES ILLEGAL, MAYOR TOLD

There is no legal way of granting school teachers, or other unpaid public employes, moratoriums on their taxes, County Judge Jarecki informed Mayor Cermak yesterday.

"I am keenly interested in the situation of the school teachers who, through no fault of theirs, are unable to pay taxes on their property," Judge Jarecki's letter stated. "Under the law the County court may relieve the penalty [on delinquent taxes] to the extent of 50 per cent. The court is willing to coöperate in the relief of the overburdened, unemployed and otherwise unfortunate taxpayers, but is bound by the laws of the state and obliged to respect and enforce them."

The delinquent tax penalty is 1 per cent a month, or 12 per cent a year, which would be cut in half under the plan proposed by Judge Jarecki.

Civic Education Group Will Meet Tomorrow

Members of the Civic Education association will meet tomorrow afternoon at the Stevens hotel. The speakers will include Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university, who presented his report on the Chicago schools yesterday; Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan; Mrs. W. S. Heffernan, school trustee, and Arthur G. Deaver, a district superintendent. The association is a new organization of Chicago teachers which hopes to unite all teachers.

NAME J. A. ZIEMBA SUPERINTENDENT OF SANITARIUM

Joseph A. Ziemba, head of the tax extension department in the county clerk's office, yesterday was appointed general superintendent of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium.

He took office immediately. The job has been vacant since Mayor Cermak took office and the duties of the general superintendent have been carried out by Dr. Peter Winner, medical superintendent of the sanitarium. The job pays $6,500 a year.

John Schwaba, a brother of Judge Peter M. Schwaba of the Superior court, was appointed to succeed Ziemba in the county clerk's office. He owns a drug store at 3600 Diversey avenue and is active in politics.

No More Piles

Thousands Praise This Great Internal Remedy That Freed Them from Awful Pile Misery.

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new remedy known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

Don't even think of an operation or waste time on external remedies until you have tried this quick acting yet harmless internal medicine.

It was Dr. J. S. Leonhardt who discovered that piles are internal, caused by blood congestion in the lower bowels. It was he who discovered the internal medicine—HEM-ROID—that quickly ends Piles by stimulating the circulation, healing and restoring the weak, flabby, almost dead parts.

Now Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer from piles to benefit by his discovery. So Walgreen's are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will positively end piles in any form or money back.

On that honorable basis, get HEM-ROID Tablets today and say to your Piles, GOODBYE FOREVER.

Business Is Held Back by Rate Chaos

Regulation of rail rates may be irksome at times, but it serves one outstanding good purpose; it makes the rail rate a dependable factor in business.

Rail rates must be published and strictly adhered to. Every shipper knows what his rate is and what his competitors' rates are and can act accordingly.

This is not the case with less regulated forms of transportation. Some have published rates to which they adhere, but most of them are under no such compulsion.

The results are economic chaos, disruption in business, another unstable factor to complicate competition and retard the return of normal times.

This much can be agreed: if regulation of rail rates is a good thing, equal regulation of rates for all other transportation is a good thing.

SHIPPERS CAN DEPEND ON RAIL SERVICE AND RATES

"WHAT DO YOU MEAN... Maps are getting smaller?"

"People drive faster," explains E. V. Shireman, Indianapolis furniture salesman of 928 East Maple Road. "I generally run my Packard 60 to 65 miles an hour—have to, to cover my territory." "But what about your car?" asks Bob Casey, famous Chicago News reporter.

An Interview by ROBERT J. CASEY

Chicago Daily News Reporter

It is the observation of E. V. Shireman of Indianapolis that the maps are getting smaller every day—people drive faster. Mr. Shireman is a furniture salesman whose territory embraces all of Indiana, Cincinnati and Louisville. He drives a Packard Custom 8 and covers between 800 and a thousand miles a week the year 'round. The total mileage on his present car is 71,000 miles.

"There was a time when my territory would have been pretty hard to cover. Now it's no trick at all. Here in Indianapolis I'm about two hours from any of my customers—less than that if I'm in a hurry.

"I generally run along at between 60 and 65 miles an hour and there's where the oil gets to be an important factor. After experimenting with other oils, I finally settled on Iso-Vis. At every oil change I put in 12 quarts—then I don't have to pay attention to it until the next change. Speed doesn't burn it up so fast and city driving doesn't dilute it."

Mr. Shireman's 71,000 trouble-free miles prove again what Iso-Vis has demonstrated in laboratory tests and in A. A. A. tests on the Indianapolis Speedway—Positive Lubrication Protection. Iso-Vis (a Standard Oil product) will not thin out from dilution. See the Ball ana Bottle Test at Standard Oil service stations and dealers.

HUSZAR WEEPS AS HE PLEADS FOR A PAROLE

Letter Protests Release of Auto Terrorist.

Joseph (Indian Joe) Huszar, former operator of a speed trap in Broadview, yesterday wept as he pleaded for a parole at a meeting of the board of pardons and paroles at Joliet penitentiary. Huszar, sentenced to 1 to 14 years for assaulting motorists whom he arrested on the pretext that they were speeding, has completed his minimum term.

He argued that he had been persecuted and submitted prison medical reports to show that he is suffering from heart trouble. A mental health report from prison physicians recommended that he be hospitalized in some state institution.

Protest Is Read.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller protested against granting a parole to Huszar in a letter read to the board. The board will rule on the petition in a meeting next week at Springfield.

Lawrence J. O'Brien, a brother of "Smiling Jack" O'Brien, who was hanged for the murder of a Chicago policeman, also requested parole. Lawrence is serving a 1 to 10 years' sentence for robbery. Two other members of the family have come under the supervision of prison authorities.

Robert Shallberg, convicted of embezzling $1,109,000 from the People's Trust and Savings bank of Moline, also petitioned for parole on the first of three sentences against him. He was sentenced to serve 10 years on each of three counts, the sentences to run consecutively. If he should win parole he cannot be released, but must start serving the second sentence.

Edward [Toddy] Dillon, 26 years old, who is serving five concurrent terms of 1 to 20 years for robbery, appeared before the board and at his request was granted a continuance of his parole plea to November. Dillon, a former college student, and scion of a wealthy St. Louis family, was arrested in front of a loop theater in April, 1931. With him was a young girl, daughter of a manufacturer. Police learned that Dillon while earning a living as a robber mingled with wealthy Chicago acquaintances. Nearly seven years ago he was questioned in connection with the murder of his father, Dr. William A. Dillon, but was cleared.

NEW JUNKER RULE IN GERMANY RECALLS DAYS OF THE KAISER

Junkers, a major influence in the days of the kaiser, again leaped into the German saddle yesterday with the formation of a new cabinet under Maj. Franz von Papen. The Junkers are members of noble Prussian families who belong to the landed aristocracy. Their chief aim in life has ever been to attain social and political supremacy, an aim which was first realized under the leadership of Bismarck in 1862. In pre-war days it was their custom to adopt the military profession and so enter the caste circle of the officers' corps, thereby imparting to it a distinctive and haughty tone of aloofness from the civilian population.

In striving to preserve intact exclusive privileges belonging by their tradition to the "well born," they have caused the dictionary definition of a junker as "one who is characterized by narrow mindedness and an overbearing attitude."

Since the war the Junkers have kept their aims intact but their influence in a republic necessarily waned. Even so, the Republican government has "toadied" to them by granting large subsidies to enable them to retain their great East Prussian estates. And it was a move by Chancellor Bruening to deprive the Junkers of parts of their land in favor of the unemployed, which contributed to his "ouster" by President von Hindenburg, who is inclined to be pro-Junker, and opened the door for the ascension of Junkers to the government.

GERMANY GETS CABINET PICKED BY EX-KAISER

New Regime Dominated by Junkers; Hitler Aloof.

on by his wife, nee Von Treppenfeld, who has a strong personal grudge against certain Republican ministers. Social intrigues and questions of precedence among the wives of ministers played a big part in the plot to unseat Bruening.

Baron von Gayl is an official representing the East Prussian national council. Baron von Braun is also a junker connected with the Raiffeisen company, a cooperative association of big and small farmers.

Baron Eltz von Ruebenach is an official of the state railroad. He spent three years in the German consulate at New York from 1911 to 1914. He is close to the conservative Centrists, but his brother is a Hitlerite.

Warmbold Former Bruening Man.

Dr. Warmbold is a former official of the German dye trust. He left the Bruening cabinet when the former chancellor refused to approve his plan for partial inflation.

Baron von Neurath was embassador to Rome and close to Premier Mussolini before he went to London. He has repeatedly declared that he believes Germany's future is safe only if she works closely with the Anglo-Saxon nations. This brings him in slight conflict with Chancellor von Papen, who is engaged in negotiations with France for an alliance against Russia.

The Centrists at a caucus today formulated a resolution criticizing "the irresponsible elements who through intrigues have interrupted the labor of national reconstruction."

Without the votes of the Centrists Von Papen is in a precarious position. He relies on the Hitlerites, the Nationalists, the German People's party, the Economic party and the Farmers' party, totaling 225 votes.

He also hopes to induce some of the members of the "Christian Social Service" to vote for him, and he is bringing pressure to bear on the Bavarian People's party. The latter, however, refused to allow George Schaetzel, minister of transportatin in the Bruening government, to remain in the cabinet, despite Von Papen's offers.

It is, therefore, reckoned that a maximum of 225 votes is at the disposal of the new ministry. The enemies of the new régime, the Socialists, Communists and Democrats, have a total of 234 votes. The Centrists and the Bavarian People's party, with their 87 votes, will decide the fate of the cabinet.

Prepare for Elections.

Since Germany doubts Von Papen's ability to control the reichstag, it is getting ready for new elections.

"Let the campaign come soon and be short," Hitlerite leaders urge.

The Prussian diet reassembled peacefully today. To prevent a recurrence of the Communist-Fascist fights such as occurred last week, the Hitlerite president posted police in and around the building. The diet agreed to postpone the election of a Prussian premier until June 19.

Despite police precautions, clashes occurred today in Berlin's main traffic center, Potsdamer Platz, where communists staged a demonstration. Hitlerites also had an encounter with the police this noon.

Bruening Has Heart Attack.

BERLIN, June 1.—(AP)—Heinrich Bruening, who carried a tremendous load of care during his two years as chancellor, was sent to bed today with what his doctors described as a nervous heart attack. He was unable to receive Chancellor Von Papen, his successor, who called early this morning. The doctors said, however, that his condition was not alarming, but was simply a reaction to the excitement of the last week.

Quash U. S. Indictment.

New York, June 1.—(AP)—A 16 year old indictment, charging Maj. Franz von Papen, new German chancellor, with a plot to blow up the Welland canal in Canada, has been quashed, it was learned today. The indictment, returned by a federal grand jury here on April 17, 1916, was ordered nolle prossed by Federal District Attorney George Z. Medalie last March 8.

Germany's Deficit Nears $405,600,000 as Year Ends

BERLIN, June 1.—(AP)—At the end of the fiscal year on March 31, Germany faced a budget deficit of 1,690,000,000 marks [approximately $405,600,000], it was shown today with the publication of official figures. The ordinary budget for 1931-'32 showed a deficit of 449,100,000 marks, and the extraordinary budget a deficit of 151,800,000 marks. The balance of the 1,690,000,000 total consisted of shortages brought forward from the previous year.

Ex-Envoy to U. S. Becomes Cuban Secretary of State

HAVANA, Cuba, June 1.—(AP)—Orestes Ferrara, former ambassador to the United States, was sworn in today as secretary of state in President Machado's cabinet.

Pat Roche's Auto, Stripped by Thieves, Is Recovered

ROYAL C. VILAS WEDS SECRETARY; HIS THIRD WIFE

Royal C. Vilas, wealthy manufacturer and sportsman, and his secretary, Miss Myrtle P. Hoglund of 525 North Leclaire avenue, were married on Tuesday, it became known last night. They are reported to be in Florida on their honeymoon.

In the marriage license Mr. Vilas gave his age as 52 years and his home as being in the Glenview Country club region, Glenview. Miss Hoglund said she was 27 years old.

Mr. Vilas has been married twice before. His first wife divorced him. His second wife, the former Mrs. R. C. Vance, whom he married in 1922, also divorced him. The first Mrs. Vilas ended her life in 1926. Mr. Vilas is the father of Royal Jr., 22 years old, and Virginia, well known golfer.

PASCHEN $25,000 GIFT TO HOOVER CAMPAIGN BARED

But Court Bars Testimony on Contribution.

Offers to show Chris Paschen's political contributions in 1927 and 1928—including a $25,000 contribution to President Hoover's campaign fund—were made to Federal Judge Barnes yesterday by Attorney Cassius Poust, Paschen's chief counsel in his income tax evasion trial. The Hoover fund, said Poust, was given to the late James W. Good, Hoover's first secretary of war.

Poust made the offer with the jury excluded from the courtroom, but the recital was eagerly followed by an attentive crowd of spectators, lawyers, and newspaper men. Judge Barnes refused to permit the evidence to be presented to the jury.

Paschen Again on Stand.

The offer came with Paschen on the witness stand, where he has been on direct examination for three days, seeking to prove by his business records that he did not owe $114,000 income taxes for 1927 and 1928. Poust was trying to show that in the A. B. Anderson bank account, kept by Paschen in the Foreman National bank, numerous campaign contributions had been deposited which could not be considered as income.

"Paschen had ten other accounts and we cannot say just how much of these campaign funds were in the Anderson account," said Poust, "but we believe we should be allowed to list the contributions."

"If you can show that the contributions went into the Anderson account, you may do so," Judge Barnes ruled.

"It is hard to separate the political money," Poust replied, "but we are sure of at least one contribution which was made out to A. B. Anderson."

Because Poust wished to relate the substance of the offer of evidence, the jury was excluded and Poust began:

"I offer to show that in the spring of 1927 the defendant, then building commissioner, raised funds for the mayoralty campaign and turned over between $30,000 and $40,000. This money was placed in one of his bank accounts before he turned it over and was given him in cash by one of his employes when he asked for it."

Poust did not offer to give the names of those who made the contributions.

Offers to Call a Former Mayor.

The government objected and was sustained. Poust then offered to call the former Republican mayor as a witness to prove this point and also that Paschen contributed about the same amount, along with the former mayor and Homer Galpin, then Republican county chairman, to make up a party deficit later the same year. Galpin would corroborate this testimony, said Poust.

"We offer to show that in 1928 Paschen as chairman of the Republican finance committee, supporting Small for governor and Crowe for state's attorney, collected about $175,000 and he believes this money went into the Anderson account while in his keeping," Poust continued. "He also raised $25,000 for the election of President Hoover and this money was given to James W. Good. It was raised by the Hoover Building Industries of Illinois campaign committee.

Recalls Flood Relief Funds.

"I also offer to show that Paschen aided in flood relief work and raised money for it which went temporarily into one of his bank accounts. Further, that in 1928 Paschen was given $10,000 by the then corporation counsel, Samuel Ettelson, for the campaign fund being raised by the city administration cabinet officers. William J. Balmer contributed $2,500 and donations from more than 20 others also went to Paschen and into his bank account for a time."

Objections made after each of these offers were sustained by Judge Barnes, who ruled that Poust might submit the one contribution he was certain was made out to A. B. Anderson for a separate ruling.

Poust told reporters at a recess that he was not decided if he would offer this evidence. He would not name the person who made the contribution. He indicated, however, that the amount was about $1,000.

Wished to Be Sure of Funds.

At the close of court Paschen said that he kept the Anderson account under that name because he was subject to suits as building commissioner and wished to be certain he had sufficient money at all times to run his building, cleaning, and tuckpointing business.

He sought to dispel any mystery about a brown envelope he kept in a trust account at the Foreman bank, saying that he kept securities and cash in it.

PAID $500 TOO MUCH, PLANE CHASE FINDS WOMAN ABOARD SHIP

New York, June 1.—[Special.]—Telegraph and telephone wires hummed and an airplane headed here from Schenectady as fast as it could fly, the result of all the activity being that Mrs. Ursula Urba sailed for Europe $500 poorer but with all the money she should have had.

Glen Steele, Schenectady postal clerk, gave her $2,500 instead of the proper amount of $2,000 when she withdrew the full balance from her postal savings account yesterday. By the time he discovered the error today, Mrs. Urba and her husband were about to go aboard the Mauretania, on which they were sailing for Europe.

Steele chartered an airplane to take him to Newark, and arranged for an automobile to be waiting there to take him on to Hoboken, whence the ship sails. Meanwhile, the police of Schenectady communicated with the police in Hoboken.

Inspector G. A. Kiley went onto the Mauretania, found Mrs. Urba, and asked her about the overpayment. She ripped open a new seam in the lining of her coat, and there, sure enough, was $500 more than had been due to her. She handed the extra cash over to Kiley and was told she could sail without further trouble.

NUN BARES SCAR AS COURT PROOF OF TILTON CURE

Heard as a Witness for "Healer."

A nun of the Felician order bared a scar on her shoulder before Judge Desort and a jury in Criminal court yesterday as evidence that Old Doc Lester Tilton, on trial with two others on charges of conspiracy to violate the medical practice act, had cured her of cancer.

The nun, Sister Mary Modesta, now superior of an Evanston parochial school, testified that a lump developed on her shoulder in 1930. Physicians at an Oak Park clinic recommended a radium treatment and a Chicago surgeon advised an operation, she said.

"Instead I went to the convent clinic," the nun testified. "I took Dr. Tilton's medicine for 16 days. The lump came out, leaving a scar, and I have had no recurrence of the trouble since."

Defense Attorney Stuart B. Krohn suggested that the jury see the scar. The nun lifted the coif of her habit and showed it. On suggestion of Mr. Krohn, Dr. J. P. Simons of Northwestern university, medical adviser to the prosecution, also viewed the scar.

Cross-examined by Prosecutor Charles A. Bellows, the nun testified that after the cure she became secretary to Sister Mary Wenceslaus, superior of the Felician convent at 3800 Peterson road, where Tilton conducted his clinic. During the thirteen months of its operation the clinic's income, she said, was $19,000, of which $6,052 was paid to Tilton for his medicine and $7,134 for other expenses.

Harry de Joannis, a professional promoter who, with Dr. Joseph Duffy, is on trial with Tilton, preceded Sister Modesta on the stand. It was his ambition to make the Tilton remedies a national enterprise, De Joannis said.

Jury Deadlocked on Bank Robbery Case

After deliberating eight hours a jury in Judge George Fred Rush's Criminal court was locked up late last night, deadlocked over the fate of Samuel Davis, 24 years old, 1824 Berteau avenue, charged with complicity in the robbery of the Empire Trust and Savings bank, 3256 North Crawford avenue. The bank was robbed of $13,000 on Nov. 2, 1931. In an alleged confession Davis said he acted as a lookout during the holdup. In court yesterday Davis repudiated the confession, asserting it was obtained from him by police brutality.

JOBLESS APPEAL TO KEEP RELIEF STATIONS OPEN

Failure to Sell Bonds to Force Closing.

A delegation of the Chicago Workers' Committee on Unemployment will call at 10 o'clock this morning on Mayor Cermak to urge him to help keep open the county relief stations.

The stations, now supplying 110,000 families with food and other necessities, are to close on Sunday, according to an announcement made to the county board yesterday by W. S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois emergency relief commission.

"We had hoped until yesterday that we could sell $6,250,000 worth of state tax warrants and obtain funds to continue relief work, but there are no buyers," explained Mr. Reynolds.

Closing Called a Tragedy.

The threatened shutdown of the relief stations resulted in meeting of the workers' committee and other charity agencies at the Central Y. M. C. A. last night. Among those present were Miss Harriet Vittum and other prominent settlement and social workers.

"The closing of these stations would be tragic," said Miss Vittum. "These unemployed people and their families must eat. We hope that Mayor Cermak and other responsible officials will do their utmost to find purchasers of the tax warrants to enable the relief work to go on. It is up to the banks to buy the warrants."

Appeal to Bankers.

The delegation which will call on the mayor today will be headed by Karl Borders, chairman of the workers' committee. Another committee, headed by Miss Lea Taylor, a settlement worker, will call on the state relief commission and on five large banks. The purpose of the visits, it was stated, will be to induce bankers to take up the warrants.

There are 33 local units of the Chicago workers' committee. The organization, Miss Vittum said, is comprised of unemployed men. It is nonpartisan, she emphasized, and not communistic.

Among its advisers and helpers are the Rev. Norman Barr, Miss Jessie Binford, Prof. Sophonisba Breckenridge, Prof. Robert Morss Lovett, and Dr. James Yard.

Federal Kidnaping Bill Approved by Committee

Washington, D. C., June 1.—(AP)—The Cochran bill to make interstate kidnaping a federal crime punishable by death was approved today by the house judiciary committee.

The bill was amended by the committee to provide that the death penalty should not apply when a jury recommends mercy.

PAUL AND BISHOP IN ARMY BALLOON APPEAR WINNERS

Omaha, Neb., June 1.—(AP)—Coaxing their big hydrogen bag through stormy skies to establish two new unofficial records, Lieuts. Wilfrid J. Paul and John H. Bishop—Uncle Sam's "harmony twins"—tonight appeared certain winners of the 1932 national ballooning championship.

Paul and Bishop, the latter a regular army sergeant competing as a reserve lieutenant, brought their army No. 2 balloon down thirteen miles north of Hatton, Sask., early today to win the national balloon race and gain possession of the Litchfield trophy. The victory also assures them a place on the United States team in the international race in Switzerland next September.

Shatter Record.

By reaching Hatton, 901 miles northwest of Omaha, the pair assured themselves, barring disqualification, of a new distance record for balloons of 35,000 cubic feet capacity. They likewise shattered the existing endurance record for bags of that class.

The Goodyear VII., piloted by Roland Blair, winner of the 1930 race from Houston, Tex., was the nearest competitor of the "harmony twins" with 700 miles.

How They Finished.

Following is the unofficial order in which the four remaining competitors finished, together with their landing place, approximate unofficial distance, approximate duration of flight, and crew:

3—Army No. 1, Sherwood, N. D., 805 miles; 17 hours; Capt. W. J. Flood, pilot; Lieut. Haynie McCormick, aid.

4—City of Omaha, Sterling, N. D., 450 miles; 14 hours; Eddie Hall, pilot; Roscoe Conklin, aid.

5—Chevrolet Motor, Jamestown, N. D., 410 miles; 13 hours; Tracy Southworth, pilot; John Engle, aid.

DRYS RAID "STILL FACTORY."

Fifteen stills were seized by prohibition agents yesterday in a raid on a "home still factory" on the second floor at 807 Maxwell street. The owner of the place is being sought.

COMB FAR NORTH BY LAND AND SEA FOR LOST FLYERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 1.—Arthur Sullivan, pilot, who took off from St. Anthony in a Gypsy Moth plane at 3:30 p. m. Monday to give Dr. Karl Kuehnert, dentist of the Greenfell mission, a joy ride over the sea and has not been seen since, is still missing.

The S. S. Strathcona and a fleet of motor boats are scouring the sea for the missing men and a large number of men are searching the country.

Dr. Kuehnert is 23 years old and the son of the Rev. F. G. Kuehnert of Crystal Lake, Ill., pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran church there. Two of the dentist's sisters and a brother reside in Chicago. Another, Max Kuehnert, is a senior at the University of Illinois. The Chicago kin are the Rev. E. C. Kuehnert, pastor of St. Philip's Lutheran church, Bryn Mawr and North Campbell avenues; Mrs. R. M. Libby of 1204 32d street, and Mrs. G. L. Scheel, 4727 North Artesian avenue. Dr. Kuehnert is a graduate of the Northwestern school of dentistry, class of 1931.

STUDEBAKER WINS 3rd PLACE IN INDIANAPOLIS 500-MILE RACE!

Bergere in Studebaker exceeds best time of all first place winners of 21 historic Memorial Day Races.

Studebaker also takes 6th and 13th places in field of forty of world's fastest and costliest racers.

ONCE again Studebaker shatters tradition! All of the Studebaker team were regular stock President Eights, with the following modifications to conform to racing requirements: cylinder heads were altered for higher compression ratio, magnetos were substituted for battery ignition, 4 special down-draft carburetors were installed, racing manifolds, spark plugs and bodies were used.

Motor blocks, front and rear axles, clutches, steering gears, brakes and transmissions were all of strictly stock manufacture.

This showing of a "family motor car" against a field of costly hand-built racing machines re-dramatizes the astonishing stamina and performance ability which have won for Studebaker its virtual monopoly of official stock car records.

A monopoly climaxed by that record of records...30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes—a monopoly emphasized by the official records of America's 39 most famous mountain climbs—all of these records made by 100 per cent stock cars, certified by the A. A. A.

Instead of depending on mere advertising claims, Studebaker thus proved value, providing an insurance policy, to the prospective Studebaker owner, that a standard stock Studebaker has already done more than he will ever ask his car to do.

Be hard to please. Own a Champion. Don't be satisfied with less.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE SENATE'S TAX BILL.

The senate at length has passed a tax bill intended to balance the budget. The bill, according to estimates made in Washington, will increase the revenue of the government by 1,100 million dollars over what would have been received if only the existing taxes had been continued in force. At the same time the appropriations committee of the senate recommended a reduction in expenditures of 230 million dollars.

Both measures are to be commended as evidences of a desire to maintain the solvency of the United States treasury; but it would be a capital mistake to accept on faith the estimates of what the proposed taxes will yield. The estimates appear to assume that business will improve or at least that it will get no worse, an assumption which many men in a position to judge the trend will not care to make. Probably the revenues will fall considerably below the estimates and, if so, the budget will be out of balance, though no doubt the strain on the treasury will be materially less severe than if no tax bill and no economy bill were to pass.

The tax bill, as it goes into conference from the senate, makes a brave show of higher income rates, but it would be a rash statistician, indeed, who would venture to say how much additional money these higher rates can be made to yield. It may well be that the point of diminishing returns has already been reached and that increasing the rates will not result in more revenue but in less. No doubt, too, the excise taxes on automobiles, gasoline, and other items will kill some business and to that extent cause further declines in income.

These observations, unpleasant though they are, are made in the belief that nothing is to be gained by refusing to face the probabilities. There they are, and the American people will be the better off in the long run for indulging in no self-delusions. The country must struggle for recovery from an almost unparalleled business depression and, instead of having a courageous and nationally minded congress as an ally, the cold truth is that congress is, at best, a half-hearted friend.

But at any rate we now know where we stand. In the main, the senate tax bill is far more drastic in its exactions than the house bill and the house has been far more timid than the senate in proposals for economy. Business men, big and little, can foresee the worst. They can look ahead now to nothing worse than the senate tax bill and the house economy bill. With those two measures fixing the probable limits of congressional blundering, the nation can pull itself together and make such a fight of it as the world has long come to expect of the American people in times of crisis. We never yet have taken a licking and we won't do it now unless the nation has gone soft in the head and softer in the heart.

ORGANIZED DEFENSE AGAINST WASTE.

Local communities offered the tempting bait of a new postoffice can show both patriotism and long run self-interest by letting their representatives know they do not approve of the Garner monstrosity. If they will look beyond the immediate benefit in the form of local employment and federal money and the fallacious pride in a pretentious public edifice they will understand that they come too high. The old postoffice will be an honor to their good sense and their public spirit. Every community that refuses the Garner bait can be proud of itself.

But organized self-interest does not yield to broad considerations of the general good, and what is most lacking at the present moment is organization for the defense and enforcement of these considerations. Political organization today is divided, distracted, and lacking in authority. There must be organization of responsible citizenship to resist the piecemeal demands of special interests and concentrate influence for the protection and support of the constructive forces of the nation, for the drastic economies which are essential to our rescue from general bankruptcy, for relief from destructive taxation, and for the defeat of measures, like Garner's, which ignore these essentials. The Garner proposal for an enormous expenditure on unnecessary and unproductive public building is the most perfect example of what we cannot afford to do in our present predicament that has yet appeared. Yet Garner knows that it will appeal to the local and immediate self-interests of thousands of communities which see immediate money and employment in it and do not look beyond to the consequences every individual and every community will suffer from it. The intrusion of new tariff impositions into the tax measure is another illustration of the strength of special interests and the weakness of the defense of the general interest.

The damage wrought by the irresponsibility and demagogy, rampant in congress since the runaway house advertised them sensationally, has been enormous and increases day by day. It cannot be checked by mere protest. It can only be checked by a concentration of political force which the sane and substantial citizenship of the country possess. Organization is already in being in many associations of citizens for business and civic purposes. All that it needs is cooperation for common action. Men differ inevitably on details and specific measures. There need be no difference in the imperative necessity of radical public retrenchment, which involves the real balancing of the federal budget by essential economies, the defeat of unjustifiable and wasteful expenditures such as the Garner proposal, the support of relief measures which will not defeat their own objects by the further paralysis of business enterprise through unnecessary exactions and the destruction of all hope for fair profit.

The only relief that can reach unemployment on its present scale is the restoration of business and financial confidence, and this is paralyzed today by the fear of government in the control of wasters and demagogues. The intelligence and character of the nation must make its force felt against these influences in the months to come.

FEDERAL KILLERS AND STATE LAWS.

The United States Supreme court hands down an opinion that a federal dry agent who killed a citizen of Colorado shall be tried in the state courts. The agent is Henry Dierks, who arrested a young man in a restaurant, the victim having a small quantity of wine in his possession, probably two glasses. He was waiting for his girl. The wine was for a toast to their engagement. In making the arrest the agent hit the youth with his revolver and killed him.

In accordance with the practice of the department of justice the agent was removed from the jurisdiction of the state courts and given the protection of the federal courts with counsel from the department of justice to defend him against state prosecution. This procedure has been used to free many prohibition killers, regardless of whether the victims had been engaged in law violation or were entirely innocent of all wrongdoing, as was the case with Jacob Hanson in the Buffalo district.

Federal District judges have complied with the demands of the department of justice and it has made itself the protecting patron of every irresponsible or vicious enforcement agent who has killed a citizen.

In the case under discussion the federal judge in the Colorado district granted the writ of habeas corpus which took the killer away from the state courts, but the Colorado authorities fought with more than usual success to maintain the accountability of the prisoner to Colorado criminal law in Colorado Criminal courts. First reports of the decision of the Supreme court do not reveal how broad the base of the opinion may be, but in any event the principle is recognized that a federal agent having committed a crime must answer to the law he has outraged. Thus the Supreme court does something to rescue the federal judiciary from control by authorities and fanatical groups determined not only to impose excessive punishment upon violators of the Volstead act, but to bring off clear of responsibility any enforcer of the law who adds his own brutality to its inhumanities.

Such a rescue was badly needed. The public conscience would not forever yield respect to a judicial system under which a citizen making a few bottles of home brew went to jail and an agent killing an unresisting or defenseless man went free.

PAYING FOR THE KING'S HORSES AND THE KING'S MEN.

A Bloom township farmer with a comfortable farmhouse and a farm of 113 acres would like to convey the property to a charity which would make a small down payment and guarantee an annuity of $6 an acre during the life of himself and his wife. He is 77 and she is 66. In the possession of a charity the farm would be tax exempt and could hope to pay out. The owner must pay $804 in taxes and he cannot get his living off it. The taxes sink him.

The farm should be a perfect unit for a self-supporting family, but the state expropriates the living quite as ruthlessly as a commissars' agent with a squad of Red soldiers might do in Russia. They would confiscate the wheat, drive off the pigs and cattle, kill the chickens and send the farmer who had possessed them into exile. The taxes do the work quite as effectively for the American property owner. He isn't sent into exile, but he may be sent to the poorhouse. The tax spending bodies in American government are doing for the American citizen precisely what the soviets are doing in the appropriation of property.

The refuge for many people from hard times in industrial cities could be the productive earth. It will at least provide a living, but the state pursues the refugee with its taxes and he, poor devil, is on the king's highway to watch the king's horses go by.

Editorial of the Day

THE "BLOODY ANGLE."
[New York Evening Post.]

"Men fought from the top of heaps of dead men, till their own bodies were added to the pile and others came to take their places. Not a tree or a sapling was left alive and standing. One tree, nearly two feet in diameter, was literally cut in two by musket balls." So the historian Elson speaks of the fighting in the "Bloody Angle" at the battle of Spottsylvania, May 12, 1864. "The battle," he goes on, "was one of the most tremendous of modern times. Had it continued another day, it would have surpassed Gettysburg. Neither side won. The losses, about the same on each side, footed up the frightful total of thirty-six thousand men." The "Bloody Angle," which Elson describes, is known to British military historians as the Salient. It was an almost octagonal bulge in Lee's battle line, protecting Spottsylvania Court House. Manned by the remnants of Stonewall Jackson's veteran "foot cavalry," it was overwhelmed when Hancock's federals swept over the breastworks in the mists of dawn. Disordered by the excitement of their own success, the Union forces were at once attacked and reattacked by Lee. The result was the deadliest fighting of the civil war. And from it came Grant's stubborn message to Washington, "I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer." The "Bloody Angle," now a peaceful, breastwork covered four acres, has been given to the United States by Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stuart of Philadelphia. Through their generosity it becomes, therefore, what it should be, a part of America's holy ground.

THE SCURVY VITAMIN.

"ECONOMIC conditions have always had an effect on the incidence of scurvy and it is quite possible, if not probable, that the economic depression in this country and abroad may entail an increase in latent and manifest scurvy in adults, as well as in infants." This statement is quoted from an article by Dr. A. F. Hess, an authority on vitamin C and scurvy.

It is true that up to 1932 the prevailing depression had had no effect on health. It was predicted several months ago that, should present conditions continue for many months or years longer, the harmful effects on health will begin to be apparent. Not until the state of nutrition of a considerable part of the people is lowered below a certain level are the effects manifested. That level has not been reached, but it may be before the new year arrives.

Scurvy will be one of the earlier evidences that it is being approached. This disease results from a deficiency of fresh foods. In the old days it developed whenever a group had to live for several weeks or months on canned foods. Now the canners know how to can without destroying antiscorbutic qualities of the foods. The secret consists in using good articles, removing them from the air as quickly as possible, getting rid of much of the oxygen in the food itself by using gases and brines to drive it out, drying and sterilizing the food—one or both—quickly, and then sealing well.

The only vitamin in milk that is lessened by pasteurizing is that which protects against scurvy. When this process is properly done the milk retains three-fourths of its antiscorbutic vitamin. Milk powder is fairly rich in this protective substance, if it has been quickly heated and dried while protected against the air and oxygen. On the other hand, raw milk that is rather old, that has been shipped some distance, that has been "sloshed" around considerably, has lost its vitamin C.

If we apply the food information that has been gained, mostly since the world war, we may be able to ward off the trend toward scurvy which appears to head this way. Dr. Hess tells us of discoveries that may be of still further assistance to us. There is some evidence that vitamin C can be extracted and fed separately. Thus we may be able to get enough of it without using the more expensive fresh foods. An even more important discovery promises. It seems possible, at least, that this vitamin may be manufactured.

A substance, called narcotin, is found in the poppy, along with morphine. It has some of the sedative properties of that drug. It has also been found in cabbage, potatoes, tomatoes, oranges, and in at least one animal organ. When narcotin in cabbage and potatoes and other vegetables is radiated it is converted into a substance which protects against scurvy and the neuralgias of the beriberi type. This discovery should open the way for an artificial supply of this vitamin and, when it gets into quantity production, it should be cheap.

However, we can scarcely expect a cheap supply of manufactured antiscorbutic substances in time for next winter's needs.

IT DOES NOT MATTER.

J. K. writes: In the room where I sleep there is a large rubber plant, about 6 feet high.

Is it injurious to my health to sleep with this plant in my room?

REPLY.

It is neither.

Growing plants absorb carbonic acid and give off oxygen, while you absorb oxygen and give off carbonic acid. The air must be reasonably moist or plants will not thrive. However, my opinion is that the presence of the plant would be too small a factor to matter much either way.

HAVE AN EXAMINATION.

H. C. W. writes:

I can't go out after dark. If I do, I fall down. I don't feel dizzy, but I am just the same. I can't stand up straight and shut my eyes. If I do, I fall over.

REPLY.

Have some doctor examine you. The first symptom mentioned might mean night-blindness. Night-blindness is sometimes a forerunner of serious eye trouble. Falling over when you stand with your eyes shut is often a symptom of locomotor ataxia, and that is always serious.

Kansas City, Mo., May 26.—[Friend of the People.]—If an American girl marries a man who was born in Scotland, but has taken out his first papers before the marriage, does that affect the girl's citizenship? F. P.

If the marriage occurred on or after Sept. 22, 1922, the girl did not lose her citizenship. If it occurred before Sept. 22, 1922, she did. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, District Director U. S. Department of Labor.

MINOR'S DEBTS.

Chicago, May 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A local furniture company took back my furniture, leaving me with an empty house. I was behind in my rent payments and had a lease that was worded to the effect that if the house was sold I would have to vacate in thirty days' time. 2. The house was listed for sale and had a large sign on it. 3. I am not yet 21 years of age. Can they compel me to pay back rent? A. B. C.

1. This would not relieve you from liability on your lease.

2. These facts would not show sale.

3. Your minority would be a defense to liability on the contract, but you might be held to the reasonable value as a necessary expense if your parents were not already supplying you with a reasonable home. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

AN EYESORE, BUT SAFE.

Chicago, May 29.—[Friend of the People.]—Please let me know what can be done to demolish the old factory building located near us on Damen avenue. It is caving in on our property and we are in constant danger of death or serious injury. J. W.

This building has been reinforced with cement pilasters and walls secured with steel channels. The loads on floors have been reduced. The building is not in a dangerous condition, but will be kept under observation by this department. JOHN E. ERICSSON, Deputy, Department of Buildings.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

JUNE, MONTH OF ROSES, balmy breezes, blue skies, golden moon, love, and so on. We would all of us be inclined to throw something like a fever over June, but we've been fooled so often. We thought 1930 was going to be a great year. The less said about 1930 the better. Then we greeted rapturously the advent of 1931. And what an awful pain in the neck 1931 turned out to be. Then we chirped up a year later and, smiling grimly, said very faintly but firmly, "Welcome, 1932!" And then—oh, for the crying out loud! No, June, it may be that now if ever will come perfect days, and probably there's nothing so rare as a day in June, and the daffodils may be fair to see and the moonlight may be as golden as a U. S. ten dollar gold piece (we wouldn't know about that, it's so long since we saw a U. S. ten dollar gold piece), but, June, all you months are in the same boat with the years as far as we're concerned; you're just the baloney, that's all. You may turn out all right, but you never do. Go ahead and do your stuff, but we'll tell you right now that as far as we're concerned, the poets to the contrary notwithstanding, we think you're just a great big hunk of cheese. Phooey!

I fear are but proclaiming
For much of so-called virtue
Springs not from saving grace,
But rather owes its being

THE NATIONAL PROHIBITION board of strategy let go its first broadside of the campaign yesterday. It warned all parties and candidates that "those who seek to weaken prohibition by any means may expect organized, aggressive, relentless opposition from the defenders of national prohibition." Time was when that would have sent the cold chills up and down the backs of officeseekers. But now it may just remind them of the barker of a circus sideshow who wanted to arouse the interest of the yokels gathered around outside, so he ran wildly out of the tent screaming at the top of his voice, "Run for your lives, folks! Run for your lives! The gyasticutus is loose!"

Where Are the Wisecrackers o' Yesteryear?

Sir: The Depression has many things to answer for—not the least of which is the dimming of those splendid souls who, heretofore, have given a new and sometimes double meaning to whatever occasion by means of the lightsome wisecrack. It would seem that they are so occupied with training the wolf at the door to bark at their creditors that we are bereft of flippancies. NO! ABSOLUTELY NOT! Nobody has yet sent in the right answer to the story about the Fishworm family. But we still hope. To recapitulate very briefly: Pa Fishworm came out from under the rock and said: "Goody, I hear thunder; we're going to have rain!" Ma Fishworm came out and said: "Oh, swell! It's very cloudy and we're sure to have rain!" Then the last member of the family, little Willie Fishworm, came out and said: "Oh, it's going to rain. Won't that be dandy for all five of us?" Why did little Willie say "all five of us"? Remember, you will be considered fully competent to tell how to cure the depression if you answer this correctly. And, besides, we will give a rubber lined indestructible doughnut to the first person who solves this baffling problem.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is Ralph W. Gerard, associate professor of physiology.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

Is death necessary?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

What is the unit of life?

ANSWER:

All the common animals and plants, however widely they differ in size and appearance, are made up of very similar units, known as cells. There are hundreds of billions of these cells in a human body, each cell being so small that it can be seen only under a good microscope. The cells of one tissue differ markedly from those of another, but the cells of a given tissue in man are very similar to those of the corresponding tissue in even such a remote relative as a fish.

In many of the very simple animals [protozoa] and plants [algae, bacteria] the entire body consists of just one cell; while viruses, which have never been seen because they are so small but are supposed to be alive, may not even have a whole cell for the entire body.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

REPUBLICAN—1928.

Kansas City, Mo., June 14.—Herbert Hoover of California, secretary of commerce since 1921, was nominated Republican candidate for President at 11:20 o'clock tonight following the withdrawal before the roll call of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois because the party had refused to accept the corn belt farm relief plan the Illinoisan sponsored.

Hoover received the votes of 837 out of the 1,089 delegates in the convention, which began in Convention hall on June 12. He had nearly 300 in excess of the requisite majority. Of all candidates in the history of the party who have been nominated on the first ballot, with the exception of Presidents renominated, Mr. Hoover received the largest vote. The ballot resulted: Hoover, 837; Lowden, 74; Charles Curtis, 64; James E. Watson, 45; George W. Norris, 24; Guy D. Goff, 18; Calvin Coolidge, 17; Charles G. Dawes, 4, and Charles E. Hughes, 1, with five absent.

Hoover's name was presented to the convention by John McNab of San Francisco, and there was a tremendous ovation for the candidate at the beginning and at the end of McNab's speech. Following McNab's address, Otis Glenn of Illinois read the prepared statement from Mr. Lowden authorizing the withdrawal of his name. In part it said: "I have stated publicly that I did not want the nomination unless the Republican party was prepared to meet fully and fairly the agricultural problem."

Kansas City, Mo., June 16.—The Republican national convention nominated Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas for Vice President. He received 1,052 of the 1,089 votes.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 2, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Terms on which the Roosevelt managers are ready to dicker with the old line Republicans, predicated on Roosevelt's nomination for President, were put out along convention row. The tentative demands, according to sources high in the campaign in behalf of the Oyster Bay statesman, are: For President, Theodore Roosevelt; for Vice President, Charles Warren Fairbanks; for secretary of state, Elihu Root; for secretary of the treasury, Theodore Burton.

WAR SUMMARY.—The French at Verdun drove the Germans back west of the Meuse, but lost ground between Fort Douaumont and Vaux pond. The French, after artillery preparation, captured more than 400 yards of German first line trenches. Cologne reports say that the king of Italy and his staff have retired from Udine to Venice as the Austrians continue advancing. In the Caucasus the Turks ousted the Russians from Mamakhatum, fifty miles west of Erzerum, recently captured on the invaders.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

FROM A KENTUCKIAN.

Chicago, May 24.—I have just read a letter in the Voice of the People from one Paul E. Trimpy, defending his little publicity stunt of picketing Insull's home and demanding justice for the Kentucky miners. Now, since everybody else has had their say, I am asking that you, in justice, allow a Kentucky miner to have his.

I was born in London, Ky., and have lived almost all my life in the eastern Kentucky coal fields. For two years I lived at Evarts, where most of the recent trouble took place, and, being a Kentucky mountaineer whose grandparents were born in those some mountains, thank God, I feel that I am in a position to know what I am talking about.

The trouble is not being caused by the natives. It is being caused by the floaters who drifted in from other states when the coal business was booming and times were good, the kind who work a few weeks in one camp and then drift on to another, seemingly without any desire to settle down and establish a permanent home or better themselves. You have plenty of the same kind here in Chicago. You can find hundreds of them standing or sitting around on West Madison street with red cards in their pockets, denatured alcohol in their stomachs, stump water in their heads, and the devil in their hearts. They would not be satisfied with a job that paid them $20 a day, room and board. They are the ones who talk rebellion, stir up strikes, and foment trouble, the lousy, sewer spawned, gutter bred scrapings and refuse from the filthiest griddle in hell.

As to the various so-called and self-appointed "investigating committees" who have recently attempted to invade Kentucky, we have no sympathy for the Benedict Arnolds and the Judases who would sell their country, their homes, schools and churches, and their children into chaos and barbarism, not for thirty pieces of silver but for the chance to get their names in a newspaper, which in my opinion is infinitely less than the price Judas received for betraying the Savior to his death. God forbid that my name ever be polluted by appearing in the same paper with the name of one of that breed.

As to Mr. Trimpy and his friends, with their higher education that he boasts of, allow me to say that a man might have all the book learning in the world, but if he had no horse sense to go with it his higher education would not be worth a dried apple damn. Do I make myself clear?

All we mountaineers ask of any of these publicity seeking Judases and "youthful and imitative egotists" is a chance to mind our own business, to remain loyal to God and our country, and to work out our own salvation, as Kentucky mountaineers have always done. Let me say for the information of the people of Chicago that no one in the mountains of Kentucky is in any danger of starving or freezing. Kentuckians do not sit idly by and see their neighbors suffer. Kentuckians do not allow even the Judases and poor white trash to starve or freeze. T. C.

HE SEEMS TO DISAGREE.

Chicago, May 24.—Guilty of treason, stratagems and crimes, you say, is that officer of a corporation who secretly buys or sells his company's stock. Especially heinous is he whose wife does it. To the lantern with him! Crucify her! Thrice damned aristocrats!

How long is such sickening cant and hypocrisy to continue? A fine commentary on common sense when a man is held up to public shame, ridicule, and opprobrium because, in an open market, he uses his special knowledge and judgment to make a profitable sale or purchase. Mr. Raskob and the rest who did the same thing in Anaconda can thank heaven that they lost. It is no crime to lose. Most of us, therefore, are in the lily white class. Hound him, hellions, hound him! Stone him! Stone him! M. R. JEFFRIS.

ECONOMIES COMPARED.

Chicago, May 21.—On April 27 Representative Fred A. Britten prevented a fifty million dollar economy by introducing an amendment against a reduction of federal employes' salaries.

In your today's TRIBUNE I notice in rather a conspicuous position the statement on page 2 that Representative Fred A. Britten would save millions to taxpayers by consolidating four civil service activities whose total appropriations are but seven million dollars.

Comparing the above two statements it seems easy to see the insincerity, the hoodwinking, the playing politics and the hypocrisy of Mr. Britten in attempting to make the people think he is really for economy in government expenses. O. S. NICKELS.

NEW UNIFORMS FOR THE POLICE.

Chicago, May 28.—We are told a new uniform is about to be adopted for Chicago policemen for the coming World's Fair.

This is shocking and outrageous, as they were compelled to take a 21 per cent reduction in their salary. This uniform, I presume, will be a red coat and white pants, with purple stripes, a green hat with a golden feather. S. O. S.

BRITAIN REBUKES U. S. FOR "LEAK" ON TRADE PARLEY

Washington "Slip" Bares Secret Negotiations.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 1.—Amazement was shown by high officials of the British foreign office today on reading a statement given out at Washington last night that an agreement had been reached between Great Britain and America to call a conference in London to discuss the stabilization of commodity prices and other world economic problems.

SIR JOHN SIMON.
[Keystone Photo.]

At first the disposition was to declare that a serious mistake had been made, but after consideration it was decided to reply to the overwhelming mass of inquiries by the method of question and answer in the house of commons. It was arranged for George Lansbury, opposition leader, to ask the question of Sir John Simon, foreign secretary.

Plan in Preliminary Stage.

Sir John replied as follows:

"Within the last few days conversations have taken place between his majesty's government and the government of the United States on the suggestion for an international economic conference to be called to consider methods of stabilizing world commodity prices.

"The matter has not advanced beyond an informal and entirely preliminary stage. Indeed, the opportunity of consulting other governments chiefly concerned has not yet arisen.

"It must be remembered that the conference to be held at Lausanne is planned to include, among objects to be sought, not only a settlement of reparations but agreement on methods necessary to solve other economic and financial difficulties which are responsible for and may prolong the present world crisis.

Wants U. S. at Lausanne.

"Unless, therefore, the United States sends representatives to the Lausanne conference there is danger of overlapping. The questions of time and place remain to be considered even if a yet further conference is decided upon. At the same time the importance of the United States' cooperation in such discussions is so great that his majesty's government is losing no time in consulting other powers who will be assembled at Lausanne as to the suggestion which has been made."

British political observers declared no more frank rebuke from one foreign office to another has been made in recent history. The plain meaning, they added, is that some one in Washington spoke too soon. One charitable suggestion is that the mistake was due to the inherent difficulty in carrying on delicate negotiations over the telephone. The plan has been discussed for several days by Prime Minister MacDonald and Secretary of State Stimson over the trans-Atlantic telephone.

Worried About Other Powers.

What worried British diplomats most was the effect on France, Germany, and other powers who will participate in the Lausanne conference when they heard the report that Britain and America had come to an agreement which would mean practically sidetracking the Lausanne parley without consulting them.

It was announced tonight that Sir John had explained to the French and Italian ambassadors the meaning of the preliminary exchange of views between London and Washington. Sir John also conferred with American Ambassador Mellon.

As far as can be seen now, the task of both governments is to try to save what can be saved of Lausanna, perhaps by welding the two conferences into one. It was suggested that the Lausanne meeting might confine itself to a discussion of debts and reparations, then adjourn quickly and reconstitute itself either at Lausanne or some other place, possibly London, with the United States sitting in, to discuss the questions of prices and economic reconstruction.

GETS DIVORCE

LEONA WEST.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

"Too many black eyes" was the reason assigned yesterday by Mrs. Leona West, 21 years old, 3941 Pine Grove avenue, for her separation in February from Willard West, 1035 Byron street. Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude granted her a divorce on grounds of cruelty.

SILVER QUESTION TO BE SUBJECT AT PROPOSED PARLEY

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—The silver question, international gold raids, trade restrictions and the stabilization of commodity prices are slated to be four of the major subjects to be discussed at the proposed London economic conference, according to information disclosed in administration quarters today. All discussion of such controversial subjects as reparations, war debts or tariffs will be barred, officials said.

American officials were represented today as desirous of having an understanding worked out which would avert raids by banks in one nation upon the gold supply of banks in another country.

Members of congress who have been leading the fight to have the United States call a silver conference expressed gratification that the way was being paved for an international discussion of the silver question. Representative Andrew Somers [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the house committee on coinage, said the silver question would be the most important matter discussed.

FOUR ARE HANGED FOR SLAYING IN BANK ROBBERY

New Orleans, La., June 1.—(AP)—Three Chicago hoodlums, Donald Rylich, George O'Day, and Herman Taylor, and Ito Jacques, a New Orleans Negro, were hanged in the parish prison here today for slaying Raymond Rizzo, a grocer, in a bank robbery two years ago.

Jacques was the first to die. The hangman, wearing a black mask, led him to the gallows but couldn't find the key to the trap and the Negro was made to stand there 8 minutes as other authorities searched for it.

A priest sought to relieve the tension by repeating over and over, "May the Lord have mercy on your soul." Jacques stood on the trap calm and smiling until the executioner found the key and plunged him to death.

Testimony at their trial disclosed Jacques went to Chicago and induced the others to come to New Orleans and rob the banks.

FIVE OF FAMILY, MOURNING, DIE IN SUICIDE PACT

Father and 4 Daughters Take Gas.

New York, June 1.—[Special.]—Carlos Del Rio, an Argentinian who conducted a lingerie shop in Chester court, Brooklyn, and his four daughters, Josephine, Vincenta, and Guadalupe Del Rio and Mrs. Gumsendo Munoz, committed suicide today, after a death pact, in Del Rio's apartment on Ocean avenue.

Utterly disconsolate over the death yesterday of Mrs. Mathilda Del Rio, the wife of Carlos and the mother of the four daughters, and unable to bear the thought of living without her, the five deliberately arranged to destroy themselves. They left notes explaining why life had no further appeal. Then they attached a length of rubber tubing thirty feet long to the gas range in the kitchen, stretched the other end of the tube into the bedroom, turned on all five jets, lay down in the bedroom and awaited the inevitable end.

Upon the mantelpiece of the bedroom was a group picture of the entire family—Carlos, the father; Mathilda, the mother, and the four daughters. By the side of this photograph, after the bodies were found just before noon today, were two brief notes. One was addressed to the police. It read merely: "It is a suicide pact," and was signed by the four daughters.

The other, tragic and touching, told the story of the extinction of an entire family:

"Dear mother of mine. You passed away at 2 p. m. and your four daughters, Josephine, Vincenta, Guadalupe, and Mathilda, have enough courage to kill themselves as we go crazy without you and we kill ourselves at 10 o'clock evening."

Father's Case Mystery.

It will never be known whether Carlos del Rio, the father, was a party to the suicide pact, or whether he took his own life after he discovered that his daughters were dead or dying. There was a possibility that he might hive entered his apartment after the four daughters were dead, or past saving, and that he might have lain down then and joined them in death.

Del Rio, a man of 55, was regarded as well to do and successful in business. The family came here from Argentina some years ago and set up a lingerie shop.

There was a boy in the family, but the son died two years ago and ever since then the Del Rios were depressed. They talked about it to friends and acquaintances—how bare life was without the son and brother. It was an extremely close-knit and affectionate family, neighbors noted and commented.

On Monday Mrs. Del Rio was stricken with pneumonia and removed to Jewish hospital.

After her death the entire family was hysterical with grief. But neighbors, making allowances for the Latin temperament, attached little importance to repeated threats to commit suicide.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—(AP)—The death of one sailor and injury to twelve others in an explosion of ethyl chloride aboard the gunboat Tulsa at Amoy, China, was reported today to the navy department by Admiral M. M. Taylor, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet. The admiral gave no details except that the explosion occurred in the refrigerating plant compartment. He said an investigation was being made.

REPORT REEVES IS INDICTED AS STAMP BURGLAR

CRIMINAL COURT.

Mack Holland, murder, sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary; Spino Malle, Clarence Range, and Jacob Rappe, larceny, sentenced to 1 year each in Pontiac reformatory; Harry Brendt, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Walter Stanton.

Two true bills charging Melville Reeves, known more than 10 years ago as the skyscraper burglar, with burglary and possession of burglar tools were reported voted yesterday by the grand jury. Total bond on the two charges was reported set at $15,000. Reeves had appeared earlier in the day in the Felony court and after waiving examination was released when a friend furnished bond.

Reeves, who escaped conviction in 1914 on charges that he committed a series of burglaries which netted him a half million dollars, is charged with the theft of $53 in stamps Monday from the Kastor Advertising company in the London Guarantee building, 360 North Michigan avenue.

JAPAN MAY SEEK TO REOPEN NAVAL RATIO QUESTION

Tokio Envoy Serves Notice on Disarm Parley.

GENEVA, June 1.—(AP)—A Japanese spokesman gave notice to the naval commission of the world disarmament conference today that Japan might reopen the question of naval ratios among the great powers.

J. E. Sawada, the Japanese representative, raised the point in opposing a British proposal to perpetuate the provisions of the Washington and London treaties regarding the disposal of over age vessels.

Sawada said that if the "marked differences in naval strengths" continued to exist it might be necessary to allow certain countries to retain over age vessels for defensive purposes.

Wants Discussion of Ratios.

In any case, he said, the comparative naval tonnage would need to be considered at the present conference.

The Japanese further proposed to permit the laying down of keels of replacement vessels above 20,000 tons within four years before the vessel to be replaced becomes over age, instead of three years, as at present.

Senator Claude A. Swanson of the United States opposed this procedure. The commission rejected the Japanese proposal.

RATIOS ARE EXPLAINED.

The London naval tready of 1930 was signed by Great Britain, the United States and Japan, and gave these nations in total tonnage the ratio of 10 for Great Britain, 10.2 for the United States, and 6.3 for Japan.

The tonnage involved was 1,151,450 tons for Great Britain, 1,123,600 for the United States, and 714,120 for Japan, and allowed Great Britain 330,924 tons, the United States 401,664 tons, and Japan 88,780 tons for replacement during the life of the agreement in view of the condition of their navies when the treaty was signed.

TITLED WOMAN ADMITS RECTOR KISSED HER OFTEN

Testifies Pastor Is an "Excellent Man."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 1.—Lady Evelyn Mary Josephine Waechter, called as a witness in the trial of the Rev. Harold F. Davidson, rector of Stiffkey, in consistory court on charges of immorality, declared she has known the pastor for twenty-four years, and that although he was unconventional and free with his kisses, he is an excellent man. She added that he is a little eccentric and indiscreet, but of high moral standing.

DR. COSMO LANG.

The witness admitted that the 62 year old rector kissed her often, sometimes in the presence of her husband. She declared he brought hundreds of girls of all classes to her house and that she was interested in philanthropic work and always helped the girls he brought.

She gave them money and clothes and sometimes, just for friendship she and the rector and some of the girls went to the theater together, she testified.

It is expected that the rector's defense will be concluded tomorrow and that the trial will end Friday.

Dr. Cosmo Lang, archbishop of Canterbury, in an address to the upper house of convocation at Canterbury today, declared that he has received indignant protests from many quarters against the publicity given the case.

"None of us can be surprised at this outburst of protest, but it is necessary not to exaggerate the evil done," declared the archbishop.

The primate said that while it is clearly impossible to suggest that the proceedings be private, the publicity has raised the issue in acute form. He said he is conferring with leading lawyers to see whether it is possible to introduce legislation dealing with the question.

REGULAR ARMY TROOPS ARRIVE FOR TOURNAMENT

Ten officers and three hundred men of the Sixth Infantry, stationed at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., arrived in three detachments over the Illinois Central, Alton and Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroads yesterday afternoon and proceeded to Fort Sheridan. They will participate in the George Washington bicentennial military tournament in Soldiers' field June 24 to July 4, inclusive.

More than 1,200 regular army troops and officers will take part in the pageant which is planned to be the largest military show ever produced in the United States. The officers and men have begun practicing for the tournament at Fort Sheridan.

A tentative promise that Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, who recently flew the Atlantic alone, will attend the military tournament has been received by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker.

CIRCUS TACTICS ENLIVEN FIGHT ON BROOKHART

Iowa Senator Lampooned by His Opponents.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., June 1.—[Special.]—Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart, a heavyweight among the "sons of the wild jackasses" at Washington, is being lampooned as the "champion flagpole sitter" in Iowa's primary battle which ends at the polls next Monday, June 6.

SENATOR BROOKHART.

Five are running against Brookhart in the Republican primaries. The main question is whether Brookhart will get 35 per cent of the vote which would automatically make him the nominee. If he fails to bag 35 per cent the nomination goes into the state convention and the theory is Brookhart would be sunk.

Epithets Are Flying.

Never, perhaps, has Iowa had such a campaign. The prairies are turned into a Circus Maximus, with four or five rings operating daily and nightly. Brookhart is being ridiculed, his cracks that his opponents are "tools of Wall street" are being burlesqued in a sort of midway carnival, "wild jackasses" is being socked with satire, and the front pages daily contribute belly laughs and chortles. Epithets are flying thick and fast—such as "bologna peddler," "Wall street dupes," "pay roll racketeer," "hee-haw Chautauqua weight lifter," "bunk shooters." This week the word "cockroach" has been a ping pong ball.

The good old reliable stuff on which Brookhart used to rely in other campaigns is being treated as howling political comedy by the opposition.

Still Sees Rail "Water."

For example, Brookhart's old shout about "seven billions of water" in the railroads doesn't seem to be quite the hit it was years ago. The senator is still raising it. But railroad employés, who once were his strong supporters, are now reported off him.

Henry Field, the most active platform opponent of Brookhart, is leading in the tatack on "Wild Jackassism." Field is a nursery man at Shenandoah, where he has a radio station which has served to build him up a large general store. He has been Brookhart's sharpest thorn in the flesh. Field put on a show in his home town last week, with a night torch light parade containing floats depicting high spots in the campaign. One of them illustrated Field's parable of the flagpole sitter, one of the features of the contest.

Compared with Pole Sitter.

"Last summer," says Field, "we had in Shenandoah a professional flag pole sitter. He had nothing to do for three months but to sit there day and night. He ate his meals there, slept there, and let his whiskers grow. When he wanted exercise he climbed on a bicycle which was hitched to the pole. But he never got anywhere, because the wheels just went round and round.

"I wonder if our Senator Brookhart hasn't been just one of the flagpole sitters in Washington. He has been there for 10 years, viewing conditions with alarm but never getting anything done about it. He has exercised himself violently from time to time, but, like the flagpole sitter on his bicycle, never got anywhere. He makes the headlines, but his record of accomplishment is empty."

Field, too, has been attacking Brookhart for his activities on the Chautauqua platform. He alleges that the senator has been absent from the senate while making these speeches at $150 a throw and upwards. He says Chautauqua trips were set for Brookhart during about 70 days of an important session of the senate, and that he ought to turn back his salary for the days absent.

Col. Glenn C. Haynes is regarded as the most prominent contender, in case the nomination should be thrown into the convention. He was with the Rainbow division, has been state auditor, and is secretary of the Iowa Good Roads association.

Cook Wet Candidate.

Louis H. Cook, another Brookhart opponent, was the senator's campaign manager in 1922 and 1924, and was one of the Hoover managers in Wisconsin in 1928. He is a tax expert and is a member of the board of assessment and review. He is wet.

George Cosson, formerly attorney general, of the Old Guard camp, says Iowa is watching a sideshow in a babble of chatter by politicians, while the world faces bankruptcy.

On the Democratic side there is much rivalry among five candidates, on the hunch that Iowa may go Democratic this year. The candidates are Dan F. Steck of Ottumwa, former senator; Fred P. Hagemann of Waverly, an old time party wheel horse; Louis Murphy of Dubuque, former collector of internal revenue, the wettest of all the candidates; Charles F. Lytle of Sioux City, one of the largest contractors in the state, and N. G. Kraschel of Harlan, an auctioneer of live stock, rated as a top notcher in his profession in the United States.

Gas Explosion Wrecks Home; Two Near Death

Shenandoah, Ia., June 1.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hunter of this city were probably fatally injured late today when a gas explosion wrecked the five room cottage in which they lived. Hospital authorities tonight said that neither of the two are expected to live. Elaine, 14 and Dorothy 16 daughters, were severely burned. Fire Chief Ray Cleveland said he believed the explosion occurred when Hunter began to search for a gas pipe leak with a lighted match. The cottage was owned by Henry Field, Shenandoah radio station operator.

FRANK B. WATSON, RETIRED AURORA BANKER, IS DEAD

Frank B. Watson, former president of the First National bank of Aurora and for many years identified with civic and social activities there, died yesterday at his home, 429 Downer place, Aurora. He was 67 years old.

Born at Leland, Ill., Mr. Watson was educated in the Aurora public schools. He started his career as an errand boy in the old Second National bank of Aurora in 1885, later becoming cashier.

In 1930 Mr. Watson was made managing cashier of the First National bank and became president in 1921. In 1929 he was made chairman of the board and retired in 1930.

Mr. Watson is survived by his widow, Blanche; a daughter, Louise, and two sisters, Mrs. Fannie Plain of Chicago and Lyda of West Orange, N. J. The funeral will be private and will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow from the residence. Burial will be at the Riverside cemetery near Aurora.

SENIORS AT N. U. PLEDGE MILLION TO UNIVERSITY

The 1,500 members of the senior class at Northwestern university yesterday promised to give $1,000,000 to the university's foundation within the next 25 years. The money is to be used to help needy students.

Reb Russell, president of the class, and Miss Caroline Sachs presented the pledge of the seniors to President Walter Dill Scott. Dr. Scott said the promise was the "most pleasing feature of the scholastic year."

The seniors, who will be graduated this month, pledged annual payments. Every five years an inventory will be taken to determine the amount which still must be paid.

Hold Funeral Today for Mrs. Annie Swan Coburn

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Swan Coburn, who died Tuesday at the Blackstone hotel, will be held this afternoon at the Graceland cemetery chapel. Trustees of the Art institute will act as honorary pallbearers. Mrs. Coburn was the widow of Lewis Larned Coburn, wealthy attorney, and one of Chicago's foremost art collectors.

EX-WIFE ASKS ARREARS FROM JOHN C. WAHL

The depression started five years ago for John C. Wahl, 2816 Cambridge avenue, former vice president of the Wahl Pen company, he told Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday in the Superior court. Mrs. June E. Wahl, 517 Oakdale avenue, complained through her attorney, Harry X. Cole, that Wahl is $6,640 in arrears in payments under the settlement agreed to when she divorced him in 1926.

He gave her property, she said, and guaranteed that at any time that the income fell below $400 a month he would make up the difference. He owes her $4,900 under that agreement, she claimed, and has also failed to keep his promise to pay taxes on the property, which are now delinquent to the amount of $1,740.

Wahl resigned from the pen company twelve days before his wife divorced him, and is living now on money borrowed from friends, he told Judge Sabath. He said he has not had a job for five years. He is selling or has sold his memberships in the Lake Shore Athletic, Lincoln, Chicago Yacht, South Shore Country, Edgewater Golf, and Chicago Riding clubs and the Chicago Athletic association, he said.

WIDOW FIGHTS MOVE TO HAVE HER HELD INSANE

Mrs. Mary A. Cheeseman, 34 years old, widow of Dr. William O. Cheeseman of Joliet and now a resident of the Hyde Park hotel, appeared yesterday before a jury in the court of County Judge J. G. Van Keuren to oppose a petition to declare her insane and to avert the appointment of a conservator of her $200,000 estate.

The petition was made by Attorney Harvey T. Fletcher, who was Mrs. Cheeseman's counsel for several years. After the hearing yesterday the attorney refused to disclose his reasons for bringing the action. Attorney Arthur A. Basse, who is representing Mrs. Cheeseman, asserted that both he and his client were mystified by the action.

Part of the evidence introduced yesterday was the report of Dr. Sidney Kuh, psychiatrist, who examined Mrs. Cheeseman soon after the suit was filed. The physician asserted that she was suffering from senile dementia. To oppose this assertion was the testimony of Albert J. Stevens of Joliet, a nephew of Mrs. Cheeseman, who asserted that she was a canny business woman and active in the management of her affairs. The hearing was adjourned until today.

ROB GOLD COAST HOTEL.

"EDUCATIONAL TRAVEL" IS NEW LURE OF SOVIET

Bureau Conducts Trips to All Parts of Europe.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 1.—[Special.]—Soviet Russia's subtle efforts to spread its influence throughout America has resulted in the utilization of every means of propaganda. Amtorg, the soviet trading organization here, has pulled and continues to pull its strings: Russian movies extolling the bolshevik government fill our theaters, and communistic activities continue wherever there is a fertile field. There is today, however, another form of soviet propaganda far more clever and less easily discerned. It concerns itself with "Educational Travel."

The Open Road, Inc., a coöperative membership tour bureau organized by a group of Harvard students in 1925, is going in for travel to Russia in a big way this season. The Open Road conducts trips to all parts of Europe, but since 1930 the land of the soviet appears to have been its main objective.

Describing itself as "a nonprofit making American organization" and working through colleges and universities, it has acquired the sponsorship at $1,000 each of famous educators, literary and social lights, traveling college professors and congressmen. It maintains offices and staffs in Moscow and Leningrad and is especially interested in exchange visits between Russian and American students, good will junkets and social workers' tours.

Big Publicity Office.

This writer called at the New York office of the organization located on the eighteenth floor of a West 45th street building. Through an open door eight young women could be seen hammering away on typewriters turning out publicity matter.

There was a beehive air of activity about the place entirely foreign to most of the travel bureaus these days. The reporter was received pleasantly and his questions were answered.

Yes, the Open Road was building up travel to Russia. Yes, it maintained year round offices in Russia. Mrs. Rose Laddon Hanna, an American and a dozen or more assistants handled the business in Russia. There were Russians on her staff who "aided in numberless ways to an understanding of Russia."

The reporter was told Frederick V. Field was president. Mr. Field is a young Harvard graduate, the great-grandson of the late William H. Vanderbilt, the railroad man.

Have High Connections.

Mrs. Corliss Lamont, wife of the son of Thomas Lamont, the financier, is secretary of the organization. Mrs. Lamont and her young Harvard husband have frequently been identified with liberal as well as "left wing" activities.

Neither Mr. Field nor Mrs. Lamont was in the office. The everyday affairs are under the direction of John Rothschild, a worker since 1922 in activities for the interchange of students between Russia and America.

The Open Road boasts that it is establishing "a new technique in travel" and that its close coöperation with the Soviet Travel bureau, Intourist, the National Students' federation, the Soviet Central Students' bureau, and the Society for Improvement of Cultural Relations with Russia helps to "make the tour one in which the visitor sees the right things and meets the right people."

List of "Advisers."

The Open Road's advisory committee, according to information obtained at its office here, includes such personages as:

Ray Lyman Wilbur, Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar; Mrs. Alexander Meikeljohn, William Allan Neilson, president of Smith college; Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell university; Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin; Dr. Ada L. Comstock, president of Radcliffe; John Dewey, Dr. Mary E. Wooley, president of Mount Holyoke college, and Dr. Ellen F. Pendleton, president of Wellesley.

This year's group of students collected from schools in all sections of the United States will sail in June under the leadership of Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins college. They will be entertained and instructed by students of Moscow State university while in the soviet republic.

Consultation Service Calms Troubled Seas of Matrimony

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The first day of the consultation service sponsored by the Illinois Social Hygiene league opened yesterday at 9 East Huron street. Dr. Rachelle Yarros, director, described it as a cross section of society whose members heretofore have been at a loss to know where to take their problems for expert advice.

"The appeals for advice came mostly from couples starting out on married life," said Dr. Yarros. "Those are the persons we want to serve."

Advises Youth to Wed.

The first case was an 18 year old boy, jobless, who said his sweetheart's mother had sent him there. "They love each other," said Dr. Yarros, "and I pointed out the honorable course to him. I told him to bring the girl's mother in and I was sure I could persuade her to let them be married and support them until he found work. He went away very happy."

Dr. Yarros believes that normal persons get more out of responsibility than out of what they think is freedom.

"As for the question of promiscuity, there is nothing which makes me more furious than the statement that men are by nature promiscuous," she said. "Women are no different from men by nature. It all lies in training."

Gives Advice on Budget.

Case No. 2 was that of a 33 year old woman who was married three weeks ago to a 44 year old man, and who came to Chicago to seek the aid of the service. She was an intelligent professional woman who had given up her work to keep house. Dr. Yarros gave her advice on the budget, suggested she take up club work, and instructed her in what she terms "the psychology of the marriage relationship."

"I also told her not to try to change her husband or make him over," she said. "But I told her she must make him understand that she is an individual. She went away almost exalted with the ideal of making her marriage not just an ordinary marriage but a worth while life."

Case No. 3 was a young woman married three years who had been unable to have children. She wanted one desperately.

Fears Loss of Husband.

Another case was that of a foreign born girl, described as "brilliant and charming," who contributes some to the family income by writing. She is married to a research student whose income is small and they have one child. The girl said she feared she and her husband were drifting apart because of her fear of having more children which they could not support.

Temporarily the service will be open only on Wednesdays and Fridays between 11 and 2 o'clock. It is not only for persons who can pay well for expert advice but also for persons of most moderate means, she said. No cases referred by agencies, churches, or settlements will be turned away because they are unable to pay much, Dr. Yarros said.

Hear Ye! Some One's Stolen the Court's Revised Statutes

The court copy of Smith-Hurd's Illinois revised statutes was stolen yesterday from the South Chicago courtroom. Judge Donald S. McKinlay was informed of the theft. "When we find the culprit I hope he has read up on the penalty for theft," he said.

BROWN SCHOOL CELEBRATES ITS 75TH BIRTHDAY

Eighty graduates of the Brown public school, Warren avenue and Wood street, joined the teachers and students yesterday in a celebration of the 75th anniversary of the school's founding.

Oldest among those present was Mrs. Isabelle C. Dunning, 314 South Damen avenue, alert and smiling in spite of her 83 years. She attended the Brown school between 1863 and 1867. Also present was Arthur L. Meriam, 79 years old, 1452 North Mansfield avenue, who was graduated in 1873. Al V. Booth of the brokerage concern which bears his name recalled the days of 1872 when ringing the school bell was his job.

Named for W. H. Brown.

Miss Carolyn D. Tyler, 1401 East 53d street, sketched the life of her grandfather, William H. Brown, for whom the school was named. He was the first business manager of the board of education, known then as the school board agent. Harold P. Brown, a grandson of William H. Brown, and Miss Caroline M. McIlvaine of the Chicago Historical society also spoke.

Many of the old grads arrived early enough to visit classes, chatting with teachers and recalling their own distant school days. One class was interrupted by an argument as to whether or not that particular room had been altered with a partition.

The program began in the assembly room at 2 o'clock with a group of songs by the seventh and eighth grade pupils. Then the visitors heard some selections by the school's harmonica band.

A group of boys then briefly told the history of the school from its founding in 1857. The school was the eighth in Chicago and the first to have steam heat.

It was built at the then high cost of $2,800. There were 14 students in the first class and fear was expressed that there would never be sufficient children to fill it.

Noted Names on Register.

Many well known names adorn the school's register, among them those of Luther Laflin Mills, Mrs. Bertha Honore Palmer, Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, Thomas [Tad] Lincoln, Lillian Russell, Miss Amelia Sears, Miss Fanny Butcher, Samuel Ettelson, Harvey T. Woodruff, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Mrs. Myrtle Reed McCullough, Dr. Carl Davis, Dr. Roger Vaughan, Glenn Hall, Harry Truax, Alson Clark, Dr. Evarts Graham, Estelle Wentworth, Effie Warvelle, Helen Morgan and Judge Daniel Trude.

The celebration, first of its kind in the Chicago schools, was arranged by Principal William J. Page with the aid of Miss Andrea T. Hansen, assistant principal. Many letters were received from graduates who were unable to attend and these are to be published for the old timers whose addresses are known. The program is to be repeated tomorrow afternoon.

Robbers Carry Off 600 Lb. Safe and the $450 in It

Bloomington, Ill., June 1.—[Special.]—Robbers stole a 600 pound safe from the Moose Lodge building here, hauled it to the eastern limits of Normal, Ill., and blew the botom out of it to get $450.

ROSARY COLLEGE HALL DEDICATED IN RIVER FOREST

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The new Lewis Memorial Liberal Arts hall of Rosary college, River Forest, was dedicated yesterday by Cardinal Mundelein in the presence of the nuns of the Dominican order who conduct the school, the student body of young women, and friends of the college.

The hall, forming the third side of the Gothic quadrangle, was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Lewis, 5448 Washington boulevard, in memory of their mothers, Mrs. Ellen Lewis and Mrs. Ella Green. It was erected at a cost of $150,000 and was designed by Ralph Adams Cram, Boston architect.

Cardinal Blesses Each Floor.

Cardinal Mundelein praised the "outstanding generosity" of the donors, and of the Dominican nuns for giving "encouragement to the cause of religious education in these difficult times."

Following the processional opening the dedication, the guests remained in the chapel while Cardinal Mundelein passed through the new hall blessing every floor. The processional returned to the chapel where, after the sermon, was held solemn benediction of the most blessed sacrament.

Gallery for Art Exhibits.

The new liberal arts hall was completed last fall. It contains five floors. On the ground floor are the grill, the college book store, arts and crafts rooms, and lockers. The first floor houses the administrative offices, reception rooms, study hall, and students' social hall. On the second and third floors are class rooms and lecture halls, seminar rooms, and the little theater. The fourth floor is devoted to the art department, having well lighted studios and a large exhibition gallery.

Rosary college was incorporated in 1918, but the first buildings were not ready for use until 1922. The student enrollment is 300, two-thirds of whom are resident students.

YOUTH HELD AS ROBBER.

Paul Guetter, 17 years old, 5409 South Wood street, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bond of $10,000 by Judge J. William Brooks on the complaint of Mrs. Frances Burda, owner of a meat market at 2801 South Springfield avenue, that Guetter had robbed her of $26.

CHARITY BRIDGE PARTY NETS $79 FOR PUPILS' FUND

A check for $79.26, representing the proceeds of a charity bridge party given by the Fay-Lamad club, was sent the Hungry School Children's fund yesterday by Jean Jacobson, secretary-treasurer. The party was held at the Copeland hotel on May 18, and was attended by 225 guests. Other gifts brought the day's total to $112.68, and sent the fund well over the $48,000 mark. The gifts were sent by:

Total—$112.68.
Previously acknowledged—$47,971.53.
Grand total—$48,084.21.

Better Informed

We are continually gaining new patrons—men who have found Sulka's a house where the best materials are in profusion, where expert fitting is unrivalled, and where pleasing service is paramount. Present economic conditions make necessary a careful study of values, and people are thus better informed than ever before—better judges of quality, more particular in buying, and more discriminating in taste.

It is largely the better qualities that have proved to be a real economy. Nevertheless, the persistent demand for lower prices is tending to increase cheaper grades of merchandise. By strictly adhering to our high standard of quality, priced as low as possible, we have maintained our reputation for only the best and also have greatly increased the prestige of our four shops—New York, Chicago, London and Paris.

GOODYEAR puts traction HERE where it belongs

If you know your SILENCE and SAFETY

UNLESS you're willing to pay your good money for a back number when you buy tires—here are two pictures of vital interest to you.

In these pictures you see the two types of treads used on all the tires offered for sale today.

Look at this new Goodyear and you see traction in the tread center—big husky blocks of rubber—keen-edged—deep-slotted at an angle which means grip and stop, no matter which way a car wants to slide.

Goodyear All-Weather Tread Tires give you the type of tread shown at the right—Goodyears provide the complete and sure-footed safety of traction in the center of the tread where it belongs.

But this year Goodyears give even more. They give you safety and silence both in the first noiseless non-skid tread, the new Silent All-Weather.

Prices Record-breakingly Low!

Never in Goodyear experience—never in all tire history—have the prices of Goodyear Tires been as low as they are today. Don't try to guess them by what you last paid for tires. They're 50% lower than they were five years ago—30% lower than in 1929. And your money today buys the handsomest, toughest, longest-wearing Goodyear All-Weather ever built. Think of that, and ask yourself: Why buy any second-choice tire when first-choice costs no more!

TUNE IN on the Goodyear Program every Wednesday night 8:00 to 8:30 over KYW (N. B. C. Red Network)

What with new cars becoming faster, more powerful every year, it's well to remember that brakes may stop the wheels, but only TIRES can stop the car—and those tires must have traction.

What with engines and bodies built quieter than ever before, it's worth while to watch the tires you buy, and make sure they roll without rumble or hum.

Millions of motorists have discovered the superior safety of the All-Weather Tread. That is one of the big reasons why more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

When you buy tires, get the newest and safest and best. All you need to do is ask yourself the simple question: "Why be satisfied with any second-choice tire when first-choice costs no more?"

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. Mrs. Sully loves her three children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Lew, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Esmee can barely remember the days before her father's death, when they had had a cheerful home. Jimmy Cobeadine forces Lew to introduce him to Esmee. Lew warns her she'll make trouble unless she keeps away from Jimmy. She is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Lew gets in a jam. Esmee promises to get him money. She's afraid to ask Jimmy. She meets Arthur Twining at the home of a former woman employer. He is attentive to Esmee, impressed by her beauty and guilelessness. In her anguish she tells him her troubles and he offers to help. Arthur's roommate is Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright imbued with the futility of life. When Esmee meets him it's love at first sight and she feels his need of her is real. Esmee is late keeping a dinner engagement with Michael because of Jimmy, who threatens trouble. When she gets to Michael's apartment she is met by Twining and Michael's sister, Mrs. Cowley, but no Michael. Returning home she finds Michael waiting for her. He'd been drinking heavily. Esmee takes him home in a cab, but he has no key and can't get in. In desperation she takes him to a hotel and registers as his wife. When she calls the hotel next morning she learns that Michael has checked out. That evening Claire Cowley invites Esmee to dinner and tells her that Michael is engaged. But when Michael calls Esmee goes to see him. He tells her his engagement is broken.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

A WARNING.

"I don't care!" Esmee cried with a sob. "It's finished anyhow."

"Finished?" Michael said. "It isn't even begun. You're going to marry me. You've got to marry me. I won't live without you. I told Linnett how I felt. I'm fond of her, but with you it's so much more than that . . . It's . . . Well, I don't know what the hell it is, only that you and I belong to each other . . ."

"You told Linnett that?"

"I—hurt her . . ." he said, as if the fact bewildered him. "I—You don't know what it was like—to hurt Linnett. She's been so good to me—for so long . . . I don't think I ever hurt any one before like that."

"I bet you have!" thought Esmee, in tears. And aloud she said, "Well, I'm sorry you hurt her. You'd better——"

"Esmee," he said. "I'd hurt anybody. I'd trample on any one, I'd do anything—rather than lose you. It was that way the first moment I saw you. I meant to take care of you, Esmee. I meant to be—so different."

"O, that poor Linnett couldn't feel like this!" she thought. "Nobody could care—like I do . . ."

"Don't have tears in your eyes, little angel!" he said with a break in his voice. "I am going to be different. You'll see. When we're married——"

"But there's Linnett—and sister——"

"You know they don't matter. There's only you and me." He was silent for a moment, then he came toward her and took her in his arms. And it was as if her whole soul rushed out toward him. He kissed her, and she returned his kisses. He was gentle with her, but he was strong. She was sweetly helpless in his arms, clinging to him.

"We're going to be married next week."

"I don't want to do you harm, Michael . . . I wouldn't do you harm—for anything in the whole world."

"Harm me?" he said. "You're my good angel. I shouldn't even try to go on without you, little darling Esmee . . ."

"Little Esmee . . . Poor little lovely Esmee."

"But Michael, dear . . . There's your sister——"

"Yes, there she is," he said. "And there she can stay."

"And there's—Linnett . . ."

"I've told her, little darling. I'm free now."

"But maybe I'm not—not suitable, Michael."

"My God! Can't you understand?" he cried with his quick impatience. "It's got to be you. The moment I saw you I knew I'd got to have you. I only drank and made a clown of myself because I hadn't found you. Now I'll stop all that. As soon as you marry me I'm going to work on a new play. It's been in my mind for six months. There didn't seem any sense in doing anything until I found you."

"Only, Michael . . . O, Michael! If I was just sure I wouldn't do you any harm——"

"Really, you're an awful little idiot, darling," he said. "You won't see what you've done to me. There's something in you that I've never, all my life, found in any one else."

"You don't really feel like that, Michael."

He held her tighter.

"I'll make you believe how I feel," he said.

But in all his young ardor, he was still gentle to her. His caresses were honorable, tender. She felt no shame, no fear, or constraint with Michael.

"We're going to be married next week," he said. "We'll live anywhere, anyhow you like, little darling. Travel, if you like, or get a home and furnish it——"

There was a knock at the door. They both sprang to the feet. Esmee with scarlet cheeks, put her hands to her wildly ruffled hair.

"Some one's brought a note for you, Marriott," said Twining's voice.

"Tell him to take it to hell," said Marriott.

"O! See what it is, Michael!" said Esmee.

"I can manage him!" she thought. "He does love me! He does!"

"All right!" said Marriott, and took a note from the outstretched hand of Twining, who instantly disappeared.

"Mr. Twining doesn't like me, does he?" said Esmee, anxiously.

"Like you?" said Marriott. "He's in love with you. He gave me hell for getting you down here tonight. Said——"

He had been tearing open the envelope as he spoke; now he glanced at the contents and then at Esmee.

"Look here!" he began, and abruptly checked himself. "Nothing . . ." he said. "Sit down again and let's make plans."

But Esmee had read something strange in his face.

"Nothing."

"Could I see, Michael, please?"

"No. You can't. Please don't be a pest, darling."

"It's got something to do with me. I know it, Michael! Michael, it worries me . . ."

"Look here!" he said. "It's absolute melodrama, that's all. I'll tear the infernal thing up and forget it."

She held out her hand, looking up into his face with her clear, beautiful gray eyes. He frowned, hesitated.

"Look here, Esmee. I only want you to know that this doesn't matter—doesn't count. If you've got in a jam somehow—I'll get you out of it, darling. I'll do all the worrying for you now."

She took the note and read it.

"Mr. Michael Marriott:

"Esmee Sully is engaged to another man who is a friend of mine. If you don't keep out of this you are going to be damn sorry.

"LEWIS SULLY."

"Esmee!" cried Marriott. "Don't look like that, darling!"

He took her in his arms again, but he could not soothe her dreadful distress.

"I don't care how many men you're engaged to!" he cried. "As for that brother of yours—"

"Don't say anything against him, please, Michael dear. He . . . I'll—arrange it . . ."

"No, you won't. You couldn't arrange anything. You're too sweet and gentle. I'll see your brother and I'll see this other fellow——"

She seized his arm.

"You mustn't! You don't understand . . . You've got to leave it to me. Michael . . . Michael. I just beg of you not to do anything . . . You don't know . . ."

"Esmee," he said, "don't you think I ought to know?"

She looked at him, and looked away, and was silent.

"Esmee," he said again, "You know how it is with me. You know I don't care what's happened. You're darling, and good, and lovely. I don't care what you've done. Only I think I ought to have a chance to keep you out of any jam you're in. I don't even ask you to tell me everything. I'll never ask you things like that. But you can't look so unhappy and expect me to stand by and do nothing."

But Esmee was still silent. She thought:

"My dear Michael is an understanding person. But I can't tell him this. He'd be sweet. He'd try to understand, but he just—isn't a Sully . . . Of course, Jimmy's got hold of Lew again, in some way. He made him write that note."

And it never occurred to her that because she loved Marriott she could abandon her brother. There was no other course possible to her heart but to be faithful to every one she loved, to the very end.

Michael couldn't get Lew away from Jimmy, but perhaps she could. She thought that perhaps she could. Michael's love had given her new confidence. She thought that perhaps now she could manage Jimmy, appeal to him in some way.

In any case, she would have to see him on Sunday. If she did not, Lew would pay for it.

Paris Offers Way to Look, and Be Cool

Design Chic Dresses for Hot Weather.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—How to be, and look, cool—for the latter is half the battle—when it's ninety in the shade, is one of life's little problems. And how to be both of these things, and look smart at the same time, seems well-nigh impossible. But Paris gives you the answer to all these questions, this summer, girls, as you will see by looking at the accompanying sketch.

Mme. Bruyere is responsible for this dress that typifies hot weather chic. In a very thin silk and wool fabric that does not wrinkle easily, it is in white, the color that personifies coolness. Starting from the center back of the neckline, indicated by a button, a narrow band of white, rather closely woven, silk crochet comes down over the left shoulder and widens into an airy yoke that descends, V shape, almost to the waistline. There are tiny cap sleeves and a wide, black belt in soft kid. The skirt has a pointed hip yoke in front, on to which the lower section of the skirt is gathered.

Bruyere's famous short white silk crochet gloves, that defy the most sizzling temperature, are worn with this dress.

Stand by Your Child, Doris Tells Parents

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The woman has a daughter, an only child, 18, who is about to be married.

"I do not object to her marrying," her mother writes. "It is the way it is being done. She was always such a good girl, has everything she wants, and is all we have in life. But for his people and for him, she slights her own father and mother. His people have been most disagreeable to us.

"Our home is not good enough for the wedding, even. It is to be at his house, so her father and I are not going to have anything to do with it. . . . The people in our town know how she is treating us and cannot understand it. MRS. H. B."

If the girl is going to marry the man at all costs, wouldn't it be better for her parents to attend the wedding and save their own faces, protect the girl, in a way, from community gossip? There is nothing to be gained by bringing the community into a broken family situation. It is better that they should be fooled into believing all is well.

Not an easy rôle for the parents of an only child, to be sure. But, after all, age teaches us surely that this thing called love can work most terrible havoc in family circles. That in order to hold on to the loved daughter or son, strange compromise is sometimes asked of dear, devoted parents.

Is anything gained by holding out on the girl on her wedding day? Are the parents made any happier for the open breach? Unreasonable as the situation appears on the surface, it would be better did the parents attend the wedding, give the girl their blessing, and let their kindness be an incentive to future action on the girl's part. She will need her parents. In the blind folly of youth she may rule them out now, but there will come a day when she'll yearn for them. Better the door were left open for her.

Part of the business of parenting seems to be acting heroically in face of disappointment and heartache. The bigger and better parent you are, the more nobly you rise to such tests.

Cook County School of Nursing Awards Diplomas to Class

A class of 29, smaller by 11 than the class of 1931, received diplomas from the Cook County School of Nursing yesterday afternoon in commencement exercises in Murphy Memorial hall, 50 East Erie street. Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, former president of the Woman's City club and chairman of the educational committee of the board of directors of the Cook County School of Nursing, gave the graduation address. Frank S. Shaw, president of the board, delivered the diplomas.

"We are deliberately holding down the number of students and the size of graduating classes," said Dean Laura R. Logan of the school prior to the exercises. "We have only 125 undergraduate students now, including this class of students."

Scholarships of $250 each for study at the University of Chicago were presented to Miss Geraldine Gunn of Ashland, Ore., who was rated highest in scholarship, character, and excellence in nursing; Miss Carrie May Dokken, Minot, S. D., who was second, and Bernice Terdziak, Kalish, Wis. Honorable mention was given Frances D. Alikonis, Johnston City; Lillian Fisher of Pekin, Ill., Wilma Frances Slapak, Chicago, and Olive M. Rees, Oskaloosa, Ia.

Helen Rend Engaged

MISS HELEN REND
[Moffett Photo.]

Verified

Formal announcement will be made today of the engagement of Miss Helen Rend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Rend of 70 Scott street, to John V. Clarke, son of Louis B. Clarke, former banker. This was learned last night and confirmed by Miss Rend, who said the formal announcement would be made by her mother.

Miss Rend is noted for her ability as a composer and has been prominent in society activities since her debut. She wrote the music that accompanied the Junior league's children's performances of "The Patchwork Girl of Oz" and "Treasure Island" and has composed a number of other musical works.

Miss Rend's sister, Miss Dorothy Rend, was married in 1929 to Thomas Wheelock. Miss Rend is a granddaughter of the late William P. Rend, a pioneer Chicagoan. She has one other sister, Miss Mary Rend.

Good Morning!

Let your eyes and ears quaff deep of "Congress Dances"! It's a sparkling and exhilarating movie draft.

German critics went quite mad over this new product of the UFA studios, and American ones will certainly agree that the piece is something to get cocky over.

This brilliantly directed, acted and sung operetta of 1815 vintage is concerned with an episode of the congress summoned to Vienna by Prince Metternich of Austria to decide once and for all the fate of Napoleon.

The prince is a deep and scheming fellow and it is not his desire that plans of his shall be balked by the presence of Alexander I. of Russia at the momentous meeting. He plots to so occupy the mind of the susceptible czar with romantic philanderings that the latter shall forget politics, and that the mooted question of the day shall be settled in his absence.

But the czar's a smart chap, too. He has a double. When Alexander wishes to go—Alexander goes. On the other hand, matters that bore his royal majesty are attended to by his counterpart—a dull yahoo, fond of embroidery.

Two charming ladies, one fair, one dark; one a working girl, the other a dame of high degree, enter into Metternich's Machiavellian machinations, and, as congress dances, first one and then the other occupies herself with the czar—and, unbeknownst to either—the embroiderer. . . . It is all very clever and amusing.

The production is alive with enchanting tunes and intriguing incident. Note Prince Metternich breakfasting in bed and listening with relish to servants' hall and antechamber gossip relegated to him through various speaking tubes.

Be charmed as I was by the episode where a little milliner suddenly finds herself in a fine carriage being transported from her shop to a gorgeous villa. She rides, lilting a gayly descriptive song that is caught up, now here, now there, by the laughing crowds who witness her passage and wish her luck. Her entrance into the villa and her discovery of its varied beauties combine to make one of the most delightful bits of interpretative pantomime that has ever been captured by the camera. Lillian Harvey—the little milliner. A new and most refreshing "find." She was once in the musical comedies of Mr. C. B. Cochran.

Lil Dagover, who is proving one of the best screen bets of the day, plays the dark enchantress expertly. Conrad Veidt, who usually specializes in "horror" rôles, appears au natural this trip, and, behold, he is a fine, gay chap and as clever an actor "straight" as ever he was in character portrayal. All of the playing in this picture is the last word in skill.

As pageant, "Congress Dances" is a formal, exquisite, richly accoutred period offering, completely bewitching from start to finish. Dialogue is all in English.

This unusual film has been received with acclaim by audiences overseas where have been presented French, German and English versions. Its failure here will not speak well for the discrimination of the American movie-goer.

But who says it's going to fail? It couldn't!

See you tomorrow!

Card Party Will Aid Summer Camp for Crippled Children

A benefit card party for the maintenance of a summer camp for crippled children will be held Saturday afternoon at the Shoreland hotel by the faculties of the Christopher and Gompers schools for crippled children.

MRS. ROBINSON.

The camp will be conducted at Twin Lake, Plymouth, Ind., from June 17 until the opening of the schools in September, by Mrs. Florence Prouty Robinson, one of the pioneers in work among crippled children. The camp has been in existence for more than a quarter of a century and this year will take care of 300 children. The maintenance is dependent on voluntary subscriptions.

It was Mrs. Robinson, a social worker, who early in the century persuaded the board of education to provide teachers and school space for crippled children. She provided the first bus to carry children of the stockyards district to and from their homes and the Fallon school.

Owasippe Scout Camps Will Open on July 11

The Owasippe Scout camps of the Chicago Council of Boy Scouts in America will open for the 21st season on July 11, the council headquarters announced yesterday. These camps are located on a thousand acres of land and five lakes near Muskegon, Mich. In the summer of 1931 a total of 2,894 boys were accommodated.

Story of U. S. for Europeans Misses Mark

Writers Seek Cleverness in Criticism.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"America as Americans See It," edited by Fred J. Ringel. [Harcourt-Brace.] Published today.

PERTURBED by the lack of understanding with which most Europeans discuss the United States, Fred J. Ringel conceived the idea of presenting a picture of present day America to Europe. The phenomenon of America among his European friends was considered "chiefly under two aspects," he declares, "either as the bastard child of European culture depending always on the old continent for sustenance, or as a unique civilization of the western hemisphere, born in innocence, with an original and independent evolution all its own."

"Those who had not been here," he continues in a foreword, "depended for their information about America on the sensational articles in newspapers and magazines and on the flood of impressionistic travel books by casual visitors. . . .

"Those who had seen America were struck with the deadening standardization of American life. It was their contention that certain isolated centers conditioned and determined the entire cultural life of the country—Detroit gave Americans their desire for maximum speed; Grand Rapids dictated what period of furniture and atmosphere they were to live their modern lives in; Hollywood reversed the flight of their dreams . . . Chicago taught the nation how to combine the slaughter of cattle and gangland feuds; New York set the fashion for whatever small dribble of art and culture seeped out of the metropolis."

Charge Life on Surface.

"The summary of the indictment was that the American people lived entirely on the surface; that they had sophistication without having a real basis for it; that . . . their literature had as yet not created any great figure for the masses . . . that women still dominated the country as they had in pioneer days and set the pace and direction in the artistic and literary development of America; that Americans . . . had forgotten to create a national culture; that every artistic and cultural expression could only mean an increase of their physical comfort and could never stir in them the emotional gamut of ambition; that . . . they had created the materialistic complex of the bigger and better, greater and purer, ending always in cellophaned superlatives; that they had . . . with the accumulation of wealth, created social barriers which could hardly be harsher in any European country. Finally, that they had to standardize the million dollar smile of joy and the philosophy of the 'happy ending' to mask their infinite loneliness and despair."

To tell Europeans the truth about America Mr. Ringel decided to get representative Americans to answer the tacit indictments or, rather, to state the facts about their own country. The book was intended for publication in European countries, but when it was assembled it "promised to be equally interesting to American readers. So, strangely enough," he says, "it is being published first in this country."

46 Writers Give Views.

Forty-six well known writers have contributed articles on every phase of American life except religion, politics, the speakeasy, and the eighteenth amendment. The book is illustrated with photographs and reproductions of the paintings of a hundred well known artists. It does, in fact, present a panorama of American life from the point of view of Americans.

I quoted at such great length from the editor's foreword because it seems to me that "America as Americans See It" more clearly expresses those preconceived ideas of the European who has been to America than they do anything else about American life. Perhaps that is because the writers who were chosen mostly belong to the school of the modern critics of the country rather than the school of the modern believers in it.

Boosting America, like boosting any other product, is the job of a press agent and not of a serious student of modern life. But there is a definite tendency nowadays in American literature to say the smart thing, to see only the foibles in our very young and very green culture, and to state them cleverly for the sake of cleverness. It is such writers in the main whom Mr. Ringel sought out to contribute to his symposium. The result is an amusing, clever, sometimes brilliant criticism of America which would be enlightening and superbly stimulating to Americans, and if the book were intended only for American consumption it would give light to many.

The facts of American life are known to all Americans. It is their interpretation in which readers need to be led, and to those who know the facts the interpretation of the weak spots only is stimulating. We know America's strength. We need guidance to her weaknesses in order to preserve that strength.

But to Europeans clever, even short, essays on what is wrong with America is not a picture of America as Americans see it. It is a brilliant caricature.

Clows Mark 50th Wedding at Reception

Children Are Hosts to Family Friends.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WILLIAM E. CLOW and Margaret Sarver Clow, his bride of 50 years ago, received more than 200 of their friends and neighbors yesterday afternoon at the golden wedding reception given by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Clow, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Douglas, at "Wyndwold," the senior Clows' residence in Lake Forest.

Wearing a flowing white chiffon gown and carrying white lilacs, the flowers that composed her bridal bouquet half a century ago, Mrs. Clow stood beside her husband at the head of the receiving line. Despite the fact that they are great-grandparents neither of them looked much older than they do in the Louis Betts portraits which hang on their living room walls, although the portraits were painted when Mr. and Mrs. Clow were much younger than they are today.

In the receiving line, besides the Clows and their children, were their granddaughter, Mrs. Lloyd A. Lafin, and Mrs. Clow's sister, Miss Martha Sarver. Yellow roses were used to decorate the drawing room and the tea table in the dining room was bright with white lilacs and gardenias. The party was gay and informal, with many of the guests strolling through the Clows' sunken garden and around their lovely blue lined swimming pool.

Among those who came to offer congratulations were Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, Mrs. Charles H. Requa, Mrs. Stewart Johnson, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. William E. Casselberry, Mrs. Charles S. Holt, Miss Ellen Holt, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund A. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. John V. Farwell, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. C. Frederick Childs, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Tracy C. Drake, Miss Helen Drake, Mrs. Louis E. Lafin, and Mrs. James B. Keogh of New York.

Harris School Graduation.

The four boys who are graduating from Miss Harris' school this year have planned their own commencement exercises, and from the subjects that have been chosen for the addresses at the commencement banquet I should say the young men will show what keen senses of humor they have, as well as what scholastic learning they have acquired during the years they have been preparing for college.

In years past the boys who finished their college preparatory work at Miss Harris' school just left without any exercises or festivities, but this year Curtis Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Rogers of Highland Park; William Barker, son of the William H. Barkers, also of Highland Park; Paul Poole, son of the Frederick A. Pooles of 3100 Sheridan road, and Newton King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin P. King of 5434 Hyde Park boulevard, decided that they would like to have a commencement banquet, so Miss Harris and the other teachers have helped with the arrangements, but the four seniors have done most of the planning.

The banquet is to be held tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock at the Belden-Stratford hotel, and Gilbert Younglove, a junior, is to be toastmaster. Young Mr. Rogers will deliver an address on "The Passing of the Porch," and Frank Bell, a junior, will reply with "Accepting the Porch."

"Bill" Barker's subject is "My International Education"; Newton King will discuss "The Last Year"; Paul Poole will give the class history and prophecy; Charles Dering, a junior, will talk on "Sportsmanship," and William Heneage's subject will be "Team Play."

Miss Harris will award the diplomas after the addresses and then the junior class will give a "prom" for the seniors. Young Heneage, who is a junior and lives in Oak Park, was awarded a cup for being the best all around athlete in the school at the field meet yesterday, and Bradford Ripley received a bronze shield for being the boy with the finest sportsmanship. Curtis Rogers and William Barker are planning to enter Yale next year, Newton King wil go to Princeton, and Paul Poole will enter the University of Chicago.

Harriet Moore Awarded Honors.

A wire from Bryn Mawr college yesterday brought the news that Harriet Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip W. Moore of Winnetka, who was graduated from Bryn Mawr yesterday, was awarded summa cum laude in economics and politics and the European fellowship, which is given to the senior with the highest average.

Miss Moore was president of the undergraduate association, undergraduate representative on the May day committee, and captain of the varsity hockey team. Mrs. Moore is at Bryn Mawr for her daughter's commencement and they are expected to return to Winnetka tomorrow or Saturday.

Brayton Slade, who is receiving his master's degree from the school of business administration at Harvard today, will be at home in about a week or ten days to spend the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Slade of North State street and to "hunt a job," of course. Young Mr. Slade was graduated from Yale two years ago.

The Dan U. Camerons of Astor street have to be present at the commercement exercises at two eastern colleges this month, but fortunately they aren't both on the same day, although one, at Williams, is on the 20th, and the other, at Yale, is on the 21st, so they will have to rush from Williamstown, Mass., to New Haven, Conn., as fast as a train or motor car will carry them.

Jack, who fell a year behind in his college work because of the serious automobile accident he suffered several years ago, is being graduated from Williams, and Gordon will receive his sheepskin at Yale. Young Barton is finishing at the Asheville Prepara-

Here're Ways to Vary Usual Bacon Service

Full Delicious Flavor Brought Out.

BY MARY MEADE.

We do get into such food ruts.

There's bacon, for instance, which hides in its fatty mottled slices oceans of flavor and whole worlds of interesting possibilities for varying the week's menu. But alas and alack, what do we do with it? Too often we serve it day after day frizzled up with our morning egg—and not too expertly frizzled at that. Surely it's not giving bacon a fair break and a chance to taste and look its smartest and its most flavorful.

Moreover, since it's ours to count the pennies in the kitchen, the low price quoted these days for bacon is another drawing card to inspire us to hunt bacon specials—before the price jogs up again.

But before we dive into glorified bacon cookery—a word about a matter which may make or break the reputation of a slice of bacon. That is, the simple method of broiling it. Women often make the mistake of cooking bacon at too high a temperature, and thereby turn out sad looking burnt or rubbery strips. Instead, place the strips in a cold skillet over a low flame and cook slowly, pouring off the excess fat from time to time. If you like crisply browned strips, the flame may be increased toward the end of the cooking time. Or, if you prefer, cook it in a slow oven fifteen minutes.

BAKED EGGS IN BACON CUPS.

A simple luncheon dish may be made by lining muffin tins or ramekins with slightly panbroiled bacon strips. Into the center of each ring plop an egg. Over the eggs sprinkle salt and pepper and bake in a moderately hot oven [410 degrees F.] until the eggs are set and the bacon tender. Lift out on to plates, garnish with parsley, and serve with fresh vegetables.

Bacon strips may be used in an infinite variety of ways to conceal surprises. For instance, prepare sweetbreads for final cooking, cut in large pieces, and around each wrap a thin strip of bacon. Fasten with toothpicks and brown in a slow oven or a skillet until crisp. Or there are mushrooms for centers. Two of the large ones, skinned and placed flat sides together, may be wrapped with a bacon slice skewered and broiled. "Hot dogs" wrapped in bacon and broiled over a campfire are something else to become excited about, gastronomically. And of course, all kinds of meat patties can be circled with bacon slices before cooking, and are many times the better for the added flavor and crispness.

A generous quantity of bacon chopped into your favorite recipe for veal and beef loaf—and the baking pan paved and the loaf top covered with additional strips—that, say I, is a luscious dish fit for the most select of guests.

Bacon breakfast muffins, you all know, simply substitute slightly pan broiled chopped bacon and its fat for the fat indicated in the muffin recipe. And some day work the same substitution on waffles and griddle cakes. This year's shaved maple sugar makes a delicious accompaniment to these crisp offerings.

BACON AND CHEESE OMELET.

½ teaspoon salt.
Pepper and paprika to taste.
6 tablespoons milk.
½ cup diced bacon.
1 cup grated snappy cheese.

Blend the eggs, milk, and seasoning. Brown the bacon in a hot skillet and add the egg mixture. Cook over a low heat until firm, shaking occasionally to insure even cooking. When done, spread with the grated cheese, brown quickly, fold over, and serve garnished with crisp watercress.

GRILLED BACON AND MUSHROOMS.

For this delectable luncheon or Sunday night treat, prepare fresh mushrooms by peeling and stemming, and, if large, break into halves or thirds. Slip on to long metal skewers alternately with inch squares of lean bacon. Press the grill together, and broil, or bake in a hot oven until the bacon is crisp and brown. Serve at once on hot buttered toast.

Bright Sayings of the Children

When washing dishes I let my little daughter help. I usually praise her and tell her how nicely she does, which pleases her. One day she did not care to help. I called, "Come, Betty! Mother and Betty are going to wash the dishes now." She replied, "I guess I'll teach you how to do it 'cause some day Betty might not be home." Mrs. W.

Vogue for Red Demands Just the Right Rouge

Match Your Lipstick to Your Frock.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I read the other day that one of our "best dressed" women appeared at an afternoon fête wearing a scarlet frock and a scarlet sailor tipped nattily to expose her honey blond curls on one side. Within my recollection there was a time when a blond appearing like that would have been snubbed by the virtuous nobility.

"Dear, dear! A girl just couldn't be good and break out in a scarlet rash like that!" . . . Business of whispers and more whispers. . . . But that was some years ago, thank heavens! Now, your maid of unblemished reputation can paint her hair scarlet, and whatever may be said for her taste, at least her morals will remain unmolested.

But it brings up the subject of colors in dress and makeup again. Red is a popular shade this year, as you know. A whole gamut of red shades are being worn. If you want to get in your best work with that red dress of yours consider your lipstick and your rouge as you'd consider your silhouette at a Chinese banquet. You shure can ruin yourself, your looks, to say nothing of your personality, if you use a violet red lipstick with a Chinese red frock. An orange red lipstick with certain shades of red is pretty bad, too.

Better try to match the lipstick to the dress color as closely as possible. Be careful of the rouges and powders, to. You don't want to get that ruddy, buxom look, or that flushed face with a rouge that will do this very thing to you. I can't tell you exactly what shade to wear without seeing the dress coloring. But you're bright; experiment yourself.

And be careful of eye shadow with the red frock. Gray is not likely to be good, nor green; blut is not so good either. Try brown.

About wearing black, which you may hold to because it makes you look pale and interesting. It's a good idea to try to look like that, if you are slender. Then, for your more playful moments lay on the rouge, Mrs. MacDuff, and put a deep lipstick to work, then go ahead and smash the boy friend's dreams of bachelor blessedness.

Try your level best to get a good sun tan this year, if you're going in for white. It's a wonderful background.

tory school on June 15 and will enter Yale or Princeton next fall.

Dan, who was a freshman at Northwestern university this year, expects to continue his college work there ne :t year. The Camerons will go to their summer place on Lake Delavan the last of the month and although the two college graduates expect to be hunting jobs, along with all the other young men who are just out of college, I have an idea these two popular beaux will spend most of the summer at Delavan.

Bush Girls to Study in France.

Mrs. William H. Bush, who has been in Texas on business, will return next week to prepare to sail for France on June 21 with her daughters, Miss Emeline and Miss Caroline Bush, who are to study painting and architecture, respectively, this summer at the American School of Fine Arts at Fontainebleau. Miss Caroline, who has been studying in Boston for several months, will return home tomorrow.

The girls are anticipating a pleasant summer at the American school, which is housed in the Belle Cheminee wing of the magnificent palace which served as a country seat of the kings of France. The institution was an overture of friendship on the part of the French government toward the United States. It was founded in 1923 and was an outgrowth of the art training center for American soldiers in France under the direction of Lloyd Warren. While the school is for American students only, the administration is French and the faculty is entirely French. Jacques Carlu, winner of the Grand Prix de Rome and professor of architecture at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, serves as director. Walter Damrosch, who was active head of the school center for musicians during the war, is president of the Fine Arts and Music schools, and a committee of Americans acts as an executive board.

News Notes from White Mountains.

From the White mountains comes news of the Chicago families who summer in that "Switzerland of America." Mr. and Mrs. John J. Glessner maintain a large estate at Littleton, The Rocks, beside which is the summer place of Mrs. George Glessner, and also that of the former Frances Glessner, now Mrs. Lee.

Mrs. John Glessner is president of the White Mountain Garden club and her greenhouses and gardens always give beautiful exhibits at the annual garden show held at the Maplewood club in midsummer. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham of 6 Scott street is planning to open her lovely hill-top place at Sugar Hill the end of this month [she will leave Chicago on the 23d]. Her daughters, Mrs. Ernest Poole and Mrs. Winterbotham Buchanan, both have old farms adjoining their mother's property, but Mrs. Buchanan will be there only until the end of July for she plans to go abroad at that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell B. Erminger Jr. and their children usually spend some part of each season in their cottage at the Mountain View house at Whitefield, although last year they visited Honolulu and so missed their customary visit to the White mountains. This summer they will be in the cottage for only about a week after Carolyn is graduated from Smith college, for they have taken the Frederick Scott house in Winnetka for the summer and only plan to visit Whitefield for a week after they leave Northampton.

Carolyn comes home next Monday and the whole family will return east with her for her commencement on the 20th. Carolyn refuses to make a forma) debut next season, but she will be at home and so no doubt will take part in most of the debutante festivities.

The Mark Skinner Willings have a beautiful villa at the Waumbek at Jefferson, but having spent most of their time in California or at their estate in the Virginia hunting country, have not occupied it for the last two summers. Mrs. Willing's sister, Mrs. John Kendrick Bangs Jr. of Detroit, usually goes there with Mr. Bangs for a part of each summer.

Several scientists and educators from Chicago are expected in the White mountains during late August to witness the thrilling spectacle of a total eclipse of the sun, which occurs there on Aug. 31 and will not be seen again until about the year 2000. Resorts in the hills are in the direct path of the eclipse and visitors from all over the country are making reservations for that time, our correspondent writes.

Reed Children to Repeat Dances.

Those talented Reed children, Dorothy, who is 12, and Joan, who is two years younger, are going to give a third performance of the dances they have originated—Mary Wigman was their inspiration, I'm told—tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at 1143 East 46th street for Mabel Pearse's other dancing pupils. The other two performances, the first at the residence of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Reed Jr. of Evanston, and the second at Mr. and Mrs. Norman Westerhold's Evanston residence, were given for their families and friends.

Kathryn Westerhold and Margaret Dunbar, daughter of Mrs. Donald Dunbar, also of Evanston, assist the Reed children in the dances. The children designed their own costumes and helped to make them. Mrs. Reed is the former Edith Lobdell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell of 2716 Prairie avenue.

When Mrs. Allen Wilson sails next Wednesday on the Aquitania to spend the summer in England with her sister, Mrs. Oliver C. Bryson, she will be accompanied by Mrs. Otis L. Hubbard of Lake Forest, who also will summer in England and on the continent. Mr. Hubbard will join his wife a fortnight later and they will return early in August for the wedding of his sister, Helen Kent Hubbard, which is to take place in Camden, Me. Little Otis Hubbard Jr. is to be with his grandparents, the Kent Hubbards, in Connecticut and Maine while his parents are away.

The James R. Addingtons and their infant son are to occupy the Hubbards' house during their absence. Mrs. Hubbard was Miss Florence Addington.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. S. Soule of Milton, Mass., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to Gebhardt W. Petersen, son of William H. Petersen of 4300 Lake Shore drive, Chicago. Miss Soule attended Milton academy and was graduated from Miss Wheeler's school at Providence, R. I., in 1929. Since then she has traveled in Europe and done some social service work in Boston. Mr. Petersen prepared at the Parker school and after two years at the University of Illinois went to Europe to study architecture, chiefly in Germany. There are no plans for the wedding.

Visitor Here for "Debut Ball."

Mrs. Mark Hanna III. is coming up from Cleveland to spend the weekend with Miss Jane Willett and to attend the "debut ball" Miss Willett and Miss Helen La Chance are having at the Willett penthouse on Lincoln Park West Saturday night. The party gives promise of being a bright spot in the lives of the .ay young crowd with whom Miss Willett and Miss La Chance go, for everything is to be sort of topsy-turvy with young men as assistants to the "debutantes" instead of girls and so on and so forth

It is seldom that we hear of any one "going south for the summer," but that is what the Lon C. Hill Jr. family of Winnetka is planning to do, and after hearing about the l.nch, the sailboat, the bathing in the Gulf of Mexico and all the other pleasant things the family will enjoy at Point Isabel in Texas I think it sounds as if it would be a delightful summer for the Hills.

Mr. Hill's business is keeping him in Texas, so Mrs. Hill and the children, Georgette, Lon C. III., and Owsley, will leave for Point Isabel as soon as school is out, soon after the middle of June. Mrs. Hill's mother, Mrs. George Knox Owsley, will occupy the Hill house on Prospect avenue during the Hills' absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Hill [no relation to the Lon Hills] of Lake Forest are leaving the end of next week for a three months' trip abroad.

Quiet Wedding

Miss Rue Winterbotham, daughter of Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, became the bride of Alfred Phillips Shaw yesterday afternoon at a quiet home wedding, the service having been read at 5 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Duncan Browne in the presence of the families and a few close friends in the Winterbotham residence at 1301 Astor street.

The bride wore the white satin gown in which her cousin, "Ginny" Carpenter, became the bride of Patrick C. Hill last December, the former Miss Carpenter having made the gown.

Miss Winterbotham also wore her cousin's wedding veil of tulle and a lace cap, and she carried a prayer book instead of flowers. The bride's only attendants, her nieces, Theodora and Anne Badger, 5 and 3 years old, respectively, wore old-fashioned frocks of white satin with yellow sashes. Orville Davies of New York, who formerly lived in Chicago, was Mr. Shaw's best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw left immediately after the ceremony for New York to sail for a six weeks' European trip.

Not since I learned about KLEENEX Disposable Tissues!"

ASK any woman to name the household task she hates most. She'll say "washing dirty handkerchiefs." It's about the most repulsive task imaginable—and may be dangerous as well, if the handkerchiefs are contaminated with cold or other germs.

Fortunately, this dreadful task is no longer necessary in any home.

Use Kleenex instead!

Buy a package of Kleenex and say goodby to handkerchief washing! These soft tissues are superior to handkerchiefs in every way—and when used, you simply destroy! No washing! No self-infection! No laundry bill—if you have handkerchiefs washed commercially.

A generous package of Kleenex costs only as much as one inexpensive handkerchief, at any drug, dry goods or department store. Try it for wiping spectacles, razor blades—caring for baby—removing face creams.

KLEENEX disposable TISSUES

Active Sports Clothes Offer Style, Comfort

Shops Offer Just Right Togs for Summer.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THE most serious shoppers are obviously those with wrinkled brows and frenzied question marks in their eyes, searching for comfortable, cool, sports clothes . . . the kind of sportswomen who take clothes seriously, shoppers who know what's what but who in the past have almost had to compromise and take what they could get. Those hazardous times can be forgotten . . . this summer Chicago shops are filled with an impressive array of all kinds and colors and styles of active sports clothes . . . snappy new things which are correct enough in cut and design to pass the inspection of any knowing professionals.

If you have had any sinking spells of fear or tremors, or distinct pains in the neck about your summer sports togs, you will be rapidly cured after your first shopping expedition.

You can safely and confidently demand anything in the way of trappings for whatever sport you lose weight over . . . good looking tennis togs with plenty of pleats that will facilitate every bit of breezing action you can manage on the courts, dresses of silk and cotton with wide armholes and short sleeves and, much wider armholes without sleeves . . . necklines are low in front and perceptibly lower in back, skirts are short and sportingly businesslike.

Golfing enthusiasts who pile out of bed in the middle of the night in order that they may tee off just as soon as the sun sneaks over the horizon can select some of the best looking outfits that ever came to town . . . dresses in cotton, thin wools, and silk crêpes, models that really do this inverted plait racket up right . . . pleats in front, side, back, and in both bodice and skirt, most of the newest ones are designed with three or four pockets, a rather pessimistic gesture to aid the gallant loser of balls.

Landlubbers who plan to sail the bounding deep, balance themselves aslant a slippery deck and maintain their reputation as a well dressed person ashore or asea, will grab the new yachting flannels, not forgetting the rubber soled shoes that leave no telltale mark on polished wood so dear to the nautical heart of the pernickety yachtsman. You may swelter on land, but you will, if you know your lake breezes, wear good, warm, comfortable flannels when you shove off for any kind of a short or long cruise.

These and practically all other known outfits, to properly garb the gal who lives strenuously and excitingly are ready and waiting for your selection at prices that are mercifully kind to an easily depleted clothes allowance.

Advertising Art Exhibit of A. of C. Council Opens

The eleventh annual exhibit of advertising art opened yesterday in the Wedgwood room of the Marshall Field & Co. store. Several hundred advertising designs which won recognition during 1931 are on display. The purpose of the exhibition is to show the trend of art in present day advertising. The exhibit is sponsored by the advertising council of the Chicago Association of Commerce and will continue for two weeks.

Chicago girls to be graduated today from Clarke college at Dubuque, Ia., include Miss Loretta Dugan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Dugan of 1751 Arthur avenue; Miss Helen Condon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Condon of 1121 Roosevelt road; Miss Irene O'Connell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connell of 1508 Pratt boulevard, and Miss Rosemary Dempsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwin Dempsey of Wilmette.

Be Lenient with Mistakes Made by the Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Questions: "I don't think parents should rave so over the mistakes and accidents their children have. Don't you think this is one of the things that kills confidence in themselves?"

Answer: Most assuredly. As some one has put it, "Children are entitled to their mistakes." Some of us forget that and are more lenient with the mishaps of adults than of children.

Question: "Do you know of any new books that would be suitable for a girl in her teens—just some wholesome fiction that is neither historical nor informing? There are so many books put out that it is hard to pick the good ones from the bad.

Answer: There are two good books recently published that just about fit this description. "Sarah and Her Dog Dakin," by Mabel L. Robinson, is a simple and attractive story of a young girl living down east. Her beautiful collie, who is really as much a person as any one in the book; her kindly and humorous father, and a temperamental musician and his daughter supply the main characters. Unlike many juvenile books, this one is shot with humor. Published by E. P. Dutton.

"Barbara Benton, Editor," by Helen Diehl Olds, is the story of a young girl who is suddenly confronted with the task of editing a paper in a small Texas town where she lives. A touch of mystery and a touch of romance give color to a good tale. And a real little boy and an old, kindly judge give characterization. Published by Appleton.

There is less and less tendency in the current juvenile fiction to make real heroes and heroines out of the chief characters. We can all easily remember in the books that we read as children when the boy supported the whole family and eventually achieved fame and riches, or the girl was so good and beautiful and so sought after, and eventually married the most popular boy in town!

That sort of tale, instead of lending glamour to life, more often made the everyday events seem uninteresting and drab, and we and our playmates inferior. Fortunately, many of the books being written these days are about everyday boys and girls, doing everyday things, and they bear a real relation to the lives most of our children live.

Good Painting Marks Display of Art Group

Painters and Sculptors Hold Exhibition.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors opened an exhibition of work by members yesterday in the Chicago galleries. It is a most colorful and interesting show. The development of Mary Wicker as a fine painter is one feature which strikes you at once. She shows a magnificent canvas portraying a hill town in Corsica, with castles and bridge and romance all fused together into a living and vital whole. She also offers an exceedingly well drawn head of a Negro boy, sensitively handled.

Another feature which takes you by surprise is the growth of Claude Buck in the painting of still life, something after the fashion, clear and exquisitely chiseled, of Joseph Allworthy. Mr. Buck offers a simple composition of Chinese pottery horse and quizzical mask that is one of the decorative bits of drama in the show. Mr. Allworthy, across the gallery, increases his reputation as a craftsman with a delightful study of a Chinese figurine admiring herself in the glass.

Frank V. Dudley brings summer into the exhibit with a gay scene of fishermen along the beach. Anna Lynch and Gerald Frank offer stunning flower arrangements. Frank C. Peyraud shows a sensitive portrait of winter. Othmar Hoffler and J. Jeffrey Grant portray boats, rich in key. Ingeborg Christensen offers a charming "Say It with Roses," flower study, and an appealing; in fact, a fascinating, child's portrait in "The Prize Winners," a little girl with an armful of wire haired terrier.

One of the most striking canvases in the exhibit is "The Dummy," by Mr. Harper, a bridge table, the dummy hand down, and the dummy holder, a young girl, drinking from a tall glass while a cigaret idles on the tray beside her. Imagination is not dead yet, while such portraits are painted. Another beautiful portrait study is "The New Book," by Pauline Palmer, and still another is Oskar Gross' portrait of his wife.

The exhibition will continue to July 1 and is full of good things. No one interested in painting can afford to miss it.

Pattern for Summery Looking Dress Flattering to Both Matron and Maid

WOMEN'S AND MISSES' BLOUSE.

This summery looking dress is equally suited to maid or matron. Navy blue and white printed silk crêpe, with the collar of plain blue crêpe would be wearable and smart, while a beige silk crêpe, with brown collar, buttons, and sash is another chic suggestion.

The pattern, 2875, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material with 1 yard of 39 inch contrasting.

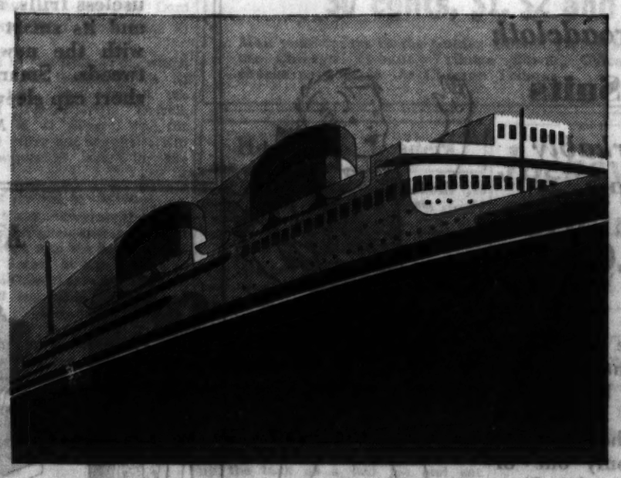
ANNOUNCING THE NEW

GEORGIC

WORLD'S LARGEST CABIN LINER



MAIDEN VOYAGE to EUROPE
JULY 9th
LATER SAILINGS
AUG. 13; SEPT. 10

Why describe the Georgic in detail? She has everything that a modern, 27,000 ton liner can have, the best that over half a century of shipping experience can dictate. Let us send you descriptive literature. You'll agree, with us, that the second sister is even more magnificent than the first.

Sister ship of the most popular Cabin liner in the world . . . the BRITANNIC

Luxury, beauty, smartness, modernity—an assured success before she starts! Why? Because she's the sister ship of the great motor liner Britannic, the most popular Cabin ship in the world.

A sister ship, yes! But even finer, we think, than the Britannic. Months of study, months of craftsmanship, have gone to make her White Star's supreme contribution to the art of gracious living at sea.

We're tremendously proud of the new Georgic—but yours is the credit for her—28,274 of you who have chosen to travel on the Britannic in less than two years.

INTERNATIONAL GOLDEN GLOVES TICKETS GO ON SALE

21,000 SEATS AT 50 CENTS FOR GERMAN BOUTS

Fight Chicagoland Champions July 26.

BY ARCH WARD.

The ticket sale for the biggest amateur boxing match ever presented anywhere opens today. The bouts will bring together the champions of Germany and the champions of Chicagoland at Soldiers' field July 26. This will be the second of the international Golden Gloves series. Last year 40,000, boxing's largest crowd of 1931, saw a combined Chicago-New York team whip the representatives of France in the lake front arena.

Forty-six thousand seats will be reserved for the German match. The prices range from 50 cents to three dollars. All ticket orders must be accompanied by check payable to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and should be addressed to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

19,000 Ringside Seats.

A specially constructed ringside with accommodations for 19,000 will be built for the match. The ring will be pitched under the south goal posts of the football field, thus enabling thousands in the permanent stands of the stadium horseshoe to get a good view of the bouts. Last year the ring was erected in the center of the gridiron.

This will be the first time Golden Gloves bouts have been presented to reserved seat customers for 50 cents. There are nearly 21,000 seats at this price. The three dollar section contains 12,000 seats, the two dollar section 7,000, and the one dollar section 6,000.

The ringside will be elevated starting at the 12th row at an average rise of more than three inches a row. This will be three times the elevation of the same section at the French bouts. It is approximately the rise between rows at Chicago Stadium. The farthest seats of the ringside will be the height of the 12th row of the permanent stands.

By placing the ring at the south end of the gridiron more good seats are available than if it were located in midfield. The first row of the dollar section, for example, will be only 160 feet from the scene of action. The best of the 50 cent seats will be 192 feet from the ring.

Germany Picks Great Team.

The German boxers will arrive in Chicago July 19. The bouts at Soldiers' field will be their only appearance as a unit in the United States. Three of the fighters will go to Los Angeles for the Olympic games, but the others will return to Germany immediately after the match in Chicago.

Net proceeds of the bouts will be donated to the American Olympic fund. Chicago's only hope of obtaining its quota of the fund rests in the success of the international match, according to Avery Brundage, president of the Olympic committee.

The German Amateur Boxing association, under the direction of President Frederick Burger, has combed the country for material. Sectional tournaments have been conducted in each province. Winners later met at Munich for the national championships and they since have been tested in international competition with Denmark, England, Poland, and Hungary.

Germany has reason to believe it will defeat the strongest fighters Chicago can present. Last October a team of Americans, including the leading amateurs of New York and Boston, were beaten in Berlin, 10 bouts to 6. The team the Fatherland will send to Chicago will be stronger than the one that whipped the American invaders last fall, according to Herr Burger.

Start Training July 5.

The Chicago squad will start training July 5 at a camp in southern Wisconsin. Three or four boys in each division will fight it out during the training period for the right to fight a German. Nobody will be certain of a place on the team until he has demonstrated he is the strongest available.

Adam Smith of Rockford, for example, is the Golden Glove heavyweight champion. He will have to convince the coaches, however, that he is a better man than Duffy Dvonch, the Great Lakes sailor, who was forced to withdraw from the tournament after breaking his hand in the quarter finals. Gene Klopack, who knocked out his New York opponent in the inter-city bout, also will be a candidate for heavyweight honors.

Several of the Chicago fighters, notably Leo Rodak, Johnny Phagan, Vernon Miller, and Smith, passed up a chance to enter the Olympic games in order to be available for the team that fights Germany.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The famous Dizzy Dean worked some of his pitching eccentricities on the first place Cubs with amazing results yesterday. The young man who months ago promised he would knock the big league flat made good on his promise, at least for the day, by holding his would be assailants away from the plate long enough to let the world champion Cardinals win, 1 to 0, in a game confined to seven innings because of a deluge.

But the Cubs, especially Pat Malone, had no reason to regret the curtailment. When the Cards stepped forth to do their swinging in a darkened atmosphere in the eighth, a high wind carried two of their drives beyond the left field barriers. Before they could complete their half, or the Cubs could suffer through theirs, the umpires decided they were not being paid to stand out in the rain. So the show, after the usual wait, was canceled and the score reverted to seven innings.

Martin, Delker Hit Long Ones.

If the downpour hurt anybody it was John [Pepper] Martin and Eddie Delker, both members of the visiting cast. They were the two who hoisted drives into the gale in the eighth and watched them sail into the left field seats and over the left field wall, respectively. Martin, at least, had consolation in the fact that his hit drove in the run that beat Malone in the opening inning, but for Delker it was just the climax of a week of bad luck. He hadn't produced a hit in eighteen times at bat. He never had exploded a big league homer. He has one now, but it doesn't count.

So far as hits in seven innings were concerned Dean didn't have anything on Malone, but he didn't allow anything longer than singles, whereas a triple was the Cub star's Waterloo. The Cubs had the first man on base of four occasions and once got two singles in the same inning. Yet with all these opportunities the league leaders weren't robust enough to shove a runner farther than second base. Three double plays by the Cards' infield was the cause.

Orsatti Comes Marching Home.

The champions had Malone on the spot almost as soon as he started his day's work. Orsatti opened the game with a single to left center and promptly legged it around to the plate with what proved the winning run on Martin's triple in the same direction. Then Malone started to pitch. Martin hugged third while Hendrick fanned, Collins popped a puny foul to Hartnett, and Watkins hoisted to English. Malone kept up this pace for quite a spell.

The Cubs began making their series of threats as early as the second inning. Hornsby coaxed Dean for a pass, but Stephenson bounced into a double play. Grimm singled and Hartnett flied to center. Malone and Gudat conspired in the third by singling with one gone. Another double play ruined this chance. There also were two on in the fifth with one out as the result of Gelbert's bad throw on Grimm and Jurges' single. Nothing hap-

Be President! Be Anything! Hire a Fight Press Agent

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 1.—The quadrennial baby-kissing season is about to start if, indeed, it cannot be said to have started at the White House the other day, and I am wondering if it would be possible for some of the presidential candidates and decoys to make use of some of the unemployed prizefight press agents who are experts in the human interest type of story.

There is an interesting resemblance between the sort of copy which emanates from the camps of the heavyweight prizefighters when a large promotion impends and the kind which comes out of the political camps in a presidential year. But the prizefight press agents are a little more enthusiastic, or natural, than the political press agents, and when they give their story that story becomes what the moving picture writers would call a great human document.

A Big Chance Goes Wrong.

Possibly this is because the prizefight press agents are used to writing for a more credulous public, although it seems impossible to imagine a more credulous public than the one which the political candidates appeal to. At any rate, there was something lacking from the story of the three little kiddies who went all the way from Detroit to Washington last Saturday to obtain the presidential clemency for their daddy who had inadvertently purloined an automobile, and I think that such a man as Walter St. Denis, who sometimes does training camps for the Madison Square Garden firm, would have turned out a masterpiece there.

Mr. St. Denis probably would have written the story entirely in baby talk, whereas the piece, as it came out of Washington, was stilted and adult except for the use of the words "kiddies" and "daddy."

Candidates Have P. A.'s.

I am assuming, of course, that this incident was not entirely accidental because all presidential candidates have their press agents, just as heavyweights in training do. When a heavyweight in training rescues a young lady from a watery grave it stands to reason that some one must have arranged for the young lady to go into the water, and when three little kiddies pop into the White House some one has to see to it that the man on the door does not push them in the face and tell them to get out of there.

Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt seems fortunate in having for his campaign manager Mr. James Farley, the chairman of the New York prize fight commission, because Mr. Farley is well versed in the methods of prize fight publicity. I notice that he promised to deliver his man at Max Schmeling's training camp at Kingston, N. Y., on Memorial day, which was a smart move because a movie reel of Mr. Roosevelt eating wurst with the heavyweight champion will suggest that he is sympathetic with pugilism and make him solid with the cauliflower vote.

Be Careful, Mister!

Great care should always be used in such a case, however, lest the sound reels catch the candidate wishing the champion success in his contest with Babe Ruth. Some of these candidates have only a sketchy idea as to who is who in the sports business.

For romantic interest I could recommend Mr. Jack Farrell, who is now attached to Sharkey's camp and wasting his best talents there because Sharkey is already married and not a fit subject for romantic stories. But if there should happen to be a bachelor candidate for the nomination, Mr. Farrell might put him over as the great American lover just as he almost put over Max Baer, the California heavyweight, a year or two ago.

In that case Mr. Farrell sent out some of the most touching romantic prose ever set down on white paper and not a day passed for weeks but that brought to the sport editor's desks throughout the country stories telling of the handsome young gladiator's ambition to win fame and fortune in the ring and then claim the hand of a snooty and exclusive society divorcée and belle of the bon ton. Mr. Farrell did not quite put Mr. Baer over, but that was Baer's fault, not his. Baer forgot to duck, and if a pugilist does not remember to duck it does not matter whom he marries.

The stirring action story has no better exponent than Mr. Steve Han-

APRIL THE FIFTH WINS IN EPSOM DERBY AT 100-6

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, England, June 1.—April The Fifth, an outsider, raced down the one and one-half mile Epsom Downs Derby course today to capture the English Derby and thrill a crowd of more than 500,000. Dastur finished second and Miracle, owned by Lord Roseberry, was third. Both were at long prices.

Far behind in the field of 21, which included the best thoroughbreds on the English turf, was Orwell, the choice of all Great Britain. Orwell, owned by W. M. G. Singer, who for more than 20 years has sought to win the Derby, weakened early in the long race.

Winner Owned by Actor.

April The Fifth, carrying the silks of Tom Walls, English sportsman and film actor, swept into the lead shortly after Orwell began to slip back and won by three-quarters of a length. Only a head separated Dastur and Miracle.

Orwell was the favorite at 2 to 1. April The Fifth had few backers and was at 100 to 6 in the betting. Dastur paid 18 to 1 and Miracle was at 100 to 9.

King George, Queen Mary and the entire royal family, with the world and his wife, flocked to Epsom Downs to witness the Derby—the greatest of all British racing events.

For the first time in history the most modern of all aircraft— a helicopter—was brought into action to control traffic to see that his majesty's automobile was delayed as little as possible on the journey from London to Epsom.

Track in Perfect Condition.

The royal arms were painted on the top of the king's automobile and his car snaked its way through mile upon mile of traffic with every yard's progress watched by a pilot hovering 2,000 feet above, who reported by radio to the traffic control below.

It was a day of sunshine. A slight drizzle in the early morning suddenly ceased at 11 o'clock and the sun shone on the green track which had been nursed to perfection by dozens of turf experts.

The roads were jammed for miles by thousands of people who never arrived at the course at all. Many gave up the task as a bad job and sat at the roadside eating lunch and listening to the account of the race from portable radio sets.

Walls told everybody at the theater to back his horse and there was hardly an actor or actress in the London theater or film world who did not have something on the winner.

Apart from the famous race itself, there was added interest in the fact that twenty-eight people scattered over the world are richer by $150,000 as a result of the Irish sweepstake.

Jockey Elston Seriously Hurt in Race Fall

Jockey Gilbert Elston, one of the young stars at Washington Park, who fell from the horse Hard Lines during the running of the seventh race yesterday, was found to have suffered two fractures of the skull after an X-ray examination at St. James hospital in Chicago Heights last night.

Dr. T. M. Stapleton, surgeon for the Washington Park Jockey club, who attended Elston, said the jockey's condition is "very serious but that the outlook is favorable provided no complications arise."

The jockey was kicked in the head by a horse which attempted to hurdle him and 42 stitches were required to close the wound in his head. Elston rides for the western division of the C. V. Whitney stable.

DAWSON GETS 74 FOR LOW GROSS IN C. D. G. A. EVENT

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Jock Hutchison, professional at the Glen View club, and members who chanced to be on the premises of the north side course yesterday were smiling satisfied smiles last night at the end of the season's second handicap event of the Chicago District Golf association.

The reason for their satisfaction rested in the fact that Glen View is officially rated as a class B course in the district, although Jock and several members have contended that it should have a place alongside the seven class A clubs of the district—Bob o' Link, Beverly, Glen Oak, Flossmoor, Olympia Fields, Knollwood, and Chicago Golf. Yesterday Glen View was a triple A course, as most of those competing in the handicap tournament were willing to admit after they had gone over the 18 holes.

They Find Course Tricky.

Granting that rain fell steadily when a majority of the field was on the last nine holes, and also that the players were driving from the back tees, which added about 400 yards to the course, Glen View proved too much, for one day at least, for one of the best fields ever assembled for a C. D. G. A. handicap event.

Only two players in the field of 115 competing were able to break 80, and only one succeeded in shooting that figure. George Dawson, who has been burning up Glen Oak's greens and fairways this year, came through with a 36—36—74, two over par, to win the low gross prize. Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields appeared to be the winner with a 39—40—79 until George arrived with his 74 in the last foursome to reach home. Johnny Ames shot 39—41—80 for the best

I SAY CONVINCES TURF FANS SHE'S READY FOR OAKS

Tunes Up with 5 Length Homewood Victory.

BY FRENCH LANE.

I Say, Albert Sabath's fleet filly, tuned up for the Illinois Oaks Saturday at Washington park yesterday.

And what a tuning up she got! It was good enough to win the Kensington purse by five lengths, just as Jockey Charley Allen pleased. I Say was the shortest priced favorite of the season, paying $2.75 for a two dollar ticket. In other words you had to bet a dollar to win 35 cents.

There were only four Oaks candidates in the struggle, a shower of rain having scared the two contenders, Late Date and Porter's Dream, out in the early part of the afternoon. But if Trainers Spence and Taylor thought the track was going to become muddy and handicap Late Date and Porter's Dream they were mistaken. The shower only served to remove the dust and the going was as fast as ever when the field came out to contest the Kensington.

I Say Trails At First.

I Say was outrun for the first 100 yards in the seven furlong brush. Then she went to the front and the result was never in doubt. Plucky Girl, a full sister to Plucky Play, beat her away from the barrier, but Plucky Girl soon settled back into third place after I Say and Sobieha had dashed past her. That was the order of the running all the way around, with I Say stepping the first half in :48 3-5, the six furlongs in 1:14, and the seven furlongs in 1:27 4-5. It wasn't fast time but how could I Say run any faster with Jockey Allen having a tight hold on her all the way around? Maybe I Say can't beat Evening or Suntica in the Oaks but the two easterners are going to know they have been in quite a skirmish.

That old fellow, Johnnie Maiben, who is staging a riding comeback at Washington Park, turned in another saddle masterpiece when he won the sixth race on the 8 year old selling plater Ruane. He hustled Ruane along in the early part of it without getting him into serious entanglements. Then at the head of the stretch he took Ruane out into the middle of the track, past one horse after another and conquered the favorite, Master Ace, to win going away by two and a half lengths.

A Typical Maiben Ride.

It was one of those typical Maiben-out-in-the-center of the track rides—and while Ruane might not have wanted to close ground so fast in the last furlong, there was nothing for him to do but keep on going, eating up the ground, and conquering one foe after another.

Folks are beginning to play Maiben in those long distance races, so Ruane was rather stoutly backed and paid $8.86 to win. There had been a plunge on Ben Blair but his heart was too weak to withstand the furious drive which came in the stretch.

Two fleet 2 year olds were uncovered during the afternoon in Polyphote, a daughter of Polymelian from W. R. Coe's stable, winner of the Roseland purse, which opened the program, and Red Roamer, a son of Wildair, who came from far back and captured the third race.

Polyphote had easy sailing after Jockey Woolf took her to the front rounding the lower bend but Red Roamer had to run at a lively clip to head Mr. Joe in the last strides and win by a neck. Red Roamer was a long shot at nearly 15 to 1.

Badger Board Moves to Cut Out 8 Sports

Madison, Wis., June 1.—[Special.]—Suspension of crew and all minor sports—cross country, wrestling, tennis, gymnastics, hockey, golf and swimming—was recommended by the new Wisconsin athletic board, Prof. Andrew T. Weaver, chairman, announced today.

With the suspension of the crew, because of a lack of finances, George [Mike] Murphy, crew coach, is out of a job. Murphy came here five years ago from Yale following the death of Harry E. [Dad] Vail. He was freshman coach at New Haven.

Trim Coaching Staff.

The athletic board also authorized Dr. Clarence W. Spears, football coach, to sign a capable end coach. Ed Lynch of Dartmouth, formerly assistant to Spears at Minnesota, is known to be Spears' choice.

A staff of five coaches will have charge of football, one of the five being freshman coach. In past seasons there have been seven coaches, not including at least five part time assistants.

As a result of this cut Francis X. [Bo] Cuisinier, Chicago, and former Tilden Tech star, will not return as freshman coach and one of the varsity assistants will be dropped. Guy Sundt, Lynch, Fred Swan and Irv Uteritz will be retained as Spears' helpers.

Cut Salaries, Budgets.

The salaries of all coaches were cut and the budgets for the four major sports, football, basketball, baseball and track, were reduced to entail savings of $51,000.

Prof. Guy Lowman, head of the four year physical education course, will direct intra-mural activities, but will no longer be connected with the inter-collegiate athletic program.

Rodak Beats Haberski in Mills Stadium Opener

Leo Rodak, Golden Glove bantamweight champion, defeated George Haberski, Catholic Youth organization titleholder, in a three round bout in the opening outdoor amateur show at Mills stadium last night. In another bout Anthony Muscarello won a three round decision over Joe Roman. Other results:

Lynn Thompson beat Al Soukop [3].
Gene Higgins beat Phil McQuillan [3].
Lenny Cohen beat Frank Sanello [3].
Max Marek beat Anthony Sutton [3].
Joe Luppino beat Steve Dusek [3].
Mike Kamis beat Pete Verri.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 1.—[Special.]—Dave Maier, the Milwaukee slugger who fought his way to the upper ranks of the light heavyweights of the world in less than two years, met his master at the Auditorium here tonight in the person of Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro, and was forced to quit in the sixth round.

After piling up a margin on points in the early rounds, Maier turned to Referee Houlehen in the sixth and told him he was too ill to continue. Ringsiders were of the opinion that Dave's illness was induced by the punishment he had absorbed in stopping the Negro's heavy body punches in the sixth and the round preceding.

De Baker Elected Captain of Michigan Track Team

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 1.—[Special.]—Charles F. Debaker of Fruitport, Mich., a leading quarter miler of the Big Ten, today was chosen captain of the 1933 Michigan track team. Debaker succeeds Edwin F. Russell of Rochester, N. Y., Big Ten quarter mile champion. Debaker is a graduate of Muskegon High school and already has won two letters in football and two in track.

Walter Koenig Named Captain of Indiana Nine

What Strange Pals These Horses Have!

What strange traveling companions our best races horses have! Evening, the fashionable 3 year old filly from George D. Widener's barn, rated as one of the two best of her age and sex in America, reached Washington Park yesterday to fill an engagement in the Illinois Oaks. And who do you think was her traveling companion? A goat called Nanny.

Two horses crashed head-on during the training hour at Lincoln Fields yesterday morning. They were Valdo, owned by the Nevada Stock farm, and Look at Lillian, the property of Earl Langlon. Both were killed.

Whisperings are heard that Phaeldale may prove to be the dark horse long shot of the Illinois Oaks renewal. She is owned by Tony Wallace of Kentucky, who was the racing secretary at Hialeah Park, Miami, last winter. She is a daughter of Coventry-Vision and great secrecy has surrounded her training.

Only a few of the topnotch 3 year olds in the country are eligible to the famous Belmont stakes, to be run Saturday. Lo the Belmont may have little bearing on the championship this year. Osculator is one Belmont starter that will come here for the American Derby. He will be shipped from New York next Monday.

Billy Pinch, the Englishman who trains the horses which race for Otto W. Lehmann, president of the Arlington Park Jockey club, has his charges on razor edge at Washington Park. They will begin winning real soon.

From the sizeup of the field in the Del Prado purse this afternoon the Sweitzer handicap of last Saturday is to be acted all over again. A shift in the weights may bring a different result. Spanish Play and Pittsburgher rule as the favorites.

Bill Hurley, who trains the western division of the E. R. Bradley horses, is bedding down the stall for the reception of Burgoo King. The Derby and Preakness winner is due any day.

Helen Moody Advances to Semi-Finals

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUTEUIL, France, June 1.—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody took another step toward her fourth singles championship in the French hard court tennis tournament today when she swept into the semi-finals with a straight set victory over Mlle. Collette Payot, Switzerland. The scores were 6-2, 7-5.

Winner of the title in 1928, 1929, and 1930, Mrs. Moody continued to display the great form which already has brought her the doubles championship with Elizabeth Ryan. Her hopes for a title in another division, the mixed doubles, were shattered when she was eliminated yesterday with Sidney Wood Jr. of New York.

Mrs. Moody, who failed to defend her title last year, tomorrow will meet Hilda Krahwinkel, who defeated Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall of England, 6-3, 6-3. Fraulein Krahwinkel was a finalist last year.

In a third round match in the women's singles today Betty Nuthall, England, triumphed over Josane Sigart, France, to enter the quarter finals. The scores were 6-4, 6-2.

Another American, Gregory Mangin, the only United States player remaining in the men's singles, went into the quarter finals with a 7-5, 6-4, 6-3 victory over Aki Kuwabara, Japan. Mangin, United States indoor champion, will meet the winner of the Henri Cochet-G. P. Hughes match tomorrow.

Cochet, in his third round match today, defeated A. De. Bono, member of the Italian Davis cup team, 6-3, 7-5, 6-1. In two fourth round matches Marcel Bernard, France, won from Jiro Sato, Japan, 3-6, 6-0, 8-6, 6-1, and G. Lyttleton Rogers, Ireland, defeated Christian Boussus, France, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

ATHLETICS WIN DOUBLE HEADER FROM YANKEES

Home Runs by Bishop and Foxx Bring Victories.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 1.—(AP)—The Athletics used the same method to win both games of a long drawn out double header from the New York Yankees today, and wound up only a half game out of third place. The scores were 8 to 7 and 7 to 6. The first game went 16 innings.

A homer by Max Bishop with one on base and one out in the 16th won the opener, the longest game so far in the major league season, and Jimmy Foxx's 18th home run of the season, coming with one aboard in the seventh, supplied the winning runs in the second contest.

A crowd of 31,000 saw the twin bill that opened a six game series, setting a season's record at Shibe park. The first game started out as a duel between Charley Ruffing and Le Roy Mahaffey, and was carried into extra innings when the Yankee pitcher hit a homer in the ninth inning.

SENATORS BEAT RED SOX.

Boston, Mass., June 1.—(AP)—The Washington Senators flashed a double play to halt a ninth inning Boston rally and defeated the Red Sox today, 2 to 1. Lloyd Brown eked out a decision over Bob Weiland in a pitchers' duel, although the Red Sox outhit their opponents, 8 to 7. The Senators combined two hits with a base on balls in the first inning to obtain their two runs, while Brown kept the Sox's hits scattered until the ninth when the Boston run was scored.

AMELIA PUTNAM WATCHES EPSOM DERBY; LIKES IT

LONDON, June 1.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart Putnam, who saw April the Fifth run away from the favorite in the Derby today, sat on the famous Terrace Commons overlooking the Thames this afternoon telling a number of members of parliament how much she enjoyed it.

"What struck me," she said, "was the sunshine and gayety of the crowd. Everything was so festive. I had a lovely time."

Before she went to the race she said she was going to do a little betting, but she didn't. Possibly that was because she attended as a guest of Lord and Lady Astor, who never put a cent on a horse, although Lord Astor is a well-known owner.

nagan, of the Indianapolis Motor speedway, who handled the publicity of the Sharkey-Stribling incident in Miami Beach, Fla. It may be remembered that Jack Dempsey was the false front for that enterprise after the death of Tex Rickard and that, suddenly one morning, it leaked out that assassins had made an attempt on Dempsey's life in the middle of the night.

The assassins had entered Dempsey's room and as Dempsey leaped from his couch to tackle them with bare hands, they fled down the stairs, firing automatic pistols. In the morning there was a great rush of experts to Dempsey's mansion, where it developed that the story was not yet ready. Mr. Hannagan had naturally expected that the experts would not be awake before noon, but they crossed him up. They had not yet gone to bed.

"You'll have to wait a few minutes," Mr. Hannagan said. "Just sit down on the porch and have a drink."

Building a Bullet Hole.

At this point clinking sounds were heard from within the mansion and Mr. One Eyed Connelly, the gate crasher, who had gone around to the back door for his breakfast, came out through the front hall.

"Everything will be ready in a minute," Mr. Connelly said. "The butler has been working with a hammer and chisel and he is just finishing the last bullet hole."

I have noticed that Mr. Farrell, at Sharkey's camp this time, has been conducting a distinctly acrimonious campaign, which is a refreshing change after all the years of gentlemanliness between heavyweights in training. Sharkey has been made to say that he will knock that Dutchman bowlegged and other insulting remarks attributed to him have given the publicity a lively intimate note.

Why They Don't Throw Mud.

The presidential candidates nowadays all favor the clean type of campaign as distinguished from the old-fashioned mudslinging kind, but when a candidate holds out for a clean campaign there is always suspicion that he is afraid to throw mud lest his rivals throw more than he can.

Heavyweight fighters and political candidates do much the same sort of things. They put on ten gallon hats and Indian feathers for the movies, they are photographed pitching hay, catching fish, laying brick, operating steam shovels, wiping dishes, and eating fried chicken or barbecued meat with their hands in the open air with their hats on to prove that they are all just folks and great big boys grown up after all.

And, of course, this publicity also has this in common that none of it is binding and none of it means a thing.

Phillies Send Giants Into Cellar, 4 to 2

New York, June 1.—(AP)—The Phillies climbed out of the National league cellar today, rallying in the late innings to score a 4 to 2 victory that sent the Giants into eighth place. Chuck Klein started things off with his 13th home run of the season in the seventh inning and a three run rally against Bill Walker won the game in the eighth. Doubles by Klein and Hurst brought in the winning runs. Bill Terry and Mel Ott hit successive homers in the second for the Giants' runs.

Cards Defeat Cubs, 1-0, in Seven Innings

Herman Cuts Off a Run.

The sixth rolled around before the Cards were able to get their third batter away from the plate, and they might have scored if Herman hadn't stepped in with a fielding rarity. Dean, leading off, swung clumsily at a bad pitch and accidentally lined it to left for a double. Orsatti clipped one toward Herman's right and it bore all the earmarks of a hit until Billy leaned over and stabbed it with his gloved hand. Then he let loose a throw to English and Dean was nailed at third. Martin sacrificed and Herman gave the champions another chance by booting Hendrick's grounder, but Collins had a fly to Hornsby.

The Cubs were still trying to get somewhere in the sixth and seventh, but what they started went as unfinished business. Herman drilled a hit to left as the opening incident in the sixth. A couple of forceouts and a fly ball fixed that. Grimm started the seventh with a pass and then the third double play of the day popped up on Hartnett's bunt which was intended as a sacrifice. Jurges whiffed to complete the inning. Then the Cards let loose their barrage of homers which didn't count.

PLAY PIRATES TODAY

The Cubs moved eastward last night to start a three game series at Pittsburgh today. They'll be back at Wrigley field for a single game with the Pirates Sunday and then make for the seaboard cities of the circuit. Charley Root probably will be nominated to throw to the Buccaneers this afternoon.

Sherwood [Red] Mackenzie, a young southpaw pitcher picked up down east last season, was given his unconditional release yesterday by the Cubs. The lad was turned over to Los Angeles, but bounced back. The Cubs then sent him to Fort Wayne, Ind., but again he came back.

Nothing has been heard from Lester Bell, reported to have been shipped back to the Cubs by Louisville, where he was sent in the spring. The Cubs have no room for him, so they will have to give him his unconditional release if he shows up.

The paid attendance yesterday was approximately 7,000, augmented by about 10,000 women guests, for whom there were no tickets at last week's Ladies' day. The screeching was 100 per cent as usual.

Malone fanned three men in a row in the fourth. One of the three was Hendrick, who had done the same thing in the first inning. Hendrick also had struck out in the ninth the day previous.

Johnny Moore came to class yesterday morning with a lame back, so Hornsby excused him and Gudat performed in center field.

Johnson, Williams Sail June 25th for S. American Bouts

Larry Johnson and Roy Williams, south side heavy weight and 175 pound boxer, respectively, and Barney Abel, veteran fight manager, will sail on the steamship Southern Cross from New York June 25 for Buenos Aires. Abel has arranged three bouts for Johnson and Roy with an option for three more in South America. The group will leave Chicago for New York on June 22. Williams and Larry will engage in one more contest in this country before leaving.

The West Side Boxing club will place tickets on sale tomorrow for its opening boxing show on June 16. Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, and Harry Dublinsky of Chicago, meet in the ten round nontitle windup.

Garden Scales Down Seat Prices for Title Bout

New York, June 1.—[Special.]—In deference to the economic situation, and to the suggestion of the milk fund, which formally became a partner to the enterprise today, Madison Square Garden has announced a partial revision in the prices of tickets for the Schmeling-Sharkey heavyweight championship fight June 21.

The bottom price is now $2.30 instead of $3.45. The top price of $23 remains on 10,000 ringside seats, approximately the first 30 rows, but the remaining 4,000 of the original 14,000 ringside seats are reduced to $15. Other prices remain the same.

The original figures scaled the Garden bowl around $1,000,000. The new arrangement will scale about $750,000, as follows: 10,000 seats at $23; 13,000 seats at $15; 17,700 seats at $10; 22,400 seats at $5.74, and 8,000 seats at $2.30.

Bill Carey, president of the Garden corporation, estimated that the Garden now has reservations for about $150,000 and believes that the fight will draw at least $400,000, reducing his previous estimate of a half million dollars. Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston, who originally forecast a $750,000 gate, now will settle for $500,000. If the fight draws 52,000 people it will approach the half million mark.

A contribution of $1,000 to the fund for the Olympic games in California this summer was voted last night by the Central Amateur Athletic union at its meeting in the Morrison hotel.

Sox Are Home; Glad to Be in Big City Again

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The scheduled final of the eventful baseball series between the Indians and the Chicago White Sox at Cleveland was rained out yesterday, enabling the Chicagoans to get back to big city environment hours earlier than they had expected.

The Sox, calloused in the matter of taking the short end of baseball contests, have found their feelings a little tender in other matters.

Several of the Cleveland papers and some of the Cleveland ball players professed to see in the Sox-Moriarty brawl a great menace to the future of America and the manner in which they emphasized Mother Hubbard reactions has served to give the Sox pains in no way attributable to their standing in the American league or blows from Firpo Moriarty's fists.

Gaston Won That Bout, Sir!

Not the least of these suffering as the result of the Cleveland piety is Milt Gaston, who came out of the brawl with a bruised countenance, a ten day suspension and a $500 plaster. Milt complains not of the bruises and he frets little about the fine. But he does resent the reports that Firpo had him bouncing up and down on the player runaway.

Gaston points with pride to President Harridge's finding that only Gaston fought with Moriarty and that Moriarty went to a hospital twice to no trips for Gaston. Milt also brings attention to the fact that he was able to attend President Harridge's noon hearing Tuesday, whereas Moriarty couldn't attend, because of shooting pains in the head, according to his own statement.

The Sox are mad at certain members of the Cleveland club who were indignant, the Sox claim, because President Harridge did not call them to testify against the Sox.

The Sox probably feel that the Cleveland attitude against them is ungrateful, for without the Sox and the Browns the Cleveland Indians, highly touted three weeks ago, would be battling it out with Boston for the cellar. The Indians have won 24 games and 18 of these have been taken from the Browns and Sox, nine from each. This should make the Indians look upon the Sox as cousins instead of bitter enemies, it is argued.

Cleveland Isn't So Swell.

It perhaps is true that the position of the Indians in the trouble just passed wasn't exactly kosher, but it frequently is found in the smaller cities which support only one major league team that they spoil their lone group of heroes.

From the foregoing you can gather what a jolly time the Sox had during their two and a half days in Cleveland. But now they are back home for the longest stand in several seasons—six series, starting this afternoon with the St. Louis Browns.

JOHNNY HARI TO PITCH FOR LANE IN TITLE GAME

Johnny Hari, southpaw pitcher of Lane Tech, will oppose Lindblom when the teams meet for the Chicago Public High School league baseball championship at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, Saturday afternoon. It will be Hari's final appearance in a Lane Tech baseball uniform.

The site of the game was selected yesterday by coaches of the teams in the offices of A. H. Pritzlaff, secretary of the league. The championship game always has been staged in a major league park, but neither Comiskey park nor Wrigley field was available this season.

Lindblom's hopes for the title probably will depend on Frank Narbut, one of the outstanding pitchers in the league. Narbut has hurled Lindblom to several triumphs during the league season and last Tuesday pitched a 5 to 3 victory over Tilden Tech in the last semi-final game.

Each team scored three consecutive victories in the semi-final round. Lane won the north-south sectional championship by defeating Schurz, Fenger, and Bowen, while Lindblom won from Crane, Harrison, and Tilden to capture the central-west zone title.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BASEBALL DISCIPLINE.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM HARRIDGE of the American league, considering the first serious umpire-players' brawl since he succeeded the late Ban Johnson, has announced punishments. His decree is conservative almost to the point of leniency. Analysis, however, shows tact and pretty sound judgment.

Undoubtedly a verdict on similar disorder under Ban Johnson's régime would have been much more severe, whether as tactful or as sound. The late Mr. Johnson was a stickler for maintaining respect for his diamond arbiters. In fact, it was he who took first drastic steps to curb player rowdyism and bullying of umpires in the national sport.

Here is where The Wake feels President Harridge was tactful: Action had to be taken. No scene like that under the Cleveland stand could pass unnoticed. Delay in announcing the punishment was equally untenable. Reports of the incident were conflicting. It appeared as if there was provocation on both sides.

On the other hand, it is necessary to maintain authority of umpires: in fact, to obtain respect for their decisions, if not for them personally. This is even more important as affecting spectators than as affecting players, for players may be governed and disciplined. Except under the most flagrant circumstances, if an umpire is incompetent or quarrel provoking, he learns of this opinion when he seeks to renew his contract for the ensuing season and the contract is not renewed.

Umpire Moriarty was given a "severe reprimand for his neglect of duty." Whether that expression means anything more we will learn at some future time.

White Sox participating in the brawl were fined and suspended. Suspension of a pitcher for ten days and of a coach for five days is punishment, but does not seriously cripple a weak team. Fines assessed against Manager Fonseca and Players Berry and Grube likewise do not cripple the team, whatever they do to the wallet. In the old days when ragging umpires was treated with tolerance by club owners it was not unusual for the club to make good such fines to the players involved. That's something for President Lou Comiskey to determine.

Considering the seriousness of the affair from first reports, later minimized perhaps with an effort to "sh-u-sh" the episode, President Harridge appears to have emerged from a trying situation with prestige unimpaired and without incurring enmity of the White Sox management which wholesale suspensions to an already weak team might have engendered.

The Epsom, or English Derby, was first run in 1780 and is exceeded in age only by the Epsom Oaks for 3 year old fillies, whose inaugural was in 1779, and the St. Leger, whose inaugural was in 1776. The Epsom route is the true Derby distance of 1½ miles. The Derby was won by American owners thus: W. C. Whitney in 1901, Richard Croker in 1907, Pierre Lorillard in 1888, and H. B. Duryea in 1914. Its value to the winner in recent years has been around $50,000.

A Muskie in Michigan Is in Right Spot

BY BOB BECKER.

Although Michigan never has been known as a muskie state, due to the fact that the St. Lawrence variety of muskellunge is confined to comparatively few lakes in Michigan, throughout the fishing season enough good sized specimens are caught to keep the fishermen excited.

It is a curious thing that when the glaciers finally receded in the middle west and lakes and streams were put on the map Wisconsin finished with high honors in the muskie distribution. That state was handed scores of lakes in which the northern or unspotted form of 'lunge was abundant. Michigan didn't fare as well. We learned last summer when we checked over the distribution of the St. Lawrence variety of muskie in Michigan with Dr. Carl Hubbs, scientist at Michigan university, that there are about 8 or 9 lakes in Michigan in which the muskie is native.

Now comes a letter from Ed Dreier of Grand Rapids, Mich., an experienced fisherman, with the question: Can it be possible that muskies are running in Lake Michigan? He reports that they have been catching some big fish in lakes that connect with Lake Michigan.

Dreier mentions the fact that Michigan "never has been known as a muskie state, and yet they are getting big muskies in Lake Leelanau [above Traverse City], Lake Onekema, Black lake, and Pere Marquette. Quite a number have been taken in the last named lake this year."

Lake Leelanau is a long, narrow lake above Traverse City. We fished it last August for a few days, when we devoted all our attention to black bass. Muskies in that lake are nothing new.

486 PREP STARS TO COMPETE IN STAGG CARNIVAL

Record Holders File Late Entries on Midway.

Entries for the 28th annual Stagg interscholastic track championship meet yesterday approached the 500 mark, 128 schools having entered 486 men for Saturday's event. The field is by far the best in history.

Director A. A. Stagg yesterday issued a general invitation to the public to attend the meet, which brings no financial returns. Admission is free, and there will be accommodations for 25,000 spectators.

Among the late entries yesterday was that of Buzz Barton of Tecumseh, Okla., who set a new state 440 yard record of :49.4, and qualified for the Olympic semi-finals last week in :48.4. Barton and his coach, D. A. Brazel, arrived yesterday, after spending three days in Alton, Ill., Brazel's home town, working out. With Barton came one of his most formidable rivals, Harold Cagle of Shawnee. Cagle also qualified for the Olympic semi-finals, running the 440 in :48.9.

Miller Is Back.

In addition to Barton and Cagle, Marsh Miller of Maine township, Des Plaines, Ill., who was half of the national championship team last year, with a second in the quarter and a third in the 880, is among those entered in the quarter mile. Miller set a new state record of :48.8. Chester Ponce of Keota, Ia., state record holder; Platt Bullard of John Marshall High, Richmond, Va., and Don Straight of Greeley, Colo., are other stars in the race.

Fort Collins, Colo., only team to win the meet three times, and among the first three in three other years, is expected to arrive today. It is motoring through.

One of the features of the meet will be the attempt of Tim Quinn of Ludington, Mich., to win the 880 for the third successive year. No entry has ever won three victories in an event, but Quinn has a good start. He set the record in winning in 1930, with a 1:57.2 effort, and then came back last year to win in 1:57.4.

Mile Field Strong.

The Michigan boy will face R. L. Bush of Sunset High, Dallas, Tex., who raced into a state record of 1:56.9; Adam Pierce of West High, Aurora, Ill., who established a state mark of 1:59.6; Glynn Kitchens of Meridian, Miss., who has done 1:59, and Stephen Force of Greeley.

A strong field will be aiming at the mile record of 4:28.1, with H. Longman of Mount Morris, Ill., as the most likely winner. Longman ran 4:25.6 to establish a state record.

SKYSCRAPER IN LOOP DEFAULTS JUNE INTEREST

100 W. Monroe Property to Be Refinanced.

Interest on the twenty-three story 100 West Monroe Street building, at the northwest corner of Clark and Monroe, defaulted yesterday and plans are now under way to reorganize the property as soon as the first mortgage bonds are deposited. This was a $1,500,000 issue at 6½ per cent underwritten by De Wolf & Co. and A. C. Allyn & Co., maturing Dec. 1, 1945. Only $1,300 bonds have been retired. The proposed reorganization plan will not be operative until Dec. 1, 1932. At that time depositing bondholders, it is stated, will receive 1½ per cent in cash. In addition, they will receive 2½ per cent in scrip certificates, making 4 per cent in all.

The plans call for a payment of 4 per cent annually to the bondholders for the first five year period; 4½ per cent for the second five year period, and 5 per cent thereafter to maturity. Cash in excess of interest charges will be used for the retirement of bonds. The First-Uni Trust and Savings bank has been named as depositary. John Meiners, vice president of A. C. Allyn & Co., is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee and P. G. Anderson is secretary. The building occupies a site fronting eighty feet on Monroe and forty-five feet on Clark. It was erected several years ago from plans by Frank D. Chase, Inc.

Shore Crest Apartments.

Owners of bonds of the seven story Shore Crest apartments, at the northeast corner of Wrightwood and Pine Grove avenues, yesterday were offered a reorganization and extension plan which calls for exchange of their securities for new income bonds maturing in 1942. Under the plan the bonds are to be deposited with the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, according to Edgar N. Greenebaum, vice president of the Greenebaum Sons Investment company, which underwrote the original $525,000 in 1922.

This issue had been reduced materially when it expired May 1, 1929, and a new issue of $365,000, three year 7 per cent bonds was underwritten. These came due on May 1, 1932, and the owners were unable to secure a new loan in view of existing conditions.

Plan New Income Bonds.

The plan of reorganization provides for the exchange of the present bonds for new income bonds, par for par. The new securities will mature May 1, 1942, and will pay interest semi-annually out of the net income of the property to a maximum of 5 per cent. Any surplus income thereafter shall be used each year to retire the new bonds.

The building, which has 114 apartments, had a net income for the year 1931, after operating expenses and deduction for taxes, of $19,913, while the 7 per cent interest requirements were $25,550. The 5 per cent interest charges come to $18,250.

"This plan contemplates avoiding the expense and hardship of receivership," said Mr. Greenbaum, "and as a further security the owners of the property are depositing with and pledging to the trustee all of the capital stock of the corporation owning the property until such time as all of the new bonds have been paid in full."

Mulholand Building.

The Chicago Bank of Commerce, receiver for the Mulholand building at the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Pine Grove avenue, since July 17, 1931, reports cash on hand May 16, 1932 as $2,387. The Foreman-State Trust & Savings bank was receiver from February 8, 1930 to July 17, 1931.

Following is a statement of receipts and disbursements from February 8, 1930 to May 16,, 1932:

Receipts:
Gross income	$68,587
Disbursements:
Operating expenses	$28,291
Insurance premiums	2,619
Payments on refrigerators	1,719
Legal services in connection with 1927 general taxes	351
Legal services in connection with 1928 general taxes	500
Payment of
1927 general taxes	2,318
1928 general taxes	6,490
1929 general taxes	7,210
1930 general taxes	7,755
Special assessments	1,733
Fees of solicitors for receivers	3,867
Fees of receivers	3,347
Total disbursements	68,200
Cash in receiver's hands, May 16, 1932	$ 2,387

This was a Lackner, Butz & Company issue of $325,000, at 6½ per cent, since reduced to $321,000. On May 26, 1932 the occupancy of the apartments was 85.72 per cent and the stores 10 per cent. The theater and office section was vacant. Walter C. Palmer is secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, of which Herman D. Pettibone is chairman.

BUSINESS HEADS HERE RELIEVED BY TAX ACTION

Insist Nation Must Balance Budget.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Chicago financiers and business leaders gave a sigh of relief yesterday over the prospect that congress speedily will pass a tax measure that will balance the national budget. The senate measure is not the kind of tax bill that most bankers and industrialists want, as most of them have favored the defeated general manufacturers' sales tax as the lesser evil, compared with excessive income taxes and a revival of the wartime "nuisance taxes."

But it has been insisted all along that the prime need is to balance the budget regardless of how revenues are raised and thus remove the uncertainties that have caused delay in projects designed to start business recovery. Another reassuring factor was elimination of the Goldsborough bill providing for considerable credit inflation.

Want Safe Loans.

A substitute measure proposed by Senator Glass to permit national banks to issue currency against holdings of government bonds is likely to die a-borning, it is believed, and even if it should pass there is doubt as to whether its provisions would be used to any large extent, particularly by the big banks. Chicago bankers repeated that what banks desire is safe loans and not more money.

Of equal interest with the news from Washington was word from New York that the committee of financiers and industrialists formed recently to consider ways of putting into effect the credit expansion policy of the federal reserve banks had decided on a program of bond buying to bolster the listed bond market. Chicago bankers have been expecting such a move as the initial step in restoring confidence in the security markets. They said yesterday there would be no difficulty in forming a nationwide banking group with resources of 100 to 200 million dollars. It was suggested that a corporation might be formed similar to the National Credit corporation, which was formed by the banks last Autumn to make loans to banks with frozen assets.

Hint Drastic Remedy.

Several Chicago bankers contended that suspension of stock market trading for a time might help efforts to restore confidence. They contended that the stock exchanges no longer are real markets, but rather bankrupt sales. As long as the markets operate, collateral loans are based on quoted prices, no matter how low. These bankers contend that, with the market closed, they could make their own bases for loans and thus break the vicious circle of liquidation of impaired loans and falling prices.

ASKS RECEIVER BE APPOINTED FOR WARNER BROS.

Wilmington, Del., June 1.—(AP)—Appointment of receivers for Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., was asked today by Harry Koplar, a stockholder and pioneer movie exhibitor of St. Louis, Mo. The suit, the third receivership proceeding brought against the company in recent months, asks that the court compel the three Warner brothers, Harry, Albert, and Jack, together with other directors of the corporation, to file accountings of their official conduct.

U. S. RUBBER CO. WINS $2,421,873 U. S. TAX CREDIT

Washington, D. C., June 1.—(AP)—A credit of $2,421,873 to the United States Rubber company, New York, for overassessment of income and profit taxes in 1919 and 1920 was announced today by the internal revenue bureau.

Of the total $1,574,736 resulted from revisions of reported valuations of inventory, $278,145 from allowance of additional deductions for depreciation, $183,885 allowance on amortization of costs of facilities installed or acquired during the war, $151,122 from allowance of additional deductions for ordinary and necessary business expense, taxes and losses.

FRANCO-AMERICAN TRADE ACCORD TOLD BY AMBASSADOR EDGE

PARIS, June 1.—(AP)—The United States and France concluded today a trade agreement which cleared the way for increased American imports and ended bothersome uncertainties against which American business men have been forced to struggle under the French quota system.

The accord, concluded after long negotiations conducted by Ambassador Walter E. Edge, grants the United States most-favored nation treatment on imports now limited by quotas. It was made public as Mr. and Mrs. Edge and their three children were boarding a boat-train on their way for a vacation at home.

United States trade has suffered about $2,500,000 as a result of the quotas. It was estimated that today's agreement would recoup $500,000 of this loss. In general, it restores American imports to the 1931 level.

Farmers' Aid Proves Costly to Canadians

BY SCRUTATOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

When Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde called his department the "prize boob in the history of finance" because of its policy of making virtually unsecured loans to farmers in the face of increasing crop surpluses he may or may not have had the Dominion of Canada in mind as a lusty competitor for this doubtful honor.

In Canada the dominion government has been lending to the provinces and to the nationalized railroads and the provincial governments have been lending to citizens.

When losses are sustained and collections are shown to be impossible the accounts are carried along as if they were good as gold. Debtors don't worry about paying back. There's nothing to force them to do so.

This situation is particularly acute in the west where provinces have been lending to farmers on inadequate security since 1916. The amount of public money that has been lost in these schemes can only be estimated because of the many bad accounts still carried as current in the records.

Has Two Organizations.

Manitoba has had two organizations for lending to farmers, the Rural Credits societies for making short term loans and the Manitoba Farm Loans association for lending on mortgages. The balance sheet of the latter a year ago showed $5,924,000 of mortgages still outstanding and not due, $1,165,000 of principal and interest arrears, $1,439,000 of real estate held for sale and a deficit of $1,022,000. The deficit is expected to be tripled before the association's affairs are wound up Besides the province has a $250,000 stock investment in it on which there has been no return.

An investigation late in 1928 revealed that Manitoba's second lending enterprise, the Rural Credits societies, had outstanding loans totaling $2,987,000, of which $1,109,000 was admitted to be uncollectible and was written off. Administration charges of more than $300,000 had been paid by the provincial treasury.

Saskatchewan launched its farm loans board in 1917. Of the $12,000,000 in loans still outstanding the amount of losses is still anybody's guess, although two years ago a special auditor appointed by the government reported that the nominal surplus of half a million dollars was in reality a deficit of two and a half millions. The auditor showed loans had been made for political reasons and that a very large proportion of them were bad.

Chances Are Remote.

The western provinces which in good times squandered their money in such ventures as these are now getting handouts from the dominion treasury to meet maturing loans and extend relief to unemployed. The prospects for repayment of provincial borrowings from the dominion government are about as remote as the possibility of repayment of farmers' inadequately secured borrowings from the provincial treasuries.

According to the Financial Post, Toronto, during the last eight months Manitoba has drained $7,299,000 from the dominion treasury, Saskatchewan $24,394,000 and Alberta $6,893,000.

"During April," says the publication, "the three prairie provinces cost the dominion treasury more than $3,500,000 per week. This strain was placed upon federal resources in a month when, despite the high taxation of the Rhodes budget, the revenues declined [compared with April, 1931] by more than $1,000,000 per week.

Behind $4,000,000 Weekly.

"In a word, due to paternalistic policies, plus lower revenues, the dominion during April fell behind last year at the rate of more than $4,000,000 per week. When it is recalled that the national railways cost the country less than $2,000,000 per week last year and that the entire federal budget for the government of the country does not exceed $8,000,000 per week, the significance of what has been happening becomes obvious."

The western provinces in their relief programs have incurred expenditures far in excess of their ability to pay. As a result, the dominion government has agreed to pay the shares of the municipalities and provinces as well as its own, taking provincial bonds in settlement. This has placed the provinces in debt to the dominion to an amount probably beyond their capacity to pay.

THREE BANKS CLOSE; TWO IN THIS COUNTY; WHILE ONE IS IN LAKE

One was the Papanek-Kovac State bank, 886 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, and the other was the Citizens' State bank of Glencoe, Ill.

The Papanek-Kovac State bank has capital of $100,000, surplus of $40,000 and deposits of $345,000. The Citizens' State bank has capital of $50,000; surplus of $10,000 and deposits of $100,000.

It also was announced that the Citizens' State bank at Deerfield, Lake county, was closed yesterday morning. This bank is under the same ownership as the Citizens' State bank of Glencoe. Its closing, however, was handled by the Geneva, Ill., office of the state auditor.

WHEAT, CORN HIT BY SENATE PLAN FOR TAX

Selling Wave Takes Away Early Gain.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The grain markets made a half hearted response to the pronounced strength in stocks early yesterday. The action of the senate, however, in restoring the proposal to tax grain futures 5c per $100 valuation brought about a wave of general selling that carried wheat off 2½@2⅝c from the early high while corn broke 1⅝@2¼c. The latter sold at a new low for the season with July touching 29c, the lowest figure since July, 1897.

The traders regarded the proposed federal tax as confiscatory. There was a pronounced lack of support in all grains after the markets started downward. Wheat was sustained for a time by a belief that the private reports would suggest a liberal reduction in the prospective crop, but after the returns were given out showing an aggregate of 686,000 bu, winter and spring prices started downward and the close was within a fraction of the bottom.

Local Longs Liquidate.

Local bulls who have made determined efforts of late to bring about a higher level of wheat prices based on the prospective large reduction in the crop were thrown into a panic by the prospective tax on grain futures. A leading professional started to go out of his line shortly after the crop reports were issued and with stop loss orders uncovered the price at one time dropped ½c per bu with very little trading on the way down. Many of the other longs went out of their holding on the way down, and it was not until support developed from holders of bids that the break was checked.

Crop Exceeds Normal Needs.

A bearish construction was placed on the crop reports by a number of traders, although the aggregate of 686,000,000 bu wheat compares with 892,000,000 bu harvested in 1931. Normal bread, feed and seed requirements are estimated by the trade around 625,000,000 bu, so that the indicated crop furnishes around 60,000,000 bu for export which with the 400,000,000 bu expected to be carried over from the old crop would furnish a total of 460,000,000 bu.

Highly beneficial rains were reported in the American and Canadian northwest with around half of the 45 points in the three prairie provinces that reported receiving ¼ inch or more of moisture. This relieved apprehension of soil drifting to a considerable extent. Winnipeg, however, showed considerable strength and was only ⅞c lower at the last with July at 61⅞c in Canadian funds. Liverpool declined ⅝@¾c with July at 60c, showing 2¾c over Chicago. Around 500,000 bu hard winter and Manitoba wheat was estimated as having been sold for export.

Liquidation in Corn.

Liquidation developed in corn after a fractional advance early and all deliveries declined to a new low for the season, with the main support coming from holders of daily and weekly bids The close was at the bottom with net losses of 1⅝@1⅞c, July being 29@29⅛c; September, 31⅝@31¾, and December, 32½@32⅝c. Private reports suggested around 108,500,000 acres had been planted this season or about 3 per cent more than last year and a tentative estimate was made by H. C. Donovan suggesting a yield of 2,880,000,000 bu against 2,557,000,000 bu harvested in 1931.

Shipping demand for cash corn was slow while the country sold 2,000 bu to arrive, the increased offerings being regarded as due to the completion of planting operations in the main belt. Forecast was for showers and relatively warm weather.

Oats Equal Season's Low.

Weakness in other grains caused general selling of oats with the distant futures selling at equal to the lowest figures of the season. Closing trades were ⅝@¾c lower with July, 22⅛c; September, 22c and December, 23¾c. A crop of 1,298,000 bu was indicated by the private reports compared with 1,112,000,000 bu harvested last year.

Lisuidation developed in rye in sympathy with the break in wheat with all deliveries hitting new low figures for the season. The close was within a fraction of the bottom with net losses of 2½@2¾c. July finished at 34⅝c; September, 36¼c, and December, 38⅝c.

TURKISH CASH MAY LESSEN KREUGER FRAUD

Banks to Be Sued for Collateral.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 1.—Negotiations with the Turkish government to recover $14,250,000 for American owners of securities of the International Match corporation, now in bankruptcy, have been virtually completed by agents of the Irving Trust company. That was announced today at a creditors' meeting before Oscar W. Ehrhorn, referee in bankruptcy.

In addition, it has been discovered that Kreuger had several safe deposit boxes in New Jersey, Mr. Rosenberg said, adding that proceedings will be initiated immediately to open these, in the hope that they may contain assets.

Ready to Sue Banks.

Mr. Ehrhorn authorized the Irving Trust company, which had been elected trustee at a meeting earlier in the day, to start suit against four American banks to recover 350,000 shares of Diamond Match stock. The Diamond Match shares were put up by the late Ivar Kreuger not long before his suicide in Paris as security for a loan, originally $4,000,000, but which had been cut to $3,800,000 when the Diamond Match stock was pledged. The banks making the loan are the Union Trust company of Pittsburgh, the Continental-Illinois Bank and Trust company of Chicago, and the National City and Bankers Trust of New York.

James N. Rosenberg, counsel for the Irving Trust company, had argued at earlier hearings that the banks obtained the Diamond Match stock with knowledge of Kreuger's financial difficulties, and under circumstances which would entitle the trustee to sue for its recovery.

In a statement before the referee, Mr. Rosenberg indicated that the authorized suit will be brought "promptly." It was understood from other sources that the papers will be filed within a week against those four lending institutions.

Sale of Stock Delayed.

Sale of the stock in question by the banks already has been held up temporarily by proceedings pending before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey.

Permission to bring action for recovery was given by the referee in an order which also sanctioned the Turkish negotiations, named the firm of Rosenberg, Goldman & Colin, of which Mr. Rosenberg is a member, as counsel for the trustee, and authorized the ultimate issuance of $250,000 in trustee's certificates.

The Turkish transaction depends upon the fact that Kreuger, in his period of expansion toward domination of the world's match industry, got a concession from the Turkish government calling for a monopoly on matches and lighters in Turkey. In return, he was to lend Turkey $10,000,000. That country was to repay this sum, with the interest added, in a series of sums of a total of about $20,000,000, the last payment being due in 1955. Turkey was furthermore to share in the profits of the monopoly.

Loan Partly Made.

The collapse of the International Match corporation after Kreuger's suicide came before all of the $10,000,000 loan had been paid in to the coffers of the Turkish government, $1,500,000 being in default.

In working out the "settlement," Mr. Rosenberg indicated through reading cablegrams covering the transactions, the International Match corporation has been relieved from paying the $1,500,000 and in return the sum to be paid by Turkey, from which some payments had been received before the bankruptcy, has been scaled down to $14,250,000.

Two American citizens, formerly representatives of the International Match corporation in Turkey, Louis Heck and Ernest Hoffman, carried on the negotiations.

Match Moratorium.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 1.—(AP)—The cabinet today granted the Swedish Match company, a Kreuger concern, a moratorium to the end of August. The company reported that it was in a difficult position regarding liquid assets and that some time would be required to complete a plan for reorganization.

SENATE BILL WOULD LET NATIONAL BANKS ISSUE MORE MONEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—A bill to make all government bonds eligible as collateral for the issue of currency by national banks was reported in the senate today from the banking and currency committee as a substitute for the Goldsborough bill to stabilize the purchasing power of the dollar at its 1926 level.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], on whose suggestion the bill is based, offered the committee's report.

Chairman Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], committee chairman, stated that the bill would permit the issuance of an additional billion dollars in currency. He believed this plan would provide for a quicker currency inflation than the Goldsborough bill.

The bill, which was overwhelmingly reported from the banking and currency committee, authorizes the uses for a period of five years of all United States bonds for national circulation purposes. In existing circumstances only the 2 per cent bonds, aggregating some 740 millions, enjoy the circulation privilege," Senator Glass said.

Nation Loses $44,436,600 of Gold Stock

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Gold was withdrawn for export, or set aside for foreign account, in the aggregate of $44,436,600 at the New York Federal Reserve bank today. This was the largest loss in the nation's gold stock for a single day since last autumn. Bankers pointed out that it failed to reflect the improved fiscal status of the country with the passage of the tax measure by the senate late last night, partly because a substantial portion of the gold transactions reported today had been arranged yesterday.

The actual amount withdrawn for export was $23,089,100, while $21,347,500 was set aside, or "earmarked," for foreign account. Exports included $9,886,500 to France, $6,000,100 to Switzerland, $3,450,000 to Holland, $2,751,100 to Belgium, and $1,101,400 to England. The substantial size of the exports today was due in part to the sailings of fast steamers, providing desirable transport facilities.

No immediate cessation of the outflow of gold had been expected. That was explained in banking quarters, in view of the fact that European central banks appear determined to complete their program of calling most of their foreign balances home.

Today's loss brings the total net outgo since May 1 to approximately $279,000,000. The net outflow in May was the largest since last October. Then the figure roughly was $337,700,000. The movement at that time was precipitated by the British abandonment of the gold standard. That prompted European central banks to begin their repatriation of foreign balances.

Takings of gold by England in both Paris and New York recently have been accompanied by considerable conjecture in international banking circles as to whether Britain may be preparing for a return to the gold standard.

Dollar Is Firmer.

The dollar was firmer in foreign exchange trading during most of today's session, but eased against some currencies toward the close. European moneys held stubbornly above gold points, even at their lows.

News from Washington, indicating that the budget was to be balanced promptly, appeared to create a more favorable impression abroad and this was reflected in lower quotations for several gold currencies. French francs, however, took a late spurt that more than cancelled their loss and they closed nominally higher. Swiss francs and the belga also made late advances, but Dutch guilders were off 2 points net. German marks were steady. Sterling cables reacted nearly a cent at one time, but cut this loss to ¼ cent, closing at $3.68¾.

Berlin Market Soars.

BERLIN, June 1.—(AP)—Quotations on the boerse today exhibited a spectacle which has not been seen there for years, namely 35 plus signs. The share market was excited and buoyant, the favorites soaring 5 to 11 points, while bonds were a couple of points weaker. The close was quieter, with shares closing at one to two points below the top, while the bonds recovered their losses.

London Market Strong.

LONDON, June 1.—(AP)—Trading was more cheerful on the budget news from Washington and also on talk of a world economic conference.

Paris Market Rises.

PARIS, June 1.—(AP)—Exclusion of Socialists from the next Herriot government and the vote of the American senate on the budget produced an outburst of optimism. Stocks rose substantially under bear covering and speculative purchases and closed firm.

[Note—A temporary change has been made in the industrial averages. American Tobacco, R. H. Macy & Co., Borden company, and Corn Products Refining company stocks have been dropped, and American Tobacco company B, National Lead company, U. S. Tobacco company, and Safeway Stores, Inc., stocks have been substituted. American Tobacco B will be multiplied by two and General Electric by four.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 1.—They whooped things up a bit, for a change, on the stock exchange today.

The senate's action on the tax bill, followed by the move in the lower house to expedite the measure to conference, gave the bulls an inning in the early dealings. Values were whirled up from 1 to 5 points in the liveliest buying spree in weeks.

It was too much of a good thing to last, however, and in the second hour an avalanche of fresh liquidation bore down on the list with an impact that not only wiped out all the early gains, but sent numerous issues bumping to new lows for the major decline. About the middle of the afternoon the selling pressure subsided.

The beginning of the final hour found another moderate rally under way. This in turn gave way to another drooping chartline and the finish was irregularly lower all over the board.

The day's net changes ranged from a gain of 2 points or so to a loss of 3 to 4.

It was the broadest and most active market in a month or more and from all accounts a good time was had by all. The turnover was not very far short of two million shares.

Selling converged largely on the utility, oil and tobacco shares and the swings in some of them from their peaks to new bottoms amounted to as much as 6 or 8 points. American Telephone, for instance, dropped from its day's high of 91⅞ to 85.

Western Electric Affected.

Announcement of a shorter week for Western Electric workers was made the occasion of a regular barrage of selling orders from the bear camp against that leader. The threat of gasoline taxes hit the oils and the power tax proposal weighed against the power and light descriptions. Consolidated Gas dipped 5 points from its early high to record a new low of 33¾. Brooklyn Union Gas gave up another 4½ and Peoples Gas 2¾ points.

The working time of all employés, including officers, of the Western Electric company will, effective July 1, be reduced to 4½ days per week from the present schedule of five days, the company announced yesterday, to spread work as far as possible.

American Can opened 5¾ points higher at 40 and then broke nearly 5 points. It closed at 35½ up ⅞ on the day. Auburn began at 36 an ad-

All live stock prices tilted upward on light supplies yesterday and maintained a higher position all day. Hogs advanced to the highest point in 12 days. Slaughter lambs and the rank and file of cattle brought the best prices in more than two weeks in all classes on the rise.

There was a decidedly better tone in evidence in the hog market and prices improved as the day progressed, closing at the high point. Numerous 170@220 lb averages reached $3.50, to all interests, while $3.55 was paid for a few. The general average for the day moved up 5c at $3.25.

Gains of 5@10c were general in best grades. Aggressive buying by local houses, coupled with the more hopeful reports from wholesale markets revived some bullish talk in the yards. Gains scored in fresh pork have been retained despite the fact that Chicago prices are in line with high eastern centers.

A bulge brought the $4.00 quotation back into play at far eastern points yesterday, equaling the highest point since early in May.

Cattle Prices Benefit.

Weakness that cropped up in Tuesday's cattle trade was not in sight yesterday. Plainer kinds were inclined to lag a little on the upgrade, but best grades pulled away to a fully 10@15c higher position and were still going strong when the session ended at the high point of the day. Eastern buyers were being crowded by local houses in best grades where most buying orders converged. New York packers bought long yearlings averaging 1,071 lbs at $7.40, the top price. It has been several weeks since cattle that light sold at the extreme top of the market. Numerous sales of 990@1,200 lb steers sold at $7.00@7.25, while the bulk of all steers brought $5.50@7.00. Grassy stock sold slowly. More cows showing "grass" arrived yesterday and were not easily disposed of. "Fed" heifers were plentiful, about 200 yearlings averaging about 683@919 lbs, selling at $5.85@6.25. Calves were sold at steady prices.

Lambs Advance to $6.80.

Lambs moved up 10@15c in value and met fair demand at the upturn, with buying centering in the new crop which comprised bulk of arrivals. Native lambs, until yesterday, June 1, classed as springers, sold to city butchers at $6.50@6.80 and to packers at $6.00@6.25. It is the custom of the trade to change the classification on lambs and yearlings at this time of the year.

Packers are adjusting themselves to handling the new crop. Last year's crop of lambs are now classed as yearlings. These sold yesterday at $5.00 @5.40.

Big Lard Supply

Lard stocks in Chicago increased 10,643,905 lbs in May and are 72,951,000 lbs, compared with 44,251,275 lbs last year. Stock of dry salted clear bellies increased 253,046 lbs for the month and are 17,863,000 lbs, and compare with 20,986,000 lbs last year.

WINTER WHEAT CROP FIGURES REFLECT LOSSES

Private Estimates Given to Traders.

Drought, heat and Hessian fly took a further toll from the winter wheat crop during the month of May. The average of the private crop estimates given to the traders yesterday suggested an aggregate yield of 433,000,000 bu for the country. This showed 28,000,000 bu under the private returns of a month ago and 7,000,000 bu under the government figures. It forecast the smallest crop with one exception since 1917.

Improvement in the Pacific northwest offset the reduction in the states east of the Rockies to some extent. Last year's harvest was 787,000,000 bu, the largest on record. A loss of 1,475,000 acres since May 1 was indicated by reports to R. O. Cromwell, the Lamson Bros. & Co. expert.

Spring Wheat's Start Good.

Spring wheat crop has made an excellent start with the condition of 82.3 only 1.4 per cent less than the 10 year average and about an average crop is suggested, the private returns showing 253,000,000 bu, compared with 105,000,000 bu in 1931, when it was the smallest on record. The acreage of around 19,000,000 acres is about 1,500,000 acres less than was actually seeded in 1931.

Little change in the spring wheat acreage was suggested in the three Canadian provinces with an aggregate of around 25,000,000 acres, or about 400,000 acres less than in 1931. Condition is reported at 97.4 by Murray, while Donovan's returns forecasted a yield of 375,000,000 bu, or about 100,000,000 bu more than last year.

Corn Planting Figures.

Around 108,500,000 acres of corn have been planted this season, it is estimated, against 105,000,000 acres last year. Details follow, last six ciphers omitted:

More Crop Estimates.

Kansas is estimated to have a winter wheat crop of 79,000,000 bu by the Murray-Clement, Curtis crop report, against 240,000,000 bu harvested last year. Nebraska has 20,000,000 bu compared with 57,000,000 bu harvested, in 1931; Oklahoma, 39,000,000 bu compared with 75,000,000 bu last year, and Texas 35,000,000, a loss of 22,000,000 bu, and Colorado 3,000,000 compared with 15,000,000 bu produced in 1931.

The five states have 176,000,000 bu against 187,000,000 bu by the government in May and 444,000,000 bu as last year's final.

Another authority made an aggregate of 160,000,000 bu for the five states. One estimate gave Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio a total of 88,000,000 bu compared with 97,000,000 bu by the government last month. The three north Pacific coast states have 6,000,000 bu over the May estimates.

BUTTER FUTURES STEADY

Butter and egg futures failed to hold early gains on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, reacting after a ¼c advance, closing unchanged. New buying and short covering later when the daily storage report proved bearish. Butter production was shown to be higher than last year. The four markets reported an inward storage movement 24,000 lbs greater than last year. Eggs stored totalled 5,000 cases more than last year in the four markets. Sales: Butter, 49 cars; eggs, 65 cars. Prices follow:

GLORIES OF 1893 RECALLED AS DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS CROWNS CELEBRATION OF WORLD'S FAIR DAY, A YEAR IN ADVANCE OF EXPOSITION OPENING. Scene in Grant park last night when bursting bombs revealed the beauty of the electrical group on Northerly island to the crowd gathered in the Hall of Science across the lagoon. The Hall of Science itself had been dedicated in the afternoon, being the first completed of the buildings in which exhibits will be shown at the Century of Progress exposition. The formal opening of the exposition is set for June 1, 1933, just a year from yesterday.
